First day of being unemployed in 18 years... I thought it’d be a good day to spend the day at the pool with my amazingly beautiful daughter.

Remembring Seven Peaks!!

Jul 21, 2016 - Finally made it to seven peaks. Only the second time this summer and about no one crashed into me on the way here this time!
I WANT TO REIMAGINE...: A new facility for the homeless. Might I suggest a location for such a needed place? There is an unused 17 acre parcel of land in the Glendale neighborhood. YES you guessed it the now defuncted and dilapidated Seven Peaks/ Raging Waters park. While Upgrading would be far too costly for taxpayers to flip0 the bill. To hope for an investor to refurbish the water park is just going to be jabberwalkie. To demolish something that is already falling apart is cost effective. Sewer lines are intact power lines are intact. A single Woman's shelter, single Men's shelter and a Family shelter. Also a resource center is greatly needed in the Salt Lake valley. What better use for the 17 acre lot. Since the city Government totally dropped the ball in the Reo Grand district by closing down the shelters before they had any idea what so ever what to do with the homeless and needy Who utilized the resources that were found in that area. ie fourth street clinic, St Pauls' mission, travers aid...ect. It was unbecoming and absolutely disheartening for me to witness the callous unchristian like behavior that was given towards the most needy in our society. That was then this is now. It is easily accessible by bus, car, (shopping cart) what have you. It is also out of the way and not in residential neighborhoods like the so called shelters are located now. food for thought. thank you. Be well, Stay safe

To Whom It May Concern,

I just read the following article on the abandoned 17-acre water park in the Glendale neighborhood.

I would like to propose turning this abandoned 17-acre water park in the Glendale neighborhood into an intensive grazing permaculture model where people can get back to nature with a model of clean, organically grown clean food production run by and inhabited largely by homeless residents and/or mentally handicapped individuals.

I would suggest in addition to establishing gardens and grazing areas that we build greenhouses to winter livestock in a healthy mix of vegetable growth, fish ponds, and aquaponics.

This could provide an opportunity for people of all ages to savor the energy of nature in a pristine permaculture environment which demonstrates a symbiotic interaction between livestock, fish, and plant growth which produces healthy, economic food production ripe for picking and petting.

I have a vision for a self-pick or self-harvest organic food production theme park run by previously homeless and/or mentally handicapped individuals within a family-safe setting.

The site could also provide a new venue for a permanent farmer’s market from which to sell the goods produced while providing an educational environment to teach SLC residents to replicate some of these food production models on their own residential properties.

I would solicit the consulting guidance of farmers such Joel Salatin of polyfacefarms.com and permaculture experts to design and establish the optimal organic food production model for this project.

Thank you.

It would be nice to see the city invest in projects on the West Side. Why not restore some of it and also upgrade it.

that would be nice and re-fix all the pools with leaks

How about investing in the West Side for once and bringing it back to its former glory? It was the city's mismanagement (under subcontractors) that allowed it to get to this point. Why should the people of Salt Lake lose this asset because of that? Why are all the open spaces on the West Side neglected by the city? Capital Improvement Program (CIP) project?
A dog park. Salt lake city and west valley city are the two largest cities in this state and yet there are no dog parks? West Jordan has one. Millcreek has one. This area is big enough to level it out and create a huge dog park. There can be a gated agility course, water fountains to be able to fill water bottles and bowls, throw in some benches. There are already some trees for shade. Give the people something useful.

Get the residents of the community and their pets outside. Give them a reason to be outside. Give them something nice rather than treating them like they live in the ghetto, especially that area, and surrounding areas.

A rec center would be great. Or even an indoor soccer arena.

Make it a state run liquor store.

Make it an independently owned, operated, and self-regulated liquor store.

I'm sure it will just become luxury apartments like everything else in the valley. More unaffordable housing coming your way!

I'd rather have apartment buildings than 600k+ single family homes. Single family zoning is killing affordability.

I can't tell you how much negative activity has taken place near, in, or around there in the last years. It's sore for sure that needs to be remediated. But I honestly don't feel that "another" water park is an answer. The unfortunate part with that area, is anything "public" in time will likely become another source of conglomeration amongst negative activities. That's been my observations and experiences. I feel it would be better left to the private sector for development. Housing, office buildings, etc.

it legally cannot be used for any purpose other than outdoor recreation.

Low income housing to help people in need would be great (if the zoning allows)

Kids packed that waterpark every summer.
Now where are they during those hours?
Pitiful that the place that brought so many memories is reduced to dollar signs.
That area and those kids needed respite but the long lines to joy have convened on the streets.
Put a price tag on that.

Man. That place was the best. I had so many memories there. We had our 6th grade graduation there. I wore my hypercolor shirt and thought I was so cool😆. Turn it into a skate park!

I only went to Raging Waters a couple of times as a kid, but I had so much fun there.

I think that should be $500,000 to $600,000 not $500.

Although technically it's not wrong

♂_Items: Throw a fundraiser on the upper east side to raise funds to rebuild it

A public park with a water pad and walking paths

Get rid of it. We dont need another water park in a drought filled state.

$500, anyone? Anyone?

Make a nice community garden...create a co-op! Beautiful space + will benefit community

Turn it into a State Liquor store.

<td>If costs and market forces of building a new water park were not an issue, would you prefer the land be used for a water park?</td>
<td>Yes. It has been a great asset for the community in the past. However, I would suggest putting some thought into how to make this a service that would be more accessible all year and not just summer months (a portion of it could be indoor, ice skating rink in winter?). Also, making certain that this is accessible to all income levels is essential. For example, a discounted price for 84104 residents. Yes. The water park has always been a burden on the Glendale community. We have had to deal with the overflow parking clogging our streets and all of their trash littering our lawns and sidewalks. The water park did very little if anything to contribute to the community it was located in. YES! I would love to get an annual pass to take my family to a water park close to home. I would rather see Glendale get a Amazing High school.</td>

<td>Maybe not. No. We live in an arid state No, make it a new type of water park--an ecological water park with wetlands, riparian habitat, etc. I believe it is really important to NOT develop the space into apartments or homes. SLC is still short on recreation fields, open space and parks. No. Yes absolutely! Yes</td>
<td>Yes that would be fine. Sometimes it is much better to start over brand new. In this case it would be better to redesign the entire park and by doing so start the construction fresh from the ground up. no, maybe a new multiuse indoor/outdoor pool. SLC does not have a good outdoor pool for families. Yes. I think water parks that are run well, only allow a limited number of people in the park at a time, and are cost effective can be a lot of fun. The problem comes from families that use parks like this as daycare during the summer or when there are so many people in the park that it is no longer safe nor enjoyable. Then some times the entry fee gets so high that most people will not go. No</td>

No. The water parks at Lagoon and Draper likely meets the waterpark recreation needs for the Wasatch Front population. If another water park is to be opened, it should be done so at the expense of a commercial entity and not be funded by the city.

Some type of open space that allows community use.

No.

I have loved going to that water park, and if costs were not an issue, than I would love to see it restored- even if was in a different form- like a splash pad park or something like that.

No. It’s not an appropriate location and was not large enough to handle demand. A larger, nicer water park with adequate parking in an area outside a residential neighborhood would be much better.

High density housing

Not necessarily. I'd be happy with any kind of pleasant outdoor space.

Yes, Salt Lake City needs a water park. It's hot here in the summer.

Yes

Yes. But perhaps an indoor facility to avoid sun exposure and minimize evaporation. Maybe something like the new U of U facility where most is inside with doors that open to the outside? Then this could be used year round.

No, housing or actual park is preferred.

Yes

Yes

No a full water park is a waste of money. I could see possibly a splash pad or something like incorporated into the park.

Yes

Yes!

Yes, a local water park would be great.

If it was a public entity that everyone in our community could use, I think a water park would be great! Even better, a public pool, a place to gather like a water park but without the slides would be amazing.

No, I much prefer a standard park with green space and room for citizens to relax outside.

No.

Wetlands Park that restores native habitat and provides educational opportunities. Any developments to the area south of 1700S could be offset with wetlands restoration to the neglected areas of the park on the north she.

It seemed to be used up until it closed. Although it appeared that attendance declined as the facilities fell into disrepair. So I think there is still a customer base for something like this.

no.

No.

A water park may have been a great idea before March of 2020. However, Covid-19 has really changed that calculus on any destination that attracts large crowds. This is likely a passing issue, but certainly impacts near term operating goals. If we can get a state of the art water park with water roller coasters and animal encounters then I am all for it. The area can use investment and revitalization. I just expect to lose money for the first 5 years of operation.

Living in the glendale area I feel a renovated park with have an enormous community impact.

Please correct your spelling

No. But perhaps some water features should be retained, like an outdoor pool or splash pad.

Yes. I would love to see a public water park on the west side of Salt Lake. I believe this would be a tremendously fun benefit to city residents and surrounding communities as well as a source of recreation and pride for the west side.

Absolutely! I loved this park as a kid and made many memories there.

no

No.

No, because it should revert to public space. Perhaps a public swimming pool and water complex, but not a private water park.

I don't necessarily think building a new "water park" is a great idea but maybe new swimming pools or other water based theme, a canoe/kayak run, play wave or similar.

I would prefer something more sustainable and less water intensive

No

A fun park, like liberty park

It was not a viable operation during the boom years. Now with the Covid-19 virus problem it is very unlikely that people will be willing to return any time soon.

No. A park - open space would be great.

Definitely a park, preferably a park with water features for kids and dogs and people (yes, an expensive filter and filtration system would be needed) but especially with COVID and greater social distance we need more outdoor space and low cost, preferably NO cost options for kids to be outside and PLAY.
Yes, if it were a private venture. No government subsidies for a water park.

I’d like to know what the alternatives are before saying that I want it to be a water park.
to be use for rapid rehousing for the homeless https://endhomelessness.org/resource/housing-first/

No

No! They are gross, loud, and ugly. Only catering to families with kids (you can be a family without children).

I think it depends on how much use it got before it fell into disrepair. If not that much, then find a different use for it.

I think the land could be easily repurposed into something else. Skate park, lawns, sport courts, etc for a much smaller cost.

yes

No. Seems too expensive to build which doesn’t include operating / insurance costs either. A nice park with smaller splash pad type features would be great!

No. I would rather see a biking, parkour fitness, “ninjas” training or rock climbing facilities

No.

Summes get hot, and they are only continue to get hotter. Yes, Please have some sort of water park. It doesn’t have to be as grand as it was, but something with swimming would be nice.

No, I’d prefer something else

No, but it should be used for open space. We do not have enough open spaces or garden spaces available in the city with all the urban housing developments.

It would be nice to have a large children’s activities park with large playgrounds and activities - kind of like Liberty Park. Glendale has the youngest population in the state and it would be used very heavily.

Shame on Seven Peaks.

I enjoyed Raging Waters as a young Utahan, I think it made for a great attraction that united the east and west sides of the valley. I would welcome a similar park.

No.

Personally, I’m unlikely to use a water park. However, since there isn’t another decent water park in this area, I do support a water park, or at least splash pads of some sort. Perhaps a more accessible park that could be used throughout the year that had splash pads built in?

No. I would prefer an open space like a park or wetland that does not require active maintenance by a private partner.

As long as you don’t sell it to your favorite luxury housing developers

No

No - redirect funds to improving other natural "water parks" (Jordan River parkway) and other outdoor rec spaces.

No, because future improvements/upkeep is not worth the tax burden which will undoubtedly impact all residents.

No.

I don’t know if it necessarily needs to be a waterpark, but it should remain as a public recreation area of some kind. That side of the city needs to maintain places for families and kids to go enjoy themselves in the summer. It would be even better if it were something that could be used year round.

No

Yes, or a public park/open space. How about a frisbee golf course?

Not necessarily.

No.

No- Utah is the second-driest state in the US and a waterpark is a flagrant misuse of a scarce resource in this area. It would be great to see this space used to create a more ecologically-conscious outdoor space available for public use.

Yes! Our older kids, teens and young adults have such limited things to do in our city they often get into trouble. Having an affordable water park not only serves that purpose but also give employment opportunities as well. It is worth the cost. Let the kids have places to get outside and be off of their screens!

It’s an inefficient use of space since water parks in Utah can only operate about 4-5 months of the year.

No.

Absolutely. It’s ludicrous that there isn’t any other water slide park(s) in SLC. Where else can one be built anywhere in the county but there???? Sell it to another water park company. Let them do the repairs!

No. I’d rather it be either a more traditional park, or a rec center (unless it’s too close to an existing rec center), or just an outdoor community pool (rather than a waterpark) with park and picnic space outside the pool area.

No. With our four season climate, committing the needed large amount of capital does not make sense.

No.
No - this is not a sustainable use of water resources in Salt Lake City. The land should be converted into an urban food forest with long-term leases for small farmers as well as open access areas for growing perrenials and community led gardens.

No
Yes I definitely think Salt Lake needs a water park
No
No. Just a plain old fashioned park. More open access to parkland, trees, simple play areas, walking paths.
No
No. We have lagoon for a water park.

No, I would prefer the land be used for something that could be used year-around and in a way that could benefit the local Glendale community / economy.
The park is located near the Jordan River. Perhaps there is a larger way to celebrate the river and all it has to offer.
I support looking at all options for the best use.
Yes
Yes, the area kids need a place to spend time in a safe environment.
Not necessarily.
No
No opinion, but you may wish to have someone who is competent in written English to proofread the survey. In the question above "where" should be "were".
Yes! Water park!
Yes, or some type of recreational park. A lot of locals used that water park and it was affordable to all families.
I would love to have a water park there. It was a part of my childhood and I hate to see generations not have the opportunity to enjoy it.
No
No preference
Not necessarily but it should remain something the public can use recreationally.
Build low income housing for chronically homeless, handicapped people.
Yes, in the end, I wish it could still be a water park. I have really fond memories of going there as a kid, and it was one of the few places close by that was really a treat to be able to go but was still close enough that it was possible to go frequently. I want the kids in our community today and in the future to have that too.
No
Yes

Absolutely. It is sad that the city allowed this to happen in the first place. Proper security and maintenance should have been in place to avoid the condition that was allowed to happen. Honestly, it’s unacceptable.

In addition, the city should have been actively monitoring the condition, and making repairs as needed before it got to the point that everything needs repair at once.
No
Yes
I don’t think that building a water park is the best choice from an environmental standpoint. Water is scarce and will only become more scarce. Additionally, along with water parks being expensive to maintain, they are often not cheap to attend. The community of Glendale would be better served by a creating a public space.
No, I would prefer it be used to create a nice green space similar to Liberty Park
No. Water parks aren’t terribly equitable and with the lack of parks on the west side I think the space could be better utilized as a public amenity for that area.
I am fine either way, I would probably take my kids to the water park a couple of times a summer, but am also fine with it being turned into something else.
No, it should be used for green space.
I don’t have any interest in using a water park, but if many others wanted it, I would not oppose it.
an outdoor community pool would be nice to have
It does not seem to make a lot of sense to put in a water park at this time. Maybe that isn't good forward thinking. Maybe looking back at park usage when the park was a viable operation would be telling whether it was something that would attract guests once this pandemic is over.
Yes, we do not have a large outdoor waterpark in Salt Lake County. It is a great day summer outing for families. Part of the land could be a water park and part could be something else that wastes less water - skate park, basketball courts, tennis courts, pickle ball, baseball/softball fields/

Yes, it seems like it would be a great summer time resource for the city but the renovation costs seem high.

