● SLC Fire keeps Salt Lake City safe.

● SLC Fire Station 03 is in your neighborhood. Cpt Silverthorne and his crew serve the area. They live here in their home away from home during their tour of duty. We'd like to show you some of the station and the crew.

- Cpt Silverthorne has served SLC Fire for over 20 years. He is an A platoon captain. He leads a four-person crew at Station 3.

- The crew lives and works at the station for 48 hours during their duty shift.

The kitchen is the heart of the station.

- Family Kitchen Table: crafted by firefighters, it is where firefighters gather to eat, debrief, plan their days and socialize.

- The crew prepares and eats meals together while serving.

- We use a sauna at the station to physically detox following fire response. This helps keep firefighters from getting sick.

- The special gear we wear to fight fires is stored in a special room at the station. This gear can get polluted when used to fight fires, so we keep it separate from our living quarters.

- SLC Firefighters are family, serving and living together for many hours on duty over the years.

●The crew works out to stay strong for the job.

- Each station has a gym. This is the gym in Station 3.

- We can take the pole or the stairs to quickly get to the engine when a call comes.

- We clean our clothes and sheets in the laundry room at the station.

- We relax on the patio. Every station has an outdoor cooker, a BBQ and smoker, for cooking meals. Firefighters eat well to maintain their energy for the job.

- A large community room is available at the station for community meetings, social gatherings and training.

● Firefighters provide learning events at schools.

- SLC Fire fights fire in many places. Structures like homes and businesses as well as wild lands that interface with the city.

● SLC Fire learn and train at the Training Tower.

● SLC Fire work at the SLC airport.

- Firefighters work night and day to keep people and property safe from fire.

- We help people in situations other than fires sometimes.

- Red Doors: a physical manifestation of the purpose of the building. In SLC, UT a red door indicates the building is a fire house.
- Safe Haven: fire stations are a place you can go if you need help.

● SLC Fire is Utah Capital's Fire Service, and we are on call 24/7 living at the 14 stations through-out the city. Day or night, we will be there to help.
