

Ginger Cannon is one of the At-Large members of the PNUT Board appointed by the mayor's office in 2021.

Ginger is a Utah native passionate about developing and preserving public spaces that transform our public health, local economy, and quality of life. She currently works to advance sustainability education and climate action at the University of Utah, and has previously worked as a horticulturist, arborist, and long-range planner for the Minneapolis park system. Ginger loves to run, bike, hike, golf, and play any field or court sport, especially bike polo and basketball. Her daily gratitude is appreciation for SLC's urban forest and the many hidden gems to enjoy in our capital city.