No

Yes. Perhaps it could be reduced in size and features that were the most popular back in the day could be rebuilt.

Yes and no. The water park was a really fun place to go and a great way to cool off on hot days. That said, it felt really old school and wasn't that accessible for all so I would support something different in this space. Wading pools, a few splash pads scattered throughout, bike trails, picnic sites.

No

No. Use it for green space or small market stall space with inexpensive rentals for budding entrepreneurs or licensed food vendors.

No. A general park or greenspace would be more appreciated.

I would love to have an outdoor pool! !!!!! That is the only thing I would want built in it's pace.

Yes.

NO. There are many more important things we could do with the land.

No. It failed twice as a water park. 7 acres is a lot of assembled ground. A derelict water park is a lot of potential liability. Assuming the City has clear title, I would scrape it, market it as one parcel and be patient. It could take a while.

No

I would rather it use for a swimming pool complex HMM facility center like they have out at Kearns

A regular park.

No

Yes.

Not really. It was expensive. I'd rather see something the whole community can use

No

No

Yes

Somewhat, I think a ‘splash pad’ would be good for the west side as there isn’t anywhere for kids to have that kind of fun (to my knowledge they would have to go to Liberty Park for the canyon one there and I’m not sure if it has been open before COVID.

even just a regular park would be nice (i don't remember if the one nearby has playground equip or not), open green space, a garden space or coop of some sort.

Oh hell no. Get rid of that [Language redacted]. Put in a green house, or a community or rec center.

NO!

Absolutely not

Honestly, I am not sure it is worth the money and time to create a water park when this space could be used for other types of outdoor recreation that are cost friendly.

I don't mind the idea of a water park being there, but maybe something scaled down like just a couple of nice pools, splash pads, etc. (especially if owned by the city). But honestly the land would probably be better used as a nice park.

Regular park

- yes
- No. The City has no more business running/leasing a water park than it does running a circus.
- No
- No, that is not an amenity needed in my opinion.
- No. It should be reimaged into something more unique, inclusive, and beneficial to the community
- No way.
- No. We need something that can needed year round.
- No.

Probably, but i'm not sure.

- No
- Yes
- No, give the public an opportunity to remove existing items like power boxes or anything else found useful. Then turn it into a park after removing dangerous chemicals and structures.
- No
- Yes, we need a water park or other family friendly place in the city
- I would not have a preference.
- No, but a large splash pad and playground would be nice.
- No
- Yes
- No

- Yes - or create another space similar to Liberty Park with multi-use options
- Yes indeed. Public swimming pools that offer free swim classes are an amazing meeting point for people with different socioeconomic backgrounds
- Yes
- Yes, a water park is nice to have in hot weather. But the management must have enough resources to keep it safe. I have fun memories from going there. But it had become unsafe and not well maintained in recent years. The workers were young and probably untrained. They did not charge enough to keep the business viable. Closed on Sundays! was a dumb decision for a seasonal business. It is a shame to lose it. The one in Provo is in much better shape.
- Yes, it was so popular for so many years. I have never been to the water park but have seen others enjoying it when I was playing Golf at Glendale Golf course. SLC waited too long to do anything, just like the Wingpointe Golf Course. HASTE MAKES WASTE!
- No

- No
- Yes.

- No

Affordable housing

- No. I'm not against it but I have no strong preference for a water park over just simply beautifying the space or allowing new development ideas.
- Yes, I prefer our coming generations to have a fair opportunity to enjoy a waterpark as families and friends rather than having to know someone well enough off to go boating at a reservoir. While having small pavilions for group reservations.
For a long time it worked well as a water park. One of the issues when it became Seven Peaks was that it was closed on Sundays. That made it an unsustainable business. Concomitant with that was the "pass of all passes", which made very cheap to go there and hence made it incredibly crowded on Saturdays! So sure I love there to be a water park there again it was a well run business where I wanted to go.

No. Nobody cared enough to complain since it closed so time to move on.

Yes. I would like to have another water park there, but, it appears to be impossible.

No

No

YES - for all ages and levels of ability.

Use as part of future Olympic Facilities close to the city

In normal time, maybe. Global warming would make a water park attractive to young kids and give them a place to recreate close to home. In the current environment, I would probably say no.

Yes

Yes. Back when the park was in good repair, our family enjoyed visiting the water park. While the area could be renovated to be more of a splashpad with an outdoor pool, it would be nice to maintain some sort of outdoor aquatic recreation site there at Glenwood Park.

Yes. There isn't a water park in Salt Lake City proper and, done well, it could be an enormous amenity and economic driver for Glendale, making it a regional destination.

Continuation of the 17th River Park....with recyle servies

No.

No

Would the water park be run by the city or county?

Yes.

No

Yes,

something that highlights the Jordan River Area would be awesome. It's the city's waterway!

yes

go o ut anbd get bids from established operators for a long term use and see what happens

Yes because Glendale needs a community center and something to be known for. Perhaps back to basics and strive to create a water park attraction unique in Utah since it would be competing with a few other regional destinations. If there was a wave pool, I would travel across town to use it.

Not really since I don't frequent water parks. I would want whatever is best for the community and city, such as perhaps an indoor swimming pool, another dog park, and a nice park with natural vegetation and trails, places to sit or picnic, bicycle connections to JRT, an outdoor playground, and sufficient surveillance and maintenance to keep the homeless and vandals from ruining it.

No.

No- I never thought it was a good use for that parcel

Maybe not a full water park, but something more akin to a great Rec center with really nice pools (lap pool separate) lazy river, splash pad, etc.

No, a better use would a community gathering spot with restaurants, bars, outdoor activities

Absolutely No Way!

Yes. I never visited Seven Peaks, but it sounds like it was a great place to take a family during the warm months. If the cost were reasonable, I would support rebuilding the park.

Only if it were acquired and operated by a private company with no public funds.

Yes, if costs were not an issue, it would be great to have a water park in the area. However, I think the money would be better spent on a site that can be used year round, including the winter.

NO. An actual park

No, we are a desert.

Yes
Yes. I lived in Las Vegas for over 20 years - Wet "n" Wild was one of the most popular attractions for residents and visitors. I moved to the SLC area in 2011. I have no "water park memories" to share.

This looks to be a fairly easily accessible location, offering job possibilities - not the least of which would be lifeguards. There appears to be ample space for parking. One thing you might add is a fenced-off area for private parties - which would be an additional cost for business or family rental.

As far as I can see, with careful planning, this could be a serious cash cow.

No.

Make the property owner pay and sell this property.

If this land is privately owned there is absolutely NO reason to spend ANY taxpayer dollars on this.

I take care and am expected to take care of my property so should they.

Taxpayers should by no means take on private property issues other than hold owners responsible

YES!

No, a skate and BMX park please.

No. I say turn it into a really nice splash pad.

Yes, I want a water park there!!

No. It should be a public park highlighting responsible water usage in a desert climate. Walking trails, a venue for outdoor concerts, a playground, a skate park.

No

No. Maybe a pool and a public park. How about an outdoor archery range? (Archery can actually be very safe). A skateboard park, areas for picnicking, and maybe pickle ball courts. A public garden would be good as well.

No

No, probably a green space like a park.

Yes, if if market demand for a water park were there. I'd rather have a revenue generating piece of land.

Yes

Not particularly

Green space, community park

No.

No

Not necessarily, but would prefer it be used for community access/recreation, green space if at all possible.

Yes, I think it would be great for salt lake to have a water park, but I don't think it's for the city to solve.

Yes

No, the location is perfect for a water-centric public park for canoeing, linked with the Jordan River.

No.

No

No. at least not all of it. should be more accessible to the public

I think it would be nice to have one in this community, as well as maybe expand the area to include other affordable activities.

No

No

Not really. It would be fine but drive to Lagoon ya know.

Yes

Nope! I think something more beneficial to the health of the users and more accessible would be ideal.

No. Something more universally applicable should be there instead.

No

No, with the pandemic going on, its not a good idea.
Yes
No. Get rid of the water park. Just make it a regular beautiful gardened with trees.

No, I think there are probably much better community-focused uses for the property as opposed to the for-profit nature under which it has been operating.

It depends on what the alternatives are. I think a new water park could be good for the community and families and future generations.
Maybe a splash pad and lazy river as part of a park, but not a water park.
No, I don’t think that’s something the City needs to provide. I’d rather see it used for more general recreation, whatever is needed by the nearby communities.
No, but the site should remain recreational and follow the same spirit.

No, I think it’s time for something new.
No. Water parks are expensive to operate. Staffing leaves much to be desired. Another skate park or bmx track would be awesome. Especially for the location. A green park wouldn’t get good traffic.
No
Large park similar to Liberty Park
I would rather not have a water park there. It is right by the trail. Id rather have open lands then a big fence. East side has a splash pad why not a small one on the west side. Less water would be used and would be just as much fun.

No.
yes
If the water park were smaller and include a public park as well

No. But perhaps a multipurpose center
I assume you meant if it “were not an issue”, not “where not an issue”. I would be happy to volunteer to proofread future surveys. This is sloppy, and doesn’t reflect well on SLC.
Personally, I would not use a water park, but I know many people who loved it in the day. I assume there would be good usage. Therefore, if costs and market forces were not an issue, I would be supportive of rebuilding (given a survey to determine interest).
No, I would prefer a large recreational area open to the public.
No. An outdoor water park operates for 4 months of the year so no revenue comes in for 8 months. Also, more people and their kids are avoiding the sun since sun exposure promotes skin cancer.
No
No, I would prefer that the site is restored as open space for the whole community, one that embraces the needs of many people, but interfaces with the Jordan River for a site that is worthy of the river, the community, and the valley.

No, we live in a desert and don’t think we should use our valuable water and resources on a water park

Yes. It is a great resource and family activity spot on the west side of SLC. It was a safe place for younger people to gather without parents and a relatively safe space.

No, a water park would not be valuable to me

No, it seems as though the community has lost interest or many people wouldn’t feel safe or comfortable going to that part of the city anymore anyway.

No, I would like the acreage to be converted to a habitat that would augment the quality of the nearby Jordan River and allow humans to use the outdoor area for mental and physical relaxation and rejuvenation and be suitable for wildlife to thrive.

No

A west side water park would be nice!

No. Some other community park/recreation resource would be preferable.

It seems like there are a number of water parks and amusement parks in the area—not sure if another one is needed unless it would be more affordable for people to access this one if restored.

I think a big splash pad is a better option for kids and free of charge to use. Less water wasted. Support surrounding neighborhoods. If a private developer were willing to spend the funds to do this, yes. I don’t think public funds should be used to construct a new water park given past failures.

Absolutely! I loved raging waters back in the day. But I suspect that market forces are an issue - usually these places fall into disrepair because the operator doesn’t think the investments are justified. The City surely has some insight on their financials. Was it ever profitable after 7 peaks Provo opened?

Love me some good urbex though, can’t support removing anything until we have a clear plan for what’s next.

Not to the size of the existing park. If it could be scaled down to just a few slides, a lazy river, and diving boards, AND include lap pools and a fitness area it could be made into a successful rec center.
Yes. My family went every summer for over 20 years. This was a wonderful place to swim. The Westside of Salt Lake needs an outdoor pool like the eastside has. It would be great to have a pool like in Layton. Surf and Swim. Outdoor in the summer indoor in the winter. And have a big park around it

I would like to see a water park there.

No

YES!!!! This would provide a place for the youth in the area to get outside during summer, along with job opportunities and a place for families to go and enjoy each other. The closest water parks are in Farmington and Draper. They are overcrowded with terrible access.

not really - a nice pool or other park

Yes

Yes

Yes, it would be a great asset to the neighborhood if done right. It would be a bummer to have the property turned into multi family development or another skate park. Would selling it to a private entity, such as Busch Gardens, with the requirement that it be used as a water park be an option?

No, but I would love to see a regular outdoor pool, similar to the one at the SLC Sports Complex by the U. I live in Fairpark and drive 20 minutes across town to swim there in the summer, because we are lacking that type of outdoor lap swimming in this area of town.

only if it's a publicly run non-profit water park that is accessible to people of varying abilities as well as accessible to low-income individuals

Half water park, half multiple use. Batting cages, miniature golf, outdoor activities.

No

No.

Definitely keep the water park if feasible.

That much vandalism withing the neighborhood would make me question the wisdom of pumping more money into another project.

Yes, but that's a meaningless hypothetical unless someone plans to donate $20 Million.

No. I’d prefer that the area and section of Jordan River in that area was cleaned up, both of garbage, thorny bushes, and unchecked foliage (that have led to the high number of homeless camps in the area)

I used to take my 11 year old son fishing there every now and then, but between getting frequently caught up in all the shopping carts and debris in the water and a couple of scary encounters with transients, we no longer like going there or feel safe.

This could be an amazing urban fishing area with city and community support. Despite the dirtiness of the water, the Jordan River supports a wide variety of fish and wildlife—imagine if it was clean!

No

Yes the water park would be wonderful.

I love the idea of an affordable or free place for the community to come together. A water park could be such a place. But other ideas such as a nature conservatory, butterfly dome, arts and culture center, community-led class center, recreation center, and more could all be ways for the community to come together. Or maybe a combination of these ideas!

definitely not. Unsafe. No parking.

Yes. OR another large park like Liberty, but with a FEW large public swimming pools and a lazy river or something. Water slides are not necessary, are hazardous, and take up a lot of space. But there needs to be some better water recreation in SLC.

Neutral. Can our system afford that heavy a use of water? It’s true that water play in a clean facility (as opposed to an unregulated & overcrowded reservoir eg Jordanelle) is an important form of summer recreation & relief, and the presence of such on the West Side is also important. It is important to protect property values and rents from being inflated as a result.

What about a large skateboard, acrobatics, and climbing park incorporating smaller water features and just a large pool with slides & Diving boards?

NO!!!!!!!! We live in a desert. Maybe if it were possible to make a more natural pool, with plants and things in it, so people could still float and swim but without all the chemicals??

Yes to water recreation - I visited the Boise Greenbelt with family This summer and we all had a great time. Places to sit and lounge in the river and ponds. Picnics and smiles. We especially liked the whitewater park and thought the kayaking and wake boarding there could serve our outdoorsy community well. Any way parts of Glendale Golf Course could move over to take the place of the park ground and the land next to Jordan River could be freed up for something like this: https://www.boisewhitewaterpark.com/

Hmmm... I'm split on this. I love water parks, and feel that SLC could benefit from one - but I could also be excited about a really cool and unique public park in its place. Either way - it's all about taking this opportunity to create something amazing. We don't get too many chances as a City to work with this much public space at once.

Sadly no. We can't afford to waste the water.

A water park is a bad idea in our current drought/climate change environment.

I liked the water park, but an alternative park would also be good.

No. Salt Lake City does not need another water park. The city in the middle of a high desert and water parks waste a lot of water. The city and surrounding counties still don't have a comprehensive and enforceable water conservation program and a new water park would only bring SLC closer to having less clean water for drinking, cleaning, and growing food.

Yes

My kids grew up enjoying the water park. It was always a fun place to go. We would love to have a water park again, if possible.

No, make it into an mountain bike park (a la 9-Line, Trailside in Park City).

The long term up keep will be expensive and returns limited. It should not be the city’s problem to maintain.

Why was such vandalization allowed to begin with? Who let this go into such disrepair? Children and families need places to place and recreate. It is a shame that this site has been allowed to fall into such a state. Now the city wants to disband it. It never should have gotten to this point to begin with. Regular maintenance and upkeep are vital to any park and without that you soon have a dump as is here the case.

