2024 Goals & 2023 Report

Together, we accomplished A LOT in 2023. Salt Lake City is meeting challenges and opportunities head-on, from adopting a five-year housing plan to completing a top-to-bottom water usage audit. Read the 2023 progress report.

With a new term comes new priority areas for my administration, but one ambition remains at the heart of it all: to support the highest quality of life for residents. We are laying a durable foundation for projects like:

- The Green Loop,
- Main Street pedestrian promenade,
- Initiatives that prioritize childcare,
- Affordable housing, and
- Water conservation.

I am excited for the work ahead in 2024.

New crime dashboard

Due to Salt Lake City's Police Department's commitment to community-based policing, Salt Lake City has achieved a 7-year low in crime. Crime is down 17% year to date. Residents can see updated statistics citywide, as well as by neighborhood, in a newly designed dashboard.

Love Your Block applications open March 1

Love Your Block grants are back! Salt Lake City community members can apply for one of two kinds of funding beginning March 1.

Love Your Block is a testament to the power of community-driven change. This year, Love Your Block has expanded beyond the Westside communities to include the Ballpark neighborhood. Our 2024 grants for residents take on two forms:

- Mini-Grant: provides up to $2,000, supporting larger-scale initiatives such as community tool sheds, public art, vacant lot activation, playground repairs, and placemaking signage.
- Community Action Fund: provides up to $500, allocates funds for shovel-ready and quick-hit projects, emphasizing activities like neighborhood clean-ups, alleyway projects, and exterior home repairs.

Share your love for your neighboring communities by spreading word of this opportunity with eligible constituents, neighbors, and friends.

2100 South Reconstruction begins

Construction on 2100 South is anticipated to begin in early March. An open house will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, February 29 in the Highland High School cafeteria to provide more information about the schedule and impacts on residents and traffic.

Celebrating Black History Month

Earlier this month, City leaders and I met with Black Diaspora and African American community members to celebrate Black History Month and directly inform the City's work in support of residents, businesses, the environment, and our future. Salt Lake City's diversity, equity, and inclusion efforts are important. We are stronger because of the City's diversity and because we aim to create a more equitable and accessible future.