No.

Yes

Ambivalent…it might be useful to have the space be something which would appeal to more of the public than a water park does.

Absolutely not. Water parks have become dinosaurs.

No I would much prefer to make the property into something more functional such as a regular park with a splash pad.

No. a botanical garden

no

Yes

It can be used for whatever as long as it is cleaned up

Yes

No. It was built as a water park because those were becoming popular. If water parks aren't popular enough to fund its development, then it shouldn't be a water park. It could be so many other outdoor recreation venues that are less expensive and more popular.

What about a bike track/velodrome? Maybe an outdoor swimming pool but not as extreme as a water park? I'd love an olympic length outdoor swimming pool.

I think water should be a feature of the park - as a pond or an interactive stream.

Yes - Salt Lake is so very hot in the summer, so a water park would be greatly appreciated.

Yes. I prefer a public amenity that is accessible and open to all members of the public that incorporates recreation with environmental sustainability and access to the river. I support a regional park concept but with additional art and local neighborhood concepts.

Bird refuge with trails

I was thinking just a regular park with paved sidewalks, playgrounds for the kids, and maybe a swimming pool as homage to raging waters.

Yes, as long as it is self-sustainable.

Yes! It's such a great location to have a water park that's for both kids and adults.

Yes, but one that celebrates the Jordan River. A more naturalized experience that grounds people and connects them to the land and water.

No.

No. A sustainable water park seems out of reach.

A big dog park! Like Tanner park but fenced with trails, trees, and agility equipment for play!

No.

Yes, in a perfect world. Who would run it?

While I like the idea of a water park, I do think that it would be better to incorporate one with the Jordan River Parkway as sort of a destination that people could drive, bike, or walk to.

The best use would be as an urban camping ground. This would allow for planting much more trees than would be possible with a water park or even a park.

No. It should be turned into a park similar to Liberty with walking paths and access to the Jordan River.

No.

Maybe; it depends on alternative proposals.

A WATER PARK WOULD BE GREAT!

I would prefer a park and maybe a small community center, something for all ages and demographics. It would be a nice stop on the Jordan River bike path. A pond is a nice feature as well as a nice quiet area. A skate park and an off-leash area would be a nice addition to the neighborhood.

No, I believe the community could be better served in other ways.

Yes! The water park has a long Salt Lake City history with many, many families and we don't have another one...it's a great place to goin the summer with your kids and even as an adult I enjoyed it...

PLEASE don't tear it down and make way for another gingerbread, no set back apartment or condo building! We have those.... We don't have a water park!

Yes.

A family friendly, outdoor space.

Offer sports - pickle ball, basketball, volleyball, picnic tables, pond, Playground, food venues. We would love to have small cafes or eateries. Live music, putt putt golf course, chess/ping pong.

Research Klyde Warren Park in Dallas as a comparison. So many low maintenance activities for all in the community to enjoy.

Our favorite park/area in Salt Lake is Sugarhouse as it has plenty of food places and we can walk across the street to enjoy family dates at the park.

We would love to have something closer!

No, I'd much rather see a space for multi-season events and activities.

Yes.

I'd prefer a place that doesn't cost me any money for upkeep or entrance fee, walking around enjoying a park with a water fountain would be just fine for me.

No.

Yes, I spent most of my childhood at Raging Waters and am saddened by not being able to make memories like that with my own children.

No, I'd rather just have a regular park: trees, paths, natural plantlife. Maybe a water feature.

Yes, or a comparable activity center.

No, there must be a better use of the land than that.

No.
Sure. Water parks are fun if money is no object.

No. Water parks don’t seem to do well in Utah. A public park with a splash pad in remembrance of the park could be useful.

no, water parks have a terrible carbon footprint. Let’s do a park or rec center or something.

Yes, This was once the best amenity the Glendale neighborhood had and now has become another detriment. The City’s negligence (as property owner) has compounded the deterioration to the point that it is now hopeless the save what is there. Even the lack of irrigation has led to the death of most of the vegetation. At this point, I don’t think I can trust the city to do the right thing. The budget presented above is probably insufficient to do any thing more demolition of the existing facilities and installing turf.

I suppose the question answers itself. Raging Waters as I knew it was Spectacular in it’s day. It’s not worth the restoration cost vs the demolition and allowing for something new to occupy the space.

It looks like plans might be moving forward on something that was in consideration a year or so ago. And the deck is being cleared politically and publicly ahead of any City Involvement. A company representative tells me they have big plans to renovate the park into a destination resort with new pools, slides, restaurants, retail space, and even the world’s longest lazy river. They envision it as the Disneyland of waterparks, but they need the city’s help to get a loan for the estimated $20-25 million it would cost.

If they do, would area residents even be able to afford going there?

That’s one good option!

Not necessarily. There are other water parks in the state.

Yes,

Yes, Salt Lake needs a water park

Make it a skate park

The West Side needs for economic opportunities. Make it a large park designed to also allow for commerce such as flea markets, food trucks, boutique pop-up shops, farmer’s market, etc.

I think a water park would be good for the city where it is hot. However, an open space usable year round would be best.

NO

Yes. Summers in this area are hot, and the water park was a local jewel for all ages.

Yes most definatley

No, we have plenty of wonderful pools in the area. We don't need a water park.

Yes. I think water parks are an essential part of childhood!! I loved that place when I was younger and if it could be redone and brought up to code for the next generation I’d prefer that. It’ll be sad to see it torn down. And it’s such a great central location. Glendale area deserves some love

Maybe regular multiple swimming pools

No.

SLC Public Works folks have failed to properly maintain the CONTRACT allowing the miserable situation that now exist. The City allowed two different contractors to get away owing hundreds of thousands of dollars. The City has shown over the history of the park it cannot properly manage either the park (nearly bankrupt when City initially ran it in the early 80s) then failing to properly manage the contracts after that. Given this history, the City is better off without the park.

Yes; but ongoing maintenance and cleanliness are such big issues.

No.

No. I think there is something more suitable for this environment. I am not opposed to a fun park for kids and families. I'd like the boat ramp to remain, as I use it weekly to kayak in the Jordan River.

It would be nice for families, but seems that the cost of operating it is very costly. So maybe yes.

No. A skatepark would be ideal use of a healthy section of the site.

No, I have no interest in a water park at this location.

no

Yes

No, we live in a desert and need to conserve water, be more efficient with public water use and acknowledge a water park in a desert does not advance the City's water goals but actually makes it harder to meet those goals.

Waterpark is still needed on Salt Lake Valley not really. Boat ramp to the river should remain and maybe a multi-use outdoor recreation area.
Yes. Hot summers need water parks. Keep SLC fun and family friendly.
I would really like a water park there, please please. I know so many people would love to go to the water park there.

No... This day and age with Covid this is the last thing that should be on anyone’s mind. This is land should be allocated to a low income housing project to help support Citizens get back on their feet and prosper and benefit economy as a whole. Secondarily I would support a motion to make it a open space area.
No
Yes I would love it! We used to go to Seven Peaks all the time.
YES the kids in that neighborhood need that water park! They will never get to go to one like this.

I’m not sure if anyone could afford to repair and fix it up. It would be nice to have some thing like lagoon, but as a waterpark. It seemed when raging waters/seven peaks owned it they never put any money into maintain it. Therefore, it ended up deteriorating every year. I feel it wasn’t manage well like lagoon. If anyone ever buys this and turns into a successful water park. They need to take note from the owners of lagoon and put a little bit of money into the business. Yes it would be a great asset to the city, there isn’t another place like it in the county.

Seems like these places are difficult to sustain. College age people and adults with money don’t want to go there because there are too many kids. Families from the East benches are scared parking their car and being around the locals of Glendale and Poplar Grove. You always have to innovate or it becomes stale and people lose interest. Lots of money for maintenance.

Still a couple of generations of residents have great memories at Raging Waters. It was a fantastic place as a kid. Sad to see it’s current state.

Absolutely!
This water park means so much much to generations of my family. On the last day of operation in 2018 (little did I know it would be the last day ever), I went with my young single adult church congregation to the park. I sent a text to my mother to tell my terminally ill father that I was there, was thinking about all the wonderful times he took my siblings and I there growing up, and that I loved him. The next day, he took to his death bed, became unresponsive in his final bouts of suffering from the effects of metastatic Prostate Cancer, and died three days later at the age of 55. This waterpark means more than you or I could ever fully comprehend. If there is any remote chance that it could be reborn still a water park, that would be incredible!

Yes
No, a community outdoor pool along with a outdoor space that enhances the river and parkway.

Yes! We loved going there when it was Raging Waters.

Yes
No a water park is a waste of water. This should be something with a lot of green space. Maybe something similar to happy hollow in San Jose. Then at least it could generate revenue. It would be nice to have a place for kids, we have places like lagoon but not in the city. A smaller park would be great for families to go on a weekend and not have drive to Draper or another place.

Yes, a water park for the community would be a great resource to beat the heat and has a great location to further promote the jordan river as a water recreation source.

No
Sure

It shouldn’t need to be a water park, but it should continue to be something that brings joy to people!

No, I think something else would be better

Yes

Absolutely yes.
The only problem I see here is the greediness from every aspect.
If you really want to do something for the community stop thinking to the God money and profits and go with your hart, otherwise burn everything and make apartments like there is no tomorrow..

Yes
"If costs and market forces of building a new water park [were] not an issue, would you prefer the land be used for a water park?"

Yes. Only issue is COVID now

No, I see it as a beautiful opportunity to build an awesome skate plaza, which will help youth and adults alike practice the sport safely, without endangering other people's property, or public property.

Yes

Yes! We loved going to Seven Peaks.

Yes

Perhaps if similar to that of Cowabunga Bay.

Yes. We need a good, large-scale water park in Salt Lake County. The only other one I'm aware of is Cowabunga Bay which is very small and literally just in a parking lot.

No

Yes

Nope. I have a different idea

No

I think there are much more meaningful ways to use the land

I think making it into more of a splash pad structure like the park out near riverton/herriman seems like a great way to keep it a water park and hopefully not cost $20 million

I think it would be cool to have an art park, where graffiti is allowed and other community art installations can go up. It could also feature regular park attractions (playgrounds, picnic areas, etc.) The playgrounds could also be made into art

No because it would fall into disrepair again if you put in another water park

Yes lo

No

Yes.

Yes! Seven Peaks was a fun water park and I'd love to see it restored.

Yes, most definitely

No

No. Disc golf.

Not really, a public park or community center of some kind would probably be better

Yes I think remove all old and have a community pool maybe little rec center for the kids and it will bring in money as well

Splash pad great idea

Not necessarily.

No. I owned a season pass to Seven Peaks for a few years in a row and only went half a dozen times.

No

No

Yes

I loved the water park. Utah needs a water park where a lot of people are going to use it. That location is perfect and it needs an update. Find a company that will spend the money to do the repairs and make it safe.

Whatever you do with $500,00 to $600,00 will not be as fun for the community as a water park.

Yes, there is a need for a water park in Salt Lake City. Cowabunga Bay is a great water park, but mostly caters to younger children. A water park for older children and teenagers is greatly needed. I think it would be really cool if the architects for this project could recreate something similar to the old Saltair building, which was located at the Great Salt Lake, and build a water park around this theme. Saltair is a piece of Utah history and a place that our grandparents and many visitors flocked to for swimming and water activities. I think a water park commemorating some Utah History and sharing how our relatives also enjoyed water activities could be a neat project that could provide a place for families to enjoy and share their own water activity memories.
Potentially. Shifting to another type of public space like a natural park would be nice too and help build the neighborhood.

Activities as a big water park uses a lot of water and being with the water situation water conservation would ideal and no use keeping old outdated equipment.

No, as more apartment buildings are crowding in. Our community needs to meet the needs of that growth. Practical prudent planning for the future is more important than ever. I believe something like a public school, hospital or a park that would accommodate farmers market and playgrounds.

I wouldn’t mind one so close to home but there is Cherry Hill and Lagoon to the north and Seven Peaks down south.

Yes. And it would be amazing if it would be affordable to attend the water park. Or even make it less about giant slides, but resemble natural swimming areas found around the state of Utah.

Yes I would as my family enjoyed using the water park in the summers. But a nice community center with indoor water park amenities would be wonderful, similar to Provo’s recreation center and it’s great indoor/outdoor water park space.

I think you could keep a lot of the original design and land and build a multi area dog park.

Yes. The park was a frequent attraction for our family. A place to cool down in the hot summer months.

But maybe there is a more year round concept that is possible with some thought; for 4 seasons or more seasons use.

Yes, that or a splash park.

If there was still demand for a water park I wouldn’t mind.

I would like to see the water park turned into a skateboard park. It would bring people from all over and would not require much upkeep or investment of funds and it would not require the use of water!

The waterpark was already loosing visitors, I don’t see another one being a good idea.

It should be a surf park.

Not necessarily. It's very sad this is lost and a part of me doesn't want to let it go, but as a lap swimmer I prefer indoor pools with fewer distractions. I would rather see more adult fitness things like a parcourse (such as we no longer have in Murray Park), or the large, sturdy all-ages playground (that can be used by adult-sized people as well as kids) at Lodestone Park in Kearns.

Yes!!!

No, amusement parks are pretty gross places that really only kids enjoy and these days most kids would rather be at home, renewing the grounds as a community garden, dog park with walking trails, or making the area very useful as cheap housing, maybe a trailer park would be very beneficial to the community.

Yes. I think that it serves an undeserved location of the community. We used to frequently go to the park on summer days after work for several hours. We also had Lagoon passes, but enjoyed the close proximity of the water park. I understand the economics of trying to bring back a water park that's in this star of disrepair, but if the money was there, I would love to see it turned into a modern park/community pool. I think it would be very popular if done right.

Yes.

No. With Covid, that seems like a tremendous amount of money to spend in the midst of a pandemic that has no real time-line of slowing. We are still in a place where we have no way of knowing if people would feel safe enough to go. Even a year or two from now. If ever.

Yes.
Unfair to compare 20 million for a finished park to 600,000 for clean-up only, noting that future development costs would still have to be added on. 20 million is a lot of money, but the kids are worth it -- they need somewhere to go to have wholesome fun. Can't vote on a new water part without knowing what could be done to prevent future fires, vandalism, etc. If a repeat of the current outcome can be prevented, I'm all for the new one--we had some good times there.

No, how about a dog park?

Only if the rebuild had a serious (probably costly) eye toward water sustainability. Water is our most precious resource in this desert. A water park would be nice, as our climate warms, but I worry about the park's impact on the local Jordan River ecosystem.

Open space with trees

Yes

I have fond memories of the water parks there, but I'd prefer that the land be used for something else.

City park

No

Waterpark my hope, if had to be something else a community fishing pond would be perfect for that spot!

No

I wouldn't be opposed but 20 million seems like a huge hurdle to clear to ever make it feasible.

No

Yes, there are no other water parks.

An epic sporting contest. Fill it with mud. Fill it with foam. Fill it with fun.

No

Yes and No. Save what water areas are not leaking, destroy what is leaking and fill in with dirt. Add parks and recreation for events

I do not care

No, water parks are a waste of resources and germ infested areas. It is not a good use of space for everyone to use.

Yes!

Sure.

No

No - particularly if it is closed on Sundays as the old one was.

No

No. While the park has been popular in the past, the cost and commitment to keep the park running and making upgrades to keep the park competitive is more than a publicly owned facility can sustain. I'm afraid we will be once again stuck with a white elephant.

Yes 100% there is not another one anywhere close. We would definitely be season pass holders!!

No

Yes, I love water parks

I would support some type of active recreation area, maybe a smaller water park with other activities

Not necessarily.

Yes

Yes

No. We only get a free months of the year for outdoor swimming. Is rather see something that can be used year round

No

No

No---I think we could use it for green space instead. I think a public park and disc golf course would be great. Opens it up for everyone and gives disc golfers another SLC option (also very cheap to build and maintain).

Yes. There are so few places to take the kids for a water park in the valley. I would love to see it rebuilt. I would even support a small tax hike or donation request to aid in its construction.

YES WE NEED A WATER PARK IN SALT LAKE COUNTY.

Yes. I believe there would be interest by the residents of Salt Lake valley and beyond to have such a feature. I spent many summers at Raging Waters and would love other kids to have that experience. My family has always enjoyed spending time on our many beautiful lakes during the summer time, I would rather not see the land used for a water park.

Yes and no. Anything that includes public green space is fine with me.
No
No.
I don't want a water park
Yes
Yes. There are well over 1,000,000 people in the Salt lake valley. If you had a virtual fundraiser of some sort I'm sure almost every resident here would be willing to pitch in $20+ to help meet the financial requirements of a new water park. Especially those of us who grew up going to Raging Waters.
No. The water park is seasonal, with high maintenance and operational costs. The land could be better utilized by the community. Return it to a more natural state! Perhaps a community garden interwoven with paths and sitting areas.
No
Yes
Absolutely, I would prefer the land be used for a water park.

Could do an elaborate splash pad. Part for small children part towards older children. Still water but not as much money as slides and pools. I live near and my children would love it. With the virus though most aren't using parks under the restriction so it could be less used for a while.
No.
Absolutely
No.
No
Yes, the Westside needs some fun (and safe) places for kids and families.
Yes, I would prefer a water park. The park that it used to be is located conveniently for freeway access. It is the closest water slide park with a wave pool/pool to me, in Sandy. It could be a great gathering place again.
Only if it were insured. To many injuries.
Yes, because we do not have a water park in the area. But only if costs were not an issue.
I dont think it matters what the "people" want, you'll end up building MORE apartments, condos or townhouses
No. We already have Lagoon. It could retain an area with water features where pipes are still intact. Perhaps the "geysers" that children like to play in and a large natural park.
No. I think the city should build a skatepark or bike park.
I think it would be a great place to put in a disc golf course! While are a few courses that already exist in Salt Lakecounty, the majority of them are in parks that are frequented by walkers and such, and as disc golf becomes more popular, it creates more congestion in each of them. Opening a new park that is focused on disc golf will be useful in providing an additional location for disc golfers, as well as reducing congestion in other parks.
Yes. I grew up spending every summer at Raging Waters and I think it is a great adventure for children and adults. I believe that Northern Utah would benefit from another water park.
No. With 17 acres in the midst of a pandemic, a resource center for unsheltered people including a clinic would be a better use for that space
No, there are plenty of water parks available.
No.
Shipping container homes for the homeless to get back on their feet.

No.
No.
No
If it couldn’t make it as a Waterpark once, it probably won’t make it as a Waterpark again. Just sayin’

Why not use existing hills and slides and convert the park into an “Alpine slide”? No water, still a great place for kids to enjoy outside, use new management... all good. Make sure there are paths and maybe a bike path for me to ride on and everyone is happy!

Yes, having a water park to go to besides local pools is a treat for families wanting to do something different.

Yes

Wetlands

No. If you’re going to build a new water park, do it somewhere else. So much of the Jordan River corridor and floodplain has been lost to channelization and development. This is a rare opportunity to restore a large section of that lost habitat and landscape. Do that instead.

I like the idea of a water park being there on a romantic level, but in truth, I only ever visited the park once since I moved to Salt Lake in 2005. Granted, my lack of desire to return did have to do with the park’s state of repair and cleanliness. I’ll say, yes, I’d prefer a modernized, safe, clean, and adult friendly water park.

No

No, it should be taken down and turned into a waterski and wakeboard tournament lake with the use of the Jordan River as a water source. That or a waterski cable park or surf park. Allow fishing and paddle boarding and canoeing.

Yes

Not opposed to a water park, but expansion of Glendale golf course should be considered! That is a beloved SLC golf course and a redesign/upgrade would be welcome. With the popularity of golf growing, now would be a great time. And the proximity makes complete sense!

No. We live in a desert.

Yes but that seems unrealistic

No, water parks feel like a dying industry.

no

No, that's an incredibly irresponsible use of water

No!

No.

Yes a water park in Salt Lake would be great. There is a lack of water park type pools in the Salt Lake Valley.

No

Yes

I would prefer a park to a water park. This has a great access point to the Jordan River. It would be nice to see that improved.

Yes

No

No

Most DEFINITELY!! We need a water park here... That was my families go to all summer every summer! We sure do miss it!

Neutral

In a new world, Covid, etc, water parks are outdated attraction.

Yes

No I would like to see a park with a big play ground for our kids in the Glendale community. Also a place where the people that walk the trail or bike can sit down at tables and maybe a swimming pool. Also tables too have lunch with family members. And a basketball court for the kids in the Glendale community. Thank you.

Yes. I miss the water park; it was a great way to spend family time. I hope the city can find some way to restore the water park.

No

I think it should be turned over to a privately held company. Many great memories always seemed busy during. The summer so yes it would be nice to have a water park again.

Yes

There are plenty of other water parks in Utah, it would be awesome if this was turned into a community garden or large park. I would love to have one of the slides to put at our cabin!

No, there are enough water parks. Do something else with the land.

I think we need a water park in the city -- something for families to do together -- make it have places for picnics and maybe family reunions -- something for families

No. The city needs green spaces, not some cut rate theme park for trashy people.

Sure. I think we could use more water parks.
Yes, I would
Yes. Please make the park into a Wynwood Walls type area like in Miami. It’s incredible.
Yes. A solid outdoor water recreation area would be great for the Salt Lake Valley
Yes
Yes
No. I’d prefer a competition swimming facility similar to Weyerhaeuser King County Aquatic Center in Federal Way, WA. The swimming community in Utah lacks a true competition facility in the state that can adequately accommodate spectators and swimmers for big meets, let alone practice sessions for HS and club teams.
Yes. SL County should take ownership and turn it into a rec center or something that is ran by the county like other rec centers throughout the valley. This could be a great money generator for the county if they Invest in making a water park.
no
No, but if the piping infrastructure can be maintained I’d like to see it used for water conservation. Perhaps a giant cistern.
No.
Yes

Yes! It’s a historic part of Salt Lake. I have fond memories of visiting 7 Peaks. The city could use a water park instead of more golf courses.
No
No
Stop, the projections in the second paragraph are absolutely distorted to the point of making the entire survey an exercise in absurdity. Any thinking person cannot take this seriously. I do not have a preference how it is used. Definitely not government owned or operated.
No
Yes.
No, use it for more green, natural space. Not just another family park, but a true nature preserve, with lots of trees, benches, and no concrete. Not just another park with a playground, but a place to escape to nature.
Yes, the location a good and centralized for local residents to access.
A nice green spot would work as well.

housing project
No
Yes, and food truck courts.
*were
no. water parks are expensive to visit and presumably expensive to maintain Yea I would love to see a new and approved water park.
No, i believe there could be better recreational options for the city depending on funds. I also think if funds are limited to providing something unique that leaders need to think in innovative new ways to use the land even if it means dividing up the property for better uses.
No
no
No.
No, green space
Sure, it doesn’t seem financially realistic
Yes!!! Please bring a nice new fresh water park!
Yes

yes. Currently nothing like this exists in SLC and is a great benefit to the surrounding community.
No. Post Covid a water park is not a good idea.
yes
No. Let’s make it a skate park, mountain bike park, and kids playground. We could all benefit more from free outdoor activities rather than pay to play in water or slides. Plus most people just go to Lagoon.
No

Yes. I would like to see this land be used for the Glendale community. A public rec center, water park etc...

Turn it into a local art project like Meow Wolf or Dreamscapes!

Yes love water parks

Yes

No

yes-or another hang out for the kids.

not a skate park

Yes a new water park would be great, but must justify costs

Yes!

Another water park would be awesome! There are too few considering the population here in Utah.

No, I think there are better uses for that land. In all honesty my perspective (a resident of Salt Lake Valley all my life) of Glendale Community is that it’s a “run down” or unsafe neighborhood. I would suggest developing the land so that it is inviting not only to members of Glendale Community but to people across the Salt Lake Valley. I’m a big fan of pickleball and the sport itself is growing rapidly across both younger and older generations. I think this would be a great opportunity to develop a nice park and state of the art pickle ball courts. The State of Utah has a strong pickleball community, but there isn’t a facility that is solely dedicated to the sport and has the capability of hosting large competitions and/or events. If Utah were to help grow the sport of pickleball we could be known for pickleball in the western half of the United States and become nationally recognized for supporting the sport. This would lead to an increase of community and out of state support!

Yes. I would like to see the park opened back up for the public’s enjoyment.

No

Maybe a smaller public pool facility with a park. Maybe similar to Murray park with green space trails and a recreation center

A race strip

Yes

Yes

Yes, I can’t understand why the park was not Maintained and protected by the city since they are the owners they should be responsible.

Yes

Yes, this would be a prime location for residents in Salt Lake City to enjoy a water park close to their home. Currently residents must travel farther, outside Salt Lake City boundaries to enjoy a water park , that isn’t a community rec center. This water park would help the growth of the near by business by more customers visiting this area.

No, I would instead support riverside conservation/development including public open space and a dog park.

Something for Children to enjoy would be good. Swimming is also a good idea. The water park was very beloved, and it would be great to see something like that again.

Yes!!!

Yes.

Yes definitely.

I wanna snowboard

Not necessarily. I think something like a splash pad, such as the one built in Bluffdale, might be a good alternative.

ABSOLUTELY

Yes

No

Some sort of green space.

No it’s just a waste. Should make it a fishing pond

Community green space with trees, grass, walking trails, ponds, and a skate park.

No

No. Build a park with splash pad.

Yes. I have two children who used to enjoy this park in it’s previous incarnations.

Nope. Water parks are gross and tacky

Sure.

no water park. it is not used enough.

Yes. Anything is better than overpriced apartments.

No.
Yes.
Yes, it’s a staple of Salt Lake City and with not much around as far as local amusements. I believe the park should be kept as a water park. I do however believe that the facility should be dismantled to make it safer and make room for more cutting edge equipment and facilities.

Yes kids need someplace to go during the summer
You have water parks in other more influential areas; the west quadrant residents should have the same opportunity for our children and families.

Yes somewhere for young people to hangout
Yes if it could be used for a water park that would be amazing. It is more than just a water park. It has been some place families could go to enjoy spending timers togeather. A place generations of families have gone.

No. A dog park or expand the tennis courts and/or golf course.

No

Yes. We don’t have much water perks here in Utah. Would be fun to have. Also went since I was a kid and I would want to take my future children.

Yes!!!
Yes. It has been the closest water park in Salt Lake are. Great memories. Not enough water parks around.
I wouldn’t mind
That would be great.
Yes

yes! salt lake lacks good water parks
Yes. I think it could potentially be a different sort of water park than it is now, (splash pad, and pool for example) mixed with something else.

yes! I have lived across the street from the park for more than 30 years! It is a huge part of our community and we miss it dearly!
Please save it!!!!!!!

Yes and no. I wouldn’t do a water park. But a splash pad and city park would be wonderful.

Yes

Absolutely. Our kids need places to go to spend the summers with their friends. Not just sitting in front of a computer to pass the time.

Water Park. That was the stated use when purchased from the federal government.

No

That would be great. I remember going there as a kid and it should definitely be a water park again

Yes, I think we need one in Salt Lake. But it needs owners that will run it correctly

Yes

No

Yes

Yes. If it could be brought up to code its a great water park

Yes

The land definitely needs to remain a nice water park accessible to all residents. With Seven Peaks being gone there is no major water parks in Salt Lake county only small city pools.

Yes

No

No!

Yes, or something fun!

No water parks a pee puddles. Gross!

Yes. Good times I had there. Its a shame SLC is left without a water park of that type now. No park build after makes the cut.

Yes

Yes, the neighborhood kids need a place to go in the summer.
Not necessarily. As long as the land remains a park of some kind, I’m ok with it. I do not want to see it developed into housing or commercial development.

Yes
Yes
Yes
I’d prefer it become a natural area.
Yes
No, the land could be used for something much more beneficial to the surrounding community.
Yes
Definitely. There is no competition around.
Yes
Yeah, the infrastructure is already there
I don’t see a new water park being desirable. Lagoon is not far from here and the world is different since COVID. A natural outdoor space would be best especially with the amount of development of huge buildings that has taken place lately.
Yes
Yes
Yes, it gets really hot in Utah in the summer and water parks are something that people of all ages can enjoy. I loved Seven Peaks and wish it stayed longer.
A new water park would be fun. Although, seeing that we are still dealing with this pandemic, it wouldn’t be a cost effective plan since we have no idea when the pandemic will be over.
No
No let’s make it a Renaissance Faire. The Utah Renaissance Faire is looking for a new place to do their event.
No
If cost were not an issue, it would be nice to have a water park here. However, in my opinion the cost is prohibitive to do so, and the history of problems on site makes me think another use might be better.
Yes
No.
Sure
No

No
The water park was popular and a good addition to activities in Salt Lake City and County. Yes, if cost was not an issue, I would support the land continue as a water park.
No
Yea
I would rather have it be a nice park
Yes
Yes, a new Waterpark would be great
Yes
I would prefer the land to be used to fulfill a myriad of things the community wants (e.g. a small splash-pad, conservation space near the Jordan River corridor, natural gardens, walking and bicycle-access paths, ADA playground equipment, and other functional uses).
Yes!
No it should be used for affordable housing
Sure! It was a fun place to go. I don’t even know where a water park is anymore.
Yes! Lagoon is the only major amusement park in the area. You guys should rebuild the park so there is more variety and options for people in the SLC area.
Yes! This area of west valley needs more activities for families to do during the summer
Absolutely! I’ve been in the neighborhood of Glendale all my life and going to the water park was one of my favorite activities to do during the summer. If cost wasn’t a factor then I would enjoy having a place to go swimming and be with family. Now that it shut down it is a massive eye sore and if the cost to repair is too high then tearing it down for something for the community is better.
No, there is a reason the property has not succeeded as a water park
Yes
No, do something else
YES!! I remember as a kid going there and there needs to be more things for kids to do outside of the home and on there electronic devices.

Yes

Absolutely

No

It would be more beneficial to use the land to build more jobs for residents in the area. Either some office space, or a small retail outlet.

Yes

A water park is preferable because we don’t have a lot of water areas. But it has not been taken care of and keeps getting vandalized. Time for something new for that land.

Water Park would be awesome, but the wave pool could be covered like Layton does and used during the winter as well.

No, something new would be better such as an airsoft field.

Yes

Yes, I have find memories of that park and it would be awesome.

no.

would not mind a new water park there.

No

No. Redo the golf course and move the clubhouse to that side. Make the club house large enough to host corporate tournaments and wedding receptions. Salt Lake City does not have a course with a large enough clubhouse to do that. You could then develop where the clubhouse and driving range are now.

Yes

No

Yes, this was my childhood water park growing up. I would love to bring my children here.

Yes, restore the water park to its state before being abandoned

Yes

Yes

No

Yes

I think it would be good as a water park as long as it was reasonably priced and well maintained. We had a lot of fun going there over the years but definitely noticed the decline in upkeep and maintenance. I think if not a water park an all abilities park with water features would be great. Thunder junction all abilities park in St. George is a great option for families that includes a variety of things to do as well as ways to cool off in the summer. They also have a splash pad with a lot of rivers and places to play. Wardle fields in Bluffdale is also a great example of a variety of things to do especially in the summer.

No strong opinion, but I own a house nearby so I am tired of the "eyesore".

No

Yes, it seems to me the mistake was not renewing the lease with Seven Peaks without having a clear plan and tenant to keep the park open. While I wish it was in a more central location, I can’t imagine another use for the property.

I think that if it weren’t an issue it would be nice to have a water park there, but I don’t think the demand is there as much as it once was. So I don’t think it would be practical. Though it will be sad to see it go.

Absolutely! Do you not realize how many jobs that place provides, and how much revenue is pumped into the local economy? People will drive down here if Provo is too far.

Not to mention, the park in Provo has been finding ways to operate in the winter as well, making it operational for more then just the summer.

Yes I would Love to see It Transformed back into a water park.

Not necessarily. A regular park would be great too.

No, I would prefer to see something fun for kids to do. Like the Rush Funplex in Layton, or a Boondocks. There is nothing for kids to do in salt lake it feels like. You could use the outdoor part for like a mini golf or Go-Karts. Just something new instead of industrial buildings. You took down Rocky Mountain Raceway, now a business park. Lost Hollywood Connection. Now vacant. It just seems like everything fun is going away.
Absolutely. Raging Waters was the place to be back in the day.

As a side note, you should change the part of your intro from $500 and $600,000, to $500,000 and $600,000 to avoid people getting the idea this problem can be fixed for a measly $500.

No. Take the opportunity to make the Glendale golf course the number one destination in the state. Build a short beginners course and a new state of the art club house and driving range.

Yes

I'd like a more natural interactive water feature

Yes

Yes

Yes!

No we don’t need a water park

Extension of Jordan River Parkway. Remove the industrial parcel between the JRP and the old water park. Perhaps subdivide to sell a part of the west parcel with the proceeds to buy-out the industrial parcel to the east between the JRP and the Park. Create a regional-scale park designed to attract residents and visitors from beyond the area. Connect to the JRP. Install attractive splash pads, plant grand shade trees, perhaps a small amphitheater or soccer pitch with grass hills for informal seating.

Absolutely! It helps the city economy. It's a fun way to spend Summers and would make fir great memories for future generations.

Yes. I think salt lake could use a large recreational attraction of some sort.

Yes

Yes

Yes! We need one is Salt Lake Valley. They are so much better than local community pools.

No.

No

Yes.

No, build a more natural water feature that can have boats or kayaks.

Yes

Yes. There needs to be more water parks in the area.

I remember going to raging waters as a kid and spending many great moments there. Really sad to see it in this shape. Maybe a waterpark is not the best thing for that area at this time perhaps something that would be better

Yes - salt lake doesn't have one. Some sort of park or large recreation area with a variety of activity space (rock climbing, skate park, kids area, etc)

Yes

Yes. I think the land should go to water park of some kind. Even if they redid most of it and kept some of the working parts.

Yes

No.

Not if there was a better option for the whole community

No. They’re unsafe and vectors for disease.

I do not care if it is used for a water park.

Yes

Yes

Yes, I enjoyed the fact that there was a waterpark so close to downtown that I could visit in the summer.

No

Yes, this is a great place for a water park.

No

Yes!

Yes!

Yeah I would like another water park

I am not opposed to a water park, but I think a park this is usable year round by a more diverse group of citizens would be better.

no

Yes.

Yes

It would be ok, there isn’t one in salt lake county so it would be nice to have that revenue.
Yes, it had been so nice to have a large water park close by.
Yes, there isn’t a good one in Salt Lake!
Yes. It should be a water park.
No! Piccleball courts with lights!
no
No
Yes
Yes please
No, it’s COVID-19 time. I don’t want to be sharing water with strangers.
Yes

Yes
Yes
Where not an issue? If they were not an issue, yes! Water parks are fun
No. A community park with lake, dog runs, and skate park would be more beneficial.
Yes, it would be great if there was a water park for the city. I have said it in other surveys but the city is lacking water recreation/pools available within city limits for residents.
No the evaporation of water is just a waste.
Yes
If another water park was to be put in place, that would be wonderful. However, I feel as if the property should be used as some sort of park or attraction. I do not believe it should be used for businesses or housing.
sure, would be nice to have a CITY water park.

Yes, it’s a great spot for a new water park
Yes
Yes
No
Yes I would
Yes
no
No
Yes - it provides a community and recreational space for west side residents

No
As long as if the water park is intensely fun with those insane slides. I don’t care where its built.
No
Yes
Yes.
Keep it a water park and fix it back up!
Yes
No
Yes
No
Yes
Yes

Yes I think we need a new water park for the public

No preference. Usually they are too high price for my family to visit or they are all cement and uncomfortable to visit.
Yes I would prefer a water park.

Personally no, I don’t have kids and I think water parks are gross there always seems to be a nasty used bandaid or hairball lurking on the slide steps. Also Utah is a 4 seasons State so it’s not a very efficient use of the space. However, I’m not opposed to it being used for a water park if the majority of residents are interested.

Yes, but I would suggest modeling it after the provo rec center where there is indoor and outdoor space allowing for year round revenue.
Yes
Yes
Yes

Skatepark
Yes. I and my family have loved visiting this place in the past and I’m so disappointed to see the state in which it has fallen. It was a great venue for church, work, and family parties.

Yes

No, I would prefer a food forest for the local community to be apart of
No

No. Soccer fields should be implemented.
Yes
Yes
Yes

Yes, plenty of other options for water exist.

No, it doesn’t matter. Just please beautify the area. That place is now a hotspot for teenagers looking for trouble.

Yes we need another water park in Salt Lake County.

A community center. A venue, with outdoor gardens, art, etc. The indoor venue would host live music, open mic/dj nights, paint nights, community outreach events, classes on permaculture, and sustainability.

Yes

It doesn’t matter what it becomes as long as the current derelict is removed.

Yes, and open as a “sledding”, park for winter months.
Yes.

No, remove the water and just build a park. i.e. west side sugarhouse park

Yes

Yes I would

Water parks are an enjoyable place to recreate. My opinion on building another waterpark is they are limited by the seasons. State land should be a place that anyone can go to and enjoy themselves. So I don’t think that is the wisest use of the property to rebuild the waterpark.

Absolutely!

Yes

Yes

No, I would be open to other options. A bike park would be so awesome! Similar to trailside. I get that Park City has mountains to work with and this site is flat. However, you could still make an awesome bike park.

Yes. We need to re-build a water park. Costs will always be an issue. But we don’t need more ball fields, green grass, picnic area, skateboard parks, dog parks or nature parks. Lots of those already exist. But there is no public water park in SL County. So, let’s find a way to partner with SL County, and the State if need be, to use ZAP or other funds and build a new theme park water park. Other places have done it. So can we.

No

Maybe - it needs to be something that all people can use for a decent price or not cost at all. (The city needs to go after the current owners and make them pay for it).

Yes! It’s a valuable asset to the city and the neighborhood.

Yes! I would love to see that water park up and running again. I would like to take my kids there and let them know I went there as a kid.

No.

Well, because of land use restrictions I’m okay with it staying as a water park. Seems like affordable housing is a big issue in The Valley and 17 acres of open land is hard to come by now. It’s too bad you’ve painted yourself into this corner.

Yes

Yes

Yes, this is was my favorite place to go as a child raised in Utah.

Yes and no. Water park would be great but turning it into a destination water park. Include camping sites, cabins, and other areas to get out of the sun to not add to the increasing melanoma diagnoses in Utah.

Yes

Yes please, keep it a water park.
You've given me 1000 characters and asked a yes/no question, lol. So I'll say yes, that always seemed a good use of the space and many people in the valley have great memories of the park. So, assuming it could be financially viable, if love to see a similar, positive family/kid venue replace it. Another thought would be to expand the Glendale golf course footprint to be world class golf practice center, with programs specifically geared toward getting kids involved in that great sport. If I had to guess, you could get Tony Finau involved to help draw kids. (If you're not aware, Tony is a very highly ranked, and VERY popular professional golfer who learned to play the game at Glendale).

Yes, a water park would be great to have at that location.
It was a fun place but I believe with the location, it could make an amazing park. It would be amazing to have a park of this size if we put the money from recreating the waterpark into plants and such

Yes!

No

Yes.

Yes I would like to see another water park built here. This site has long provided inner city and underserved kids and families to have access to a water park at reasonable prices. We have put so many burdens on these families on the west side (half way houses, prisons, and homeless centers) that it is past time to give back and invest in the community. I would like my son's memories of this area to include more than seeing homeless people shooting up drugs in front of his school because my memories, my dads memories and my grandparents memories of Glendale hold so much more.

No

I grew up going to the water park and went up until it closed. I would love to keep it as a water park, especially because there isn’t another one similar in the Salt Lake valley...but only if it’s feasible.

Yes

No

Yes

No

Yes depending on the price of addmition and as long as it’s affordable to all

Yes, a water park is a nice place for the community to spend time.

Used for a water park. Make it an indoor outdoor water park something big that would make money. SLC utah has nothing like it.

Yes!

Yes - I think it’s important to save history and work to keep places for families to play.

yes

No. Turn it into green space with park pavilions.

Yes.

Yes

No

I think a water park is nice. I went to seven peaks a few times. I’d like something more appealing to all demographics (meaning older people too) since I’m too old for the fast water slides now but would enjoy a lazy river or similar. Also I would not be likely to use it during the pandemic.

No. Water parks are likely a thing of the past for the foreseeable future. Also, it’s “were”, not where...

yes

Yes definitely

Yes

Pickle ball court, rock climbing or skate park

YES! The salt lake valley don’t have anything like this park... cowabunga bay dont come close.

Yes, SLC needs a water park

Yes I would prefer the land to be a water park if nothing else. I've gone there since I came to Utah and I've taken my kids their since they was babies. I believe to just update to a new water park. Rebuild basically.

Yes or just build a reservoir like black ridge in herriman

Yes

Yes. There is very few actual water parks in Utah.

I would not. I believe you could build a disc golf course on that property.

No, more citizens would be able to use the space if it were not a water park.
I would rather it be made into an indoor pool facility and park a lot like the lions recreation center in Holladay. The area of Glendale and west valley have long been neglected and ignored. If there was something was built that was for all people ala Kroc Center in Salem, Oregon maybe get the Kroc Foundation involved.

No
Noo

Yeah that would be cool to have something close and not have to drive to Provo.

Yes.

I support taking down an old dilapidated park. If money weren’t an issue it would be amazing to have a new and improved water park as I grew up going to that one as a kid and made so many fun memories!

YES!!! I loved the convenience of attending this location when it was in operation. I understand the challenges but would love to see a renovated or new waterpark!

No
Yes

Not really. I think a pool would be better

Sure. We don’t have one near this side of the valley and would be one of the few attractions to the neighborhood. Maybe add a county fair type feeling with having a food truck court, which would support small businesses.

No

No I’d prefer the land be used for a apt complex for low income housing and section 8 only residents.

Yes, if it was affordable for the people who live in the neighborhood to utilize. More similar in pricing to the other city owned pools rather than an amusement park.

Yes I would love a waterpark if Coronavirus was not such a big concern right now.

Yes I prefer it to still be a water park

Yes

No. If it couldn’t be profitable before, what has changed that would make it profitable now?

No

Yes

Yes! Water park there is a must!

No. It would be better to have green space (that is free for all to use. Maybe put in a splash pad if you feel you need a water feature, but we don’t need a water park. Waste of money. Put in walking / bike trails.

No

No water park: it should be turned into a world class skate/BMX Park. Maybe also use some of the land for a park/splash pad.

Yes

Yes

I’d like to to be a waterpark. We need fun family activities in the area. If they made the waterpark more dense (but kept around the same number of attractions with some thrill) and used other parts of the land for other uses I’m fine with that too.

No, its a waste of precious land that should be utilized to bring back a natural face lift to the hideous display it currently is.

Yes

no

No. Make it a x-games, skate, bmx, and stunt park.

No, housing

Yes

Absolutely I would want a waterpark still.

No, but it would be nice to have another water park somewhere.

I would prefer that the city turn it into an urban beech. With a small entry fee of 2 dollars. Bozeman beech is an example of what it could be. Just make a natural looking lake with swimming paddle boarding etc.

No

Yes

No. Anyone who wants to go to a water park is just going to go to lagoon anyway. What we really need around here is a wake park or a tow cable park. In the winter it would just freeze over and be the largest skate rink in the world as well.

Yes

No, i wouldn’t not want another water park.

yes or no, there are a couple of locations already close for this need.
Yes its the only one in Salt Lake county

No

Yes. Guarantee the loan of a new purveyor and operator.

No. Open spaces and housing are more important than another water park.

Indifferent

Yes!!!!

Yes. It was nice to have a waterpark in our neighborhood.

Yes

No

Yes, or some smaller water venues and public attractions.

Yes

No

Yes, but a small water park with lots of parkland and maybe a fishing pond.

Definitely not

As fun as it has been, I do not think that is the best use of the land to be available for everyone to enjoy.

Yes!

Yes

Yes yes yes yes YES!!!!!

Who wrote this thing? Full of typos. I would prefer it to remain a water park if possible, if not, please replace it with another water associated recreational area such as a splash pad.

Yes! Why should we have to go to St George for a decent water park?! We need things to do as a family that don’t include going to the mountains and purchasing expensive off road toys that no one can store anyways

No

I think they should make a new waterpark

Yes if it was a non-traditional park like a surfing, wakeboarding, skimboarding park

Yes, absolutely. There is a demand and need for a facility just like this in the area.

Yes

Only if it is owned and operated by the city

Yes, absolutely.

Not necessarily - I would prefer it not be used for housing or a strip mall or something along those lines. It would be nice if the land was used for some kind of recreation.

No

Yes. Look at cae wakeboard parks like they have in CA, TX, and all over FL

Water park in the summer & ice-skating in the winter.

Yes

Yes

Rebuild the water park its recreation in the summer to help keep kids out of trouble and off the streets

Yes! I think a water park should be built because slc valley doesn't have enough good water parks like that in slc.

Yes

No way! There are plenty of water parks in Utah and we don't need to repair this one. There are many better uses than a water park, like a shopping center.

As long as the new water park is run good, unlike Seven Peaks was, it would be nice to have another water park, especially since the others here in Utah are way too far away from Salt Lake City.

Not if chlorinated, fluoridated waters are going to seep into the natural habitat and rivers. It should be made into a lush living garden forest for the sake of preparing for the coming disasters. Garden forests because these reseed themselves and do not require much up keep and they provide food.

YES!!!
No. I believe you can recycle most of the materials and use it as a regulated skate/bike park. You can use a lot of the old materials and waste to create and maintain a better and safer area for kids and pros to skate, bike, rollerblade, and scoot. We could hire staff to help with info & enforce safety regulation. If turned into a recreation park, we could use volunteers and paid staff to help with the initial clean up and rebuild. Once rebuilt, it could be opened as a new and structurally creative park (under OSHA regulation of course)

I actually own an Events business and would love to take this project on myself as a contribution to our community. I don't have a lot of capital to my business and feel like this would help our company (Solid Events) gain traction for future projects. Please please dont tear it down, our generation had so many memories their and we would love to see the park continue on in a new and improved way!!!

Yes. As a kid I loved to spend my summer at the park, I worked there for a summer and was also a pass holder. We need a fun water park here in salt lake. We have nothing more than Lagoon and that place is to packed to enjoy.

Yes, make it a water park again!
Yes, a new water park would be nice.
Something water related like a splash pad/park
It should become part of the Jordan River, it could be a park and space for community gardens. Also, you could put in an outdoor pool for folks who like to swim.

Yes
I think a really nice water park would be great!
Same place
Yes. I would love to see something for all residents, young and old. Since likes are very different by age, it would be nice to see almost 2 separate parks within one park. This would allow all residents to be able to enjoy the park and their own level of activity. And due to the area we live in, actual security. Not wanna be cops, but true, trained security.
Absolutely
Yes
Yes, indoor year round water park like Wisconsin Dells would Ben amazing!
No
Yes
Yes we need the recreation in the area.
Yes
Yes
no, we dont need more water use in the desert i would like to see the park converted to a skatepark and bike park. as well as pollenator/ wildlife garden with native flowering and fruiting plants.

If COVID didn’t exist, yes

Yes but a splash pad would suffice
Yes!
Yes
Yes. Love community water parks.
Yes, for the sake of not having to travel so far to get to a water park.
Yes would love a water park that is safe!!
Yes. There isn’t a water park in Salt Lake City and it would be fun if it was made more like cowabunga bay or maybe a combo park/pool/splash pad.
Having a safe water park would be ideal. But I would prefer a man made lake with beach access, splash pad, running trails, bike park, skate park, small Amphitheater for local artists to perform. Please make it family friendly.

Public park
Yes.
No
Yes would be awesome to keep it if possible
No
Yes
No. Something that can be used year round.
Yes!!! Utah needs more!
A massive park with something for everyone! Playground equipment, open natural space and a big off leash dog area
No
Yes
No. Reclaim the land for disc golf course and park.
Yes, I have great memories of my summers at Raging Waters. Would love to have a place in the city that is similar to share with my kids.
Yes I would like to see a new water park put there since we have enough of everything else but entertainment from a water park or theme park.
Yes!
Yes
No
Yes
No, there are better uses.
Undecided
I think the bones should be left and the city should recycle it into a skate park.
It would be a really cool idea and neat use for something old evolving into something rad for the kids and families that like action sports in our community. Surely with all the outdoor companies around Utah they might even help turn it into a cool skate or bmx training camp.
Absolutely yes. I was taking my kids there all summer long through the pass of all passes. They miss it a lot.
Yes
Yes I would love a new water park that is in the Salt Lake Valley
Yes please use the land for another water park there. raging waters was a staple of summer time in many childhoods and brought so much fun and so many great times and memories
YES!
Not necessarily
Sure, why not? Something year round may be a better alternative however.
I don't think a new water park is needed. If they were to build a new one I would hope it is done in a sustainable way, both economically and environmentally.
No
Yes, having a waterpark in the heart of Salt Lake city is important to me; the younger generation needs something such as a waterpark to keep them entertained and out of trouble.
Yes

Make it a water park

Yes
Yes.
I’d like to know what the ideas are for something new
Yes
No.
Sure!
We can build a water park after we solve the homeless problem. Absolutely not.
The water park is part of so many SLC sons and daughters’ memories and it should be rebuilt and reopen to the public with or without public management.
Yes. Salt lake needs more water parks like this.
Yes, I loved it and miss it. If I said yes to supporting disassembly I feel you would find a way to use the land for some other way that none of us people want and weasel your way through and ignore us. Hence I said no to the question above. I would love for a better water or amusement park to be put in its place, whichever is cheaper since saving money should be top priority.

Yes
No
Absolutely
No.
Yes
Salt lake could always use another family place.

Uae the land for a community pool or open park that can compliment the terrain and natural features.

YES
Water parks helps communities in general.
The management is always a problem in running the park. All parks are profitable.

yes
No
It should be a water park
Definitely
Yes that would be cool. Or another attraction
Water park
Yes we need a place for kids to play but we have the added challenge of keeping a new facility safe from burgeoning gang activity.

Yes. I grew up going to ragging waters and its sad that this new generation is missing out on nostalgic experiences such as a local water park.

No
No

No, I’d rather have another public park and disc golf course
Yes
Sure
Yes
yes!
Not unless it was a splash park like the Wardle Fields (Bluffdale) or Thunder Junction (St George). Then at least you could turn the water off in the winter and still use it as a park. More useful for year-round enjoyment than a pointless waste of land/tax $$ 9 months of the year.

No...
No, I would recommend something different. Perhaps a park including a splash feature but also other outdoor activities like a climbing feature, or miniature golf.

Yes. Make it a water park
NO
Yes
I want a water park
Yes, but I doubt its worth the price, because if it were to be used as a water park again I'd prefer it to not just become an "ok" one like it had been recently, but developed into an outstanding Waterpark that would put Utah on the map like it did in the 80s. However I'm sure that would cost much more than the restoration estimate of 30 million

Yes!
No
Park should be left abandoned as is, as an interesting historical site.

Yes.
We need it for our families!
It was the best when it was raging waters
Skate park, go karts
Yes.

Hear me out- Paintball/adventure park would substitute perfectly here. Utah being an outdoor recreation destination does not have a centralized rec field. This would be perfect with the amount of property that’s here. Leaving opportunity for majority of the semi permanent fixtures to be reused. Paintball/airsoft would be the main feature but many fields operate as sports parks like sand volleyball / cornhole / and other sports you can’t get at local parks. Look at Hollywood sports park in CA. This would draw Ogden to Provo easily. Much like the water park did in the early days. I don’t know of another rec approved sport here that would be unique enough to draw that crowd. The backside into a golf course is a prime neighbor and great location/access. I’m very serious as I’ve got the knowledge and interest.

Yes

Not really
Yes absolutely!! Have the city dismantle the park and then offer up clean land for developers to use to make something better.
Yes
No
Yes a water park brings families and communities together.
Yes
No I feel that this space should be built into a place where people all over utah can come and play paintball
Yes we could use on in salt lake I was sad to hear this closed

Yes, the water park should be restored/rebuilt.
Not really, location is probably no longer a great spot for a water park

Yes
Yes

Yes I would.
Honestly probably not. I prefer something the community can use rather than an expensive water park only a few can enjoy, particularly with COVID changing our lives recently.
I have two ideas:

1. Turn it into a beautiful walkthrough park with streams, rivers, ponds, a small lake and maybe a few small waterfalls with pathways, boardwalks and other nature pieces.
   - people could rent areas for weddings, family picture spots, possibly fishing if the lake was big enough. It could draw outdoor concerts and highlight local musicians.

2. Keep the less hazardous pieces, and turn it into a post apocalypse paintball arena.
   - continuous revenue for the city. We don’t have anything like this in Utah and it would be a huge draw for a lot of people. You could even section it off and have one area be paintball, air soft guns, bow and arrow course (the arrows with padding on end). For the holidays, especially Halloween have special events and really draw people in.

Yes, absolutely! Salt Lake City needs a water park. I don’t know if this is the best location or not though.

No, I think it should be turned into a skatepark

Yes
Yes, Salt Lake City does not have a water park nearby and with the increasing heat, year over year, a water park would be a welcome attraction.

No. Water parks are gross. Make it a green space instead!

Yes!!!!!! ☐ SLC should put together a system that allows families to donate and see if we collect enough money to rebuild the water park!!!!

Yes
Absolutely not. We never went to waterpark. Crowded places with loud music are of no interest to us.

We are frequent patrons of the Jordan River trail and appreciate Murray's commitment to providing restrooms and trails that are open and well-maintained year-round.

Do that.

The city could approach a company like Woodward (park city) and utilize it like they do. Climbing gym, workout facility, indoor skatepark, etc. Make it a destination activity spot for the west side for gravity sports. Possibly, there really isn’t many fun places families can go to in that area. And it would be in walking distance.

No

make that [language redacted] a skatepark yo.

Absolutely. The only thing that the land is going to be used for is apartments or houses. Super lame.

Yes

Possibly if a maintenance plan is included in the approval that must transfer when sold or acquired. Cash reserves for this purpose is important so we do not see this sort of disrepair again.

If it was economically feasible, it would be wonderful to have a water park. People have so many fond memories of all the fun they had at Raging Waters at Seven Peaks. However if it is not practical let's not force it.

No. I think we need to be thinking of ways to conserve water, not recreate in it.

Yes

A water park, or if you sit and think about it for a moment with the right pools you know kidney shaped it would make one heck of a skate park! Just because I’m old does not mean that I would not love to go and watch kids hone their craft as they forget about gravity from time to time. Might be fun for parents to see what their kids can do. Maybe snack bars and or a place to have a picnic. People would have to run it so more jobs, just charge a small fee or monthly pass for upkeep. Despite what we think skateboarders just want to have a safe place to go and practice their skills. Thanks for listening.

Not a water park but i would support the new design incorporating a pool, especially if there were free water safety classes.

If it were something similar to Lagoon-A-Beach where I had other attractions in place when I'm done with the water, I'd probably be alright with it.

Yes, or some sort of amusement park area, or even a professional football field so UT could get a team!

If cost was not an issue, then yes, a water park would be great. But cost is the major issue.

Could the pools be repurposed as a skate park? Pulling out the concrete and filling the holes will be extraordinarily expensive.

Yes

Yes it was awesome

No but you could add a little splashpad!

Not a water park, but maybe part could be a pool. There are few places to swim in SLC, especially on the West Side. With climate change continuing to produce hotter, longer summers, a pool could be a much appreciated amenity.

Yes, we need more swimming park areas in SLC. A splash pad with slides and lots of grass would be great for families and children.

no, how about a dog park, tennis courts, running track, etc

as an avid tennis player we could use an additional alternative site

I would prefer a modern aquatics facility on the west side. Or a large well constructed community fishing pond.

No. Create a sustainable living place for homeless!! A camp or tiny houses!!! They need a place and neighborhoods need a solution from the makeshift camps!

A homeless camp space or tiny home community is needed more than a water park

Yes

Maybe. Waterpark is great, depends on the alternative. A nice multi-use space like Liberty Park, or public art space with a westside flair would be ideal. Running trail, museum, water features to tie in with the Jordan River. Poem wall, or something.
I think there are enough water parks within reasonable driving distance of Salt Lake City that it’s not a long drive for those that want to go to one that’s already operational. I am also of the perception that water park patronage in general is declining so restoring the water park would not be a good use of resources in my opinion.
Yes I would.

No... prefer something different...not a water park
Yes, but it could be used for something else too. If possible it seems like some of the attractions could be repurposed or repaired even if it is too expensive to do it with all of them. Some of the existing stuff could be incorporated into a playground or a skate park or splash pad.
Yes
Not really I feel like that this Water park can be Turned into a High school or Nearby Stores Such as a Gas station or Grocery store or Only if it was fun and affordable.
No, I feel like a community park by the golf course would be beneficial to the area
YES!!! We need an amusement park here.
Absolutely
Yes; Due to the historical use of the land as a waterpark, it would be nice to continue that use as a water park
Yes
Yes I’d go there 24/7 if I can honestly their fun
No.
I have little to no interest in attending a water park.
Yes
Yes
This should not be used for development!! Put something in for the community to have fun.
It would be fun, but the cost to attend for my family is too prohibitive for our use. Better in my mind to put it to better use for the community.
Yes
No. We need a high school for Salt Lake City that is west of the freeway. This is an equity issue, and before Weat High is rebuilt much too big, we should build a Glendale area high school. This school could become a school focused on health - mental and physical. Let’s get more people of color into the health sciences and into teaching/administration too.
Yes, we need to keep the land for a water park. There aren’t a lot of big water parks in Salt Lake city, so it’s very inconvenient to dive up to Farmington for a lagoon or Provo to go to Splash Summit.
Yes
No, would prefer something else besides a water park.
Yes, something with a more open concept, lots of pools and slide and activity features more along the perimeter
No! More green space please!

Make a public outdoor pool and perhaps a skate park or other public, outdoor recreation. Area
I have great memories of going to Raging Waters as a kid. I took my kids to seven peaks once and said I’d never go again. It was so dirty. Cowabunga bay can’t come close to what raging waters was in its day. If you built a state of the art water park that was clean and kept up, we would be there. If it is similar to what seven peaks runs, I wouldn’t come near it. I’d rather pay more for a quality experience.
Yes
Yes
Yes
No
It would be a nice attraction to have but if we can have something else that can provide economic activity.
Yes
You could have a large park and multiple splash pads built. It would bring a lot of life to the area and potential commerce options. You could even set up vendor options or a food truck park to accompany the splash pads and park.
No
Yes I would prefer it to be used as a water park. Salt lake is a large city that should have a large functioning water park for families to visit. We used to go to seven peaks and it’s too bad that it has been left to fall apart.
That would be fun. But it’s not particularly important to me that we have a water park.
No. I think we need something like a public greenhouse a place where people can go and enjoy some nice clean air and a beautiful garden and maybe vegetable garden. It would be good for all ages with nice indoor paths, benches and maybe ponds. It would be a lovely place with many purposes like for learning of plants, a nice place for people (of all ages) to sit or walk around and enjoy, it would also be very beautiful and make the scenery that much more enjoyable for tourists and the people who live here.

Yes, Roaring Springs in Idaho has a great water park. Bring them to Utah
No
Maybe more of a community center water park like some of the great ones in the southwest part of the city.
I think there need to be more family centered affordable entertainment and would like to see a private company put in a new water park.
Yes
No, I’d prefer a skate park
I would like it to be replaced with a skatepark.
No. Let’s do something innovative and available to all.
No, a water park doesn’t seem to be a good idea in a desert where water is scarce. Maybe make it accessible from the River Park across the street with a wide bridge or tunnel, and put in an amphitheater a la Murray Park?
Yes
No preference
Yes
Yes!
Sure, actually even better a wave pool. Surfable wave pool like the one in Palm Springs or BSR in Waco Texas that holds professional surf contests. It’d match Utah’s outdoor appeal and provide a good off season attraction to skiing. I’ve gone down to Texas a few times just to surf that pool. They sessions were always full and people were traveling from all over the globe to get there.
Yes
Absolutely. Utah’s only other real water park is in Provo. This site is not only ideal, but it’s historical as well.
Community pool/rec center over another 7 peaks. I also think you could make it into a splash pad place with waterslides or something.

I would love to see an updated water park. We loved going there. But needed a lot of work.
No
100% Yes!! Considering how many families are here in Utah I think keeping it a waterpark in some form could be a great idea. Especially because in the Salt Lake valley there’s not to many water parks other than Cowabunga Bay, which is fun but mostly for younger kids. Utah summers can get pretty toasty too, and sometimes it’s hard to find fun activities to keep you cool. Perhaps even making a new indoor water park that could be opened year-round could be a fun/cool idea!!
No
No I think it should be turned in to a park. More green space is always preferable.
Yes but with rides as well for the kids.
Only if it were run by the city as a public pool.
Yes, 100%. I grew up going to Raging Waters, I have a lot of great memories there. I also love waterparks and think that Salt Lake really needs a good one. There’s one at lagoon, and some in Provo and Draper I believe, but I think salt lake would be a great place for a stand-alone water park. Even if any small of it could be refurbished, like just the wave pool, it would be worth it to me to go!
Plant grass, trees, and flowers, put in pavilions and some grills, play grounds, and convert parts of the water park into a skate park.
Yes, and have a considerable amount for a dog water park.

No. I would like to see a skate park and a place for gatherings for the community.
Now is not the time to back down on the dream of seven peaks. When Victor Borcherds, founder of seven peaks, built this place he had a Dream. A dream of a questionably safe water park that leaked chlorine rich water into the river. I remember a tender conversation I had with him in 96’ where he said “I would literally rather be shot and killed at a bed and breakfast than see this place closed”. Lucky for you he is gone, but he is rolling in his grave right now and you are making his friends and family live through a brand new trauma.

Yes
Yes - if the cost weren’t astronomically high, I think a water park is a great asset for a city to have. Especially considering there aren’t many and it’s a great summer option for family/ friends activities.
Yes, I think there is so other affordable park around. It is a great central location. It was wonderful when I was in school to go play on a summer day. It keeps kids off the streets and provides them a place to be a kid and have fun. Being a landlocked state its nice to have a place with water. As Raging Waters slogan said. Its Utahs beach.
Yes. (I think Salt Lake needs an outdoor rec venue of some kind.)

Yes, having a water park in Salt Lake City was such a fun activity and convenient location in the summer. My teenagers, my toddler, and an infant all have fun at the same time time. However, we did stop going to seven peaks when we became concerned about the safety of structures of slides.
Yes
No, it should be used for affordable housing.
Yes
water park, YES

Yes.
No
Yes!!

Yes
I think a world-class water park would be a great asset for Salt Lake, if expense wasn't a huge obstacle. We have hot summers, and cooling off in water with fun is a favorite past time. Ideally, I think the land could be used to accommodate a water fun park, along with natural public open space given its proximity to the Jordan River. Or alternatively to a traditional water park, perhaps something more creative and accessible, similar to the 7 canyons water feature that was popular at Liberty Park when it was still working.
YES!!!

Yes. Aside from the Liberty Park splash pad, Cherry Hill, and Cowabunga Bay, there aren’t any major water themed attractions accessible in the SLC area.
Sure!
Yes! 100% I think it should remain a water park. That area of Salt Lake could use a nice facelift and somewhat of a tourist attraction. It would be great for nearby businesses as well when people come to visit the water park. I am very in favor and would love to participate as a committee member of some type to help the cause. I think tearing down what can no longer remain is fine. Tear those pieces down, face lift the others and add other options of recreation there as well like splash pad, large pavilions, playgrounds etc...
Yes, I think that is good for the community and families. I have fond memories of water parks as a kid.
Yes
Yes
If cost and market forces were not an issue I would definitely support the land still being used for a water park. I would support the sale of the land to a private developer that was willing to take on the costs of rebuilding the water park and reopening it. Of course I realize that scenario probably is not realistic at this point so as much as I hate to see the water park go I fully support the idea of tearing it down to make way for something else.
Water park or another place for kids. Maybe a recreation center for kids to keep them off the street
Yes
No! City Museum in MO.. Look it up! One would thrive here! There are so many artists, collaborators, small businesses that could benefit from a community collab to make something beautiful, functional, profitable, and represent what talent our state has to offer!
No. I would prefer the land be used to provide permanent housing for unhoused individuals and families. Tiny houses or apartments, whichever would be best for providing the most accommodations for the most people.
Yes I grew up going to Raging Waters. And I would like to see it restored so I can take my family there!
Yes; this would give people a closer water park to go to.
If money were no object? Sure, why not.
Yes
no
Yes. Also, you misspelled “were”
No, I think there are better uses than a water park. I’d like to see this area turned into a large urban greenspace. A beautiful park along the Jordan River is always welcome.
Yes.

Yes
Of course

I think the water park has been present in that community for several years. At this point, I believe it should be something new.
Yes

Yes
No, definitely not. Maybe a pool, but it would be nice to have something more environmentally friendly especially considering drought and responsible water use in this state.
Not necessarily. A nice park with lay ground equipment, open space, a splash pad, and gathering areas would be nice.

Yes, What about a community pool and hot tub. Or redoing the wave pool to make that part functional and maybe 1 or 2 slides that are in good condition and a kids splash pad.
SLC needs a new motorcycle track
Yes
Yes
I would love them to put in a new water park.
Maybe. I used to go to that waterpark in grade school and had fun. I'm not sure how the socio-economics of that area of town have changed, and what the residents of that neighborhood want/need most.
A new water park would be nice but it would need to function correctly and be up to code
No, I would prefer it to be used as a skatepark
Yes
Yes, but I think something better could be made.
Indoor Skate park for winter times or a covered skate park for winter times
Yes
No, it should be used as a field for the sport of Paintball. The scene is growing in Utah and this would attract many players from all over the state and out of state and it would require minimal funds to convert it
Absolutely
Campground cherry hill type
No
No, I would prefer it to be a Parkour park instead

Yes, the neighborhood needs something for family fun, gatherings.
Yes
yes - but modified. I would prefer the land be used for an outdoor swimming pool(s) without the water slides. Something similar to Murray Park or Layton Surf n Swim. We don't have a nice outdoor pool on the westside of SLC. I envision a nice outdoor pool, maybe also a smaller kiddie pool and nice surrounding park of grass, trees, picnic area. Also - like Murray Park and Layton Surf n Swim - entrance fees are not outrageous, less than $8. The westside is growing and we could use a NICE large park like Liberty or Sugarhouse and a NICE, large outdoor pool. Pools are costly, and liability insurance is costly - but surely less than waterslides. Right now the best outdoor pool close the westside is at Redwood Rec - it has a good deep end with diving boards, but no wade-in area for toddlers.
Turn the old pools into a skate park! Times are hard. Kids need somewhere to go!

I think a water park should be considered along with other options.

I think that is one idea for this land use. There is only one other water park in SL county.
Yes! I would love to have a new water park!
Sell it for the Building of a Rustic Inn. Landscape the place and rent Canoes. Then force the Power Company to rebuild the docks used by Canoeist’s 15 blocks north to negotiate the falls the Power Company uses. It’s scadecath trap now. There’s golf right at a Visitors Fingertips, and the River. (Which has been tested for and Contains E-Coli.
No I think you should leave it, take away cops and use it as a skate park. Make the pools into ramps for skateboarders and use it as a park in general for the older kids to paint, etc. make the place safe and convert it to a place people can go to paint or skate.
Yes! The water park was so much fun and we literally only have 2 water park options left but they are both far away from the northern end of utah
Yes, if at all possible, I would prefer it to be a water park.
Yes. We need water parks in our city...

Yes we loved 7 peaks
Not as much as a water park with large tides but rather a nice park with a few different types of swimming pools for the public to use. There could be walking trails, picnic areas, etc.
This would provide Westside residents an affordable entertainment while a much cheaper option to build (& less liability).

Yes, definitely a water park

A water park that was more natural and helped revitalize the Jordan river.
No, this land would be better used as a natural riparian area with maybe a small footprint for canoe rentals that could run down to the facility being built at the Fisher Mansion.

Airsoft field. There is a heavy airsoft presence within the state and it could generate a decent amount of revenue for the city! Plus, if the park were able to be turned into a larger field it would be maintained and large events could be held there, and that means people coming in from out-of-state and bringing revenue to not only the airsoft park, but also the hotels and food places surrounding the nearby area. It could be a big economic spot for the city and would repay itself quickly.

I would just prefer it to be something unique and fun, something Utah hasn’t seen. For all ages. I’d love something fun and new to bring my kids to!

I would rather it be a splash pad/water play area for families then a full water park.

No I think something new can be done. There are enough water parks people want to see something new. Since the actual holding of water seems to be the issue it seems that you can do something clever with it to still use the slides and basic structures. I personally like tinkering with ideas and you could transform it into a holiday light experience without dismantling everything. Use alpine slide style carts to send people through slides fitted to be an outdoor holiday light experience with music. With the current covid situation it's perfect for social distanced light viewing with simple sanitization of carts. For non holiday months it can be slightly revamped to serve as a unique skate park.

Nah, I would prefer seeing it turned into an airsoft arena / field. There are thousands of people who play airsoft and using it as that would open up so many opportunities for airsofters in Utah.

affordable housing

No! We live in a desert and water conservation should be a huge consideration over continued waste. If there is a water feature it should be minimal since water levels have been low and we will soon experience droughts

Yes, this will drive revenue to Glendale if the park was renewed.

Yes, Raging Waters and Seven Peaks were a blessed for a large portion of my life! It often got me away from video games and technology! I’d love to see younger kids experience the same!

Yes.I would like to see a new water park or any kind of recreation park rebuilt on that property. Or it could be a multiuse space for skateboarding, swimming pool, walking paths, soccer, or baseball fields. Small putting green, water saving demonstration gardens

Neighborhood vegetable garden.

The water park was great there

No. I think just making new pickle ball court or a homeless shelter could help.

No, water parks are dying out and don’t make a profit during winter season.

No, use it for a drive-in movie theater!

definitely do not rebuild a water park

No

Yes. Salt Lake City needs a water park.

no

Not entirely. Water parks are fun but also expensive. I think a better user of the land could be just as fun. I think an all abilities park with just a splash pad would be awesome.

Yes

Yes

No

Yes, but perhaps an all season park- something that can be multi-use. Like water park in the summer, festival venue in fall, and outdoor ice skating in winter

Yes

No

Yes, I think it's important to have outdoor water recreation areas for children and youth - especially west side youth. Being outside and exercising helps fight obesity, diabetes, and gets children away from screens. Also, the west side has limited outdoor recreation areas and there will continue to be more pressure on our recreational areas as population increases and urban growth pressure continues.

Only if the water park conserved water and did not result in usage/waste of water. Since that will be a bigger concern for the city in the next 20-50 years, I think that constructing a community asset with water conservation in mind is critical.

No. This land can be better used than for a Water Park that runs only 4 months of the year.

No. I would rather see another public park space similar to Liberty Park.

Yes!

Either way

Yes, I would absolutely prefer it to stay a water park

yes

I think it would be fun to develop a mixed use park where there's a water part (maybe the most expensive thing to remove, might be better to restore?) and the rest can have other park amenities.

No, I think we need to utilize those 17 acres to build a multiple use public park for our growing population. However, the park could incorporate a water feature, like a really nice splash pad for families to play in during the summer.

Yes

Absolutely, Utah needs more places to cool off in the summer, it would be nice to have more than 1 water park in the state

Yes

Yes

Yes and no; the overall design of the water park isn’t very good and feels more like a scattered afterthought. The various pools and slides are all over and the Lazy River is pushed to the far side. If cost were not an issue, then I would recommend a combination of repair, remodel, and adding other attractions like miniature golf, go-karts, bumper boats, hot tubs and ice skating. However, care would need to be taken that they are well designed and flow well and not “cookie-cutter” afterthoughts of which have become too common in the industry. Even many of the professional designers in the nation have become lazy with their designs and give little thought to them. Just look at Boondocks, All Star Bowling, Allegient NonStop, Mulligans, Toads, The Rush, and many others. They almost all look alike with nothing that really makes any of them stand out. Several national studies have said that too many remodels and new builds are being done that miss the mark and don’t understand.

No, I think the land could be better used in other ways to support our local community. There are several other public pools and water parks in the area that provide places for families to go to escape the heat in the summer time.

I think a community space and a splash pad would be more ideal.

A water park is a unique destination in Salt Lake City and it would allow for many different types of people to use the space. So I think having a water park in this area is a great idea. However, it may not be the best one in terms of cost and water usage. I wonder if there is a better use that is just as inclusive? It seems like various recreation hubs (athletic fields, mountain biking or skate park, etc) would all cater to a smaller user set. All else being equal, I’d love to see this area remain a water park.

No. I’d prefer the land be used for a multi-use facility. Fields for soccer, baseball, and lacrosse. Tennis and pickle ball courts are a great idea as well.

That water park was so fun when I was younger. I would love to see another one there

Yes or a water pad and large park with water features?

An indoor/outdoor aquatic center

Yes

No, salt lake would benefit from a clean business development or more nice housing to be sold for profit. Something that would

Yes the area needs something fun to bring in people, but make more parking available

I would like to know other ideas before I could answer that question.

If cost is not an issue make it a green park or community sports like tennis or basketball field.

If cost is limited make a skateboard park or community garden.

Or sell it a developer and make a low income housing.

No

Not a water park but an urban beech Where can I paddleboard, swim and lay on a beech in the city? A lake with a small entry fee where people can soak up the Utah sun and lay in the Sand sounds great. Bozeman beech is a good example of what it could be. No water slides just a natural looking lake with nice sand.

After visiting Bozeman beech in Bozeman montana and seeing people kayak and paddle board just five minutes from downtown, I’d like to see salt lake have an urban beech. The old water park would be a good spot for a lake with sandy beeches and volleyball courts. A small fee could be charged and water toys could be rented. Maybe even lease a few pads to restaurants with water views and have a trail going around the urban beech.

Yes, I prefer it go back to being a water park. I have such wonderful memories from that park. It’s a shame that it is no longer up & running.

No

It seems silly to build a water Park during a pandemic. Other areas which allow social distancing and year round operations seems like a better use of the space.

Yes

No

Yes, if the City committed to subsidizing the park (like it does golf) to enable local area residents affordable access.

No not at all huge waste of water and poor use of land

No. Not unless a successful outside operator could be brought in to design, construct and operate such a facility.

I say a surf zone. A man made surfing pool as seen in some of Casey neistats videos on YouTube. I could also go with a bike park like Woodward. Or a mega outdoor theater venue like the ussa ampatheater.

Extend nature area from Jordan River trail to create a mountain biking/nature walking area. This part of the valley is sorely missing this kind of amenity and the valley in general is missing flatter, more beginning friendly and accessible trails.

No. I’d like to see a bike park with pump tracks and jumps!

I think this should continue as a water park, but with the marquee feature being a modern surfing wave pool. Some examples are https://www.bsrcablepark.com/bsr-surf-resort/ and https://www.surfloch.com/about. This would fit well with the adjacent golf course and also include skate park, dry land surf training, as well as other mountain sport activities such as outdoor bouldering or deep water soloing, mountain or BMX bike courses. Also the national Whitewater center in NC is a good example: https://usnwc.org/visit/activity-passes/

Yes, I think the closing of the waterpark really left a gap in this type of outdoor entertainment in Salt Lake City. Currently SLC residents go to the waterparks outside of the city and they are capitalizing on that revenue. We should strive to have another waterpark in that location.

I would not prefer it to be replaced with a new water park.

Absolutely not. We don't need any more water parks.

No, I think a bike park would be a more useful community project. I don’t believe Utah is an ideal state for a water park.

I do not necessarily prefer a water park but I do think it is a neighborhood icon that holds a lot of meaning and nostalgia for people from the area and other areas as well. If it were to become a water park again, it would be important to maintain affordable prices or special rates for community members. This way we do not cut out certain groups from being able to access the new water park. Folks often get priced out of these new and improved amenities.

I'd prefer it was used for a bike park! Make it a mountain bike park! It will reduce trail congestion, reduce traffic to the mountains, and give people a safer place to hone in their skills

A bike park.

There are better uses like a natural area or bike park in proximity to the Jordan River parkway.

No I would not want a water park.

Maybe

no, it would be better to invest in a facility that could benefit the community year round

Yes, I worked there for 4 years in the 90s. Salt lake needs something like this, especially in Glendale.

I’d prefer to see a bike park put in its place!

No. I think a bike park would be a more beneficial way to use that space.

Yes

No, let the market demand bring another water park later.

Yes. I would like to see a new water park with the current technology to produce waves for surfing among other activities for all ages

No, I’d rather it be a more sustainable use that is accessible to more people.

A bike park with trails, pump track open green spaces and lighting would be ideal.

Personally I would rather see the land used for another form of recreation like a bike park. While there are other offerings there are none with the infrastructure like lighting to ride after dark. Kayak play wave would also be a nice feature to see within the greater SLC community.
No it should be turned into a mountain bike park.
Yes
No
No, there was already a lack of infrastructure with the old water park; the overflowing parking lot traffic out to the surrounding neighborhoods was too much, and a new water park would bring in way more visitors. While that is good for the economy its be better suited for a larger area that can accommodate more visitors
No, I think it should be used for a mountain bike park!! It would be unique and draw people in from all around.
No, it was expensive to get in and costly to rent anything there.
No a bike park
No. Although a water park might bring revenue and entertainment to a small community, they negatively affect the environment by requiring and thus wasting substantial amounts of water. During the summer operating months, a water park consumes tremendous amounts of water through evaporation and requires substantial amounts of energy to pump water throughout the park. This has a vastly unnecessary negative impact to the water supply, environment, and climate change and the land could be utilized in a much more sustainable way. Some suggestions on ways to utilize the land in a sustainably responsible way would be to make a public park with access for everyone or as a bicycle themed park with areas for learning bike handling skills to more advanced features for experts to perfect their skills. Additionally, the land could serve as a festivities park where farmer's markets could be held and vendors such as food and beverage trucks could be located.

To build a mountain bike park

Kids would like it.
No, rebuild it into a bike park

Nope! I think a bike park, similar to what Draper City built, would be a great use of the space. A gravel course for the road cyclists, some jumps, and some skills areas. Trailside in Park City is another great example. Families can spend the whole day there together and everyone can have a good time.
I'm undecided

Bike park, pump track and a cool splash pad area.
Or a off leash dog walking area like Run a Muck in park city.

While I think a waterpark is a worthy investment for recreation opportunity, I believe it is far more important to focus on investing in the body of water that it borders, the Jordan River. Rather than updating a park that will further pollute the river, invest the money into the Jordan River. I prefer to see the land forested, and money go towards making the Jordan River itself a recreation opportunity that is no longer toxic, where kids and adults can swim on hot days.

Utah is a Mecca for mountain biking! A mountain bike park would be loved and used extensively. It could be a wonderful, community building area.

| Not in this time of drought and constant water crisis, worsened by climate crisis. Would anyone want to swim beneath a smokey sky? Kids need a place to run wild in the sun without the confinement of manicured lawns. Grow the biggest trees there and teach them to build their own treehouses they can zipline to one from another. Offer a variety of tall swings, a rock wall, horseback riding around the park, a pond for canoeing, a mud volleyball pit, archery, the best playground equipment geared toward older children and excitement, and deep sand substrate. The "safe" things today are boring, for toddlers, and falling on the substrate hurts them! A fenced-off area for toddlers with age-appropriate equipment and shaded big circular tables and long benches for parents to socialize. Let the older kids be kids. Where else in the world will they be able to do these things? Imagine the memories that will be made in a place like that. Do you have any memorable waterpark days? |

| No, I would prefer it be something else. While I love water parks, they are only available for part of the year. It would be great to see a giant community park with a variety of activities available such as mile marks for walking/running, hills for snow sledding in winter and splashpad for summer. |
Yes, but it doesn’t need to be huge slides, it could be more like water features, splash pads and play areas

Yes, but public

This is a dumb question because costs are an issue!!!

Yes

No

Yes. The water park creates a family and youth shared environment for many local families to enjoy.

We are an inner city community who works hard to contribute to the economy of Salt Lake City. This park being in Glendale mid city in open area makes it an accessible park for many children who attend our city schools and live in the neighborhood which is host to the water park.

The need for youth engagement, youth employment, use of land to support family reunions, business celebrations, recreational activity that supports good health and well being of the physical self.

Yes, disassembly of the current park and a new a better Waterpark should be built.

I think you should turn it into a show fountain and or splash pad. The company OTL has a technician local here who maintains and repairs all of their features here in Utah like the one at Station Park in Farmington.

Yes, this area needs more than just a public park it needs an attraction. I would love to help design a theme park that would rival Disneyland. [email redacted]. I would love to hear neighbor input and then I would love to present to the city council some of ideas I have.

If it can be something better then make it better
Mountain bike and skate park,
Food truck park,
Community garden and orchard,

Yes. A water park in good repair would be great for the area.

Yes

Na, we have plenty of water parks and natural water

Yes my family loved the water park

Yes

I’m not particularly in favor of a water park but I wouldn’t be upset if it remained a water park.

Yes.

Absolutely!!! The jobs the park would provide, and the tax dollars it would bring to the area are substantial!

Yes

Yes.

Yes

Yes! Because it gives the younger population something to do and keep them busy with outdoor activities instead of on the dang electronic devices.

No

Yes

No to the above question only because having a really excellent water park could be so good for Glendale. It would attract businesses and restaurants and cafes - those are dreams for post-pandemic world, but realistically this project would take a while to pull off anyway.

To this question: Yes, an urban schlitterbahn! Also clean up the river and really make it amazing like new braunfels’ schlitterbahn + comal river.

How about sky diving simulators and surf simulators like Flowrider. Super fun! An indoor laser tag area would also be fun. Go carts and arcade games are always a hit.

No. The water park was too expensive for local low income families to enjoy.

Yes we need a water park!

Yes, it should definitely be used for a water park.

No. I would like to see a water rapids park constructed with the nearby Jordan River. A similar project was done on the Boise River/Boise Green Belt in the last several years. The rapids are using by kayakers, and surfers for swimming and a fun, unique outdoor water experience.

I would prefer it to be used as a water park. Please no condensed housing.

Absolutely! Salt Lake is growing like crazy and we have one other water slide park in the City it’s not enough. We need more things to do with the babies.

No, it would be a nice site for a regular park with splash pads for children and an off leash fenced in dog area.
No. Use it for a place for the homeless to go! Since their home was taken away from them!
Not really! There’s a much better use for this land.
An interactive, all abilities park/playground with a large city run splash pad.
Yes, please! I loved the water park and there aren’t enough options like it. I certainly don’t want the park to be dismantled and cleared, but recognize that it can’t remain in its current state. That said, it would be nice to have a nice water park replace it.

No. Water parks are costly and lame.

Yes

Absolutely!

I believe that a water park in that particular section of the state would be a boon to the community.

Nah, make it a skatepark.

No

No, this one closed for a reason and it wouldn’t be wise to have the same problem come back up in a few years. But the area isn’t very nice so maybe a waterpark could spruce up the area?

No strong preference as long as the land isn’t turned into more apartment buildings.

Yes

A water park would be fun however it wouldn’t be used year round. If money was not an option I would love to see something (water) indoor for year round use.

Absolutely. Let’s have one amazing water park in SLC. Pllllleeeeeeaaassssssse.

If we have to, please explore options for people to buy bonds or public / private fundraising or etc to fund the building of a new water park. I’m poor as heck but I’ll be the first to chip in $100 if you offer the chance for the public to raise funds.

Yes!!!

Yes

Turn it into a surfable wave pool. Google wavegarden or Kelly Slater’s surf ranch.

Yes

No, make it a real park with lots of trees. Perhaps a splash pad or some sort of water feature. Maybe just a regular public swimming pool.

Yes

Yes

Conceivably, yes. No major opposition to this usage given precedent, but maybe there is a better usage.

Absolutely! My family went to the water park for years. It was conveniently located, unlike Lagoon, so it was easy to get to and a great way to spend the day cooling off. I want my kids to have a relative experience, enjoying what seems like a dying market. Please keep it alive. Please rebuild and renovate the water park!

No

Yes

Not really. Water parks are great, but to restore that one when you could build something else such as a public recreation center for cheaper would be preferable. I suppose a water park would be nice to incorporate into a recreation center but I don’t think this one should be restored.

No. Due to the fact Utah is in a drought and I feel we need more free outlets for kids and skate parks are a great resource.

Water parks are only fun in the warm weather months. Build something that could be used year round like an amphitheatre, nature park.

Yes

Yes, it was a great place to go as a kid and Salt Lake City needs more entertainment than restaurants and bars

no

No

Yes! Salt Lake City needs and deserves a water park. It’s disgraceful a city our size doesn’t have one.

Yes

Yes! Loved this park as a kid and would love to be able to take my kids

No

Yes, but only if privately funded- I do not think water parks should be publicly owned- it is too costly (and a liability risk if the city gets sued because something happen there)

Sure

Yes

Yes

A water park would be a fun addition to the area.
Yes, the people in this area have enjoyed the water park for years. It is worth the cost to fix it. If it were put to a vote the people would choose to spend the money.

I like the idea of a water park and maybe coupled with a miniature golf course and family picnic or nature reserve similar to Liberty Park - paddle ponds and bird sanctuary, etc.

Yes absolutely! Utah is so limited with water parks or would be great to have another water park other than just lagoon.

Yes

Yes, definitely would rather it be something rather than abandoned

Yes

Sure

Yes

Yes, if done right.

Yes

I think the liability of water parks is too high for me to feel comfortable with that being owned by the city. If something horrible happened and the victims sued, I don't want my tax dollars going to defending, settling, or any other potential payment for this type of situation.

Yes.

Yes

Yes, but it just needs to be torn down and have something else done with it that is not an eye sore or danger to those who break the law

Yes absolutely. There aren't many waterparks here in Utah.

Absolutely.

Yes

Yes

Yeah, slightly

Absolutely! We loved having a water park here.

No

Water park is there. Why not keep it but if someone wants to buy the land and use it for something else then why not sell to them. Either way!

Yes, it would be fun to have a nice water park locally.

Yes. Great memories and great for families. It lasted 40 years before shutting down.

No

No

Yes

Turn it into a giant splash pad style park. Those are popping up all over Utah and are AMAZING. Turn it into something with open space that can be enjoyed by younger residence that encourages healthy play rather than an expensive eater park in the ghetto part of town.

(No offense)

Yes

No, I find that we use recreation parks much more than water parks. Specifically, parks more like Liberty Park, or Veterans Memorial Park.

Absolutely!!!

Turn it into a skate park

No

No the area could be better used for building a public bike park

No

Yes or something as to that nature like a better and bigger boondocks. Preferably a water park because I have been going there since the 80's.

Yes
Partial use as a pool and splashpad, but use the remaining area that has trees as a park, including possible skate park. Keep it public recreation. Open space is diapering so fast in Salt Lake it is going to be nothing but low quality high density housing with no quality of life left. Save for public use!! The city has been soooooo negligent in how it handled this property. Could have been saved for millions less. Don’t be short sighted about this anymore.

No, Leave it allow the public airsoft groups to buy the land as is and use it as a amazing airsoft field or paintball field this could promote some awesome tourist attracting for an annual game scenario.

Yes, I think the community needs it. Kids and families need a fun, safe environment to enjoy the summers. The location is perfect for people coming from all around the salt lake valley abd will help bring community together. If refurbished and safe, people will flock to the new park. I spent many summers here and have wonderful memories.

No, as this location for a profitable Waterpark three times have failed due to location, parking, and maintenance failure.

No, we don’t need another water park. Let’s build a bike park or a natural area for walking and protecting wildlife & birds.

YES!!! That place had so many fond memories and every time I drive by the point of the mountain I think of it. I wish it could be a water park that is affordable and simple, just like raging waters.

Yes

No. I want the space to be environmentally friendly while also supporting and enriching the community, not another drain on resources and exploitation of consumerism to fill the pockets of wealthy investors

Yeah, it’s good for the people and family keeps the money in Utah.

These parcels should remain recreational, but with a mixed-use component to make the endeavor profitable. If restoring the water park isn’t viable, rebuilding one in its place should the the approach. That said, the most important feature on this property is that it is adjacent to the river, and the lack of thoughtful development of this river through the City is a real missed opportunity.

YES we have plenty of parks in salt lake valley but no water parks

Yes!

Zip line, rock climbing, action park

Allow airsoft to buy land as is. Its makes an amazing urban natural battlefield that is very scenic to airsofters.

Yes

Yes and it could possibly be a community outreach project have slc pd and local government help out and get involved with those kids in the community maybe the youth for community service. That water park could give kids something to do to stay out of trouble. The city workers could teach volunteers how to do some of the repairs and a lot of the others you could ask for contractors help some might even donate time you’ve just got to ask we do have the best state in the us and some people that are pretty good at coming together.
id like a water park. built the stairs not so high so other people can use it. have more people watching for trouble makers and kick them out so familys can enjoy it. I did my sons birthday party there for years.taking playing in water parks that kids can run and have fun

No, I think it should be turned into something more community based. This land would be a great spot for a fair grounds. Future hosting of festivals and public events. Plant trees and make it a green space. Maybe add a playground and a small pond for wildlife to return.

yes

No

I think a park with multiple outdoor recreation areas would be best. A subset of the park could be water based while other pieces of it contain room for activities such as pickleball.

No. Absolutely not. This is a non desirable neighborhood. If you were to replace the water park, do it somewhere nice like Draper. This area is horrible as you can plainly see by the damage created by criminals. Build it into several parks. Slash Pad, dog park, skate park, all the parks! Also hired inside security during park hours to prevent that BS from happening again!

Not really.

Yes there are so many amazing memories from seven peaks. It’s sad to see it gone.

Yes.

No. We need more nature areas in the city for those that can’t take to the hills but want to be more connected with nature. Some kind of gardens or something would be great!

Yes

Why not utilize the land for a NEW HOMELESS SHELTER AND REASORCE CENTER Since there isn't one really. Centrally located easy access power water sewer already there. It is also out of residential neighborhoods unlike the shelters now in use. It would be good karma since SLC gov dropped the ball in relocating the old shelter...

Yes.

Yes!!

Yes

No

I regularly used the water park and took my 4 children there. It was a unique activity and one of the rare places I could enjoy time with both toddlers and teenagers. It also employed a large number of teens. For the cost, I would rather see a park for mountain biking in the summer and cross country skiing/sledding in the winter, but we will very much miss the water park.

No, build a park open to the public and free to all.

Yes. But it doesn’t seem cost effective to fix, rebuilding would be just as expensive. And with Covid who knows if/when anyone would actually be able to use it as a water park in the next few summer seasons.

I would prefer another water park

Yes

No the area is a problem area and with no end in sight for this pandemic it would be a waste of money.

No, if it were profitable and valued by the community then market forces would have kept it in business.

Yes

Yes

It depends to be honest. That’s a lot of money to rebuild it.

Yes, I think it brings great value long term for the area and the city.

No. The park was a lot of fun, but with rapidly dwindling open green space and river corridor tree canopy, it is far more important that the water park be converted to a multi use habitat space.

No

Take some of the existing structure and turn it into a skate park. The closest one to Glendale is in sugarhouse.

Bmx track, pump track, skate park

Yes, some other form of outdoor entertainment for sure

Sure

Yes. Living in the Glendale area, this park was a staple in our summers. I also spent every summer here as a kid. I would love to see it come back.

No, we could turn this into an awesome park, with some amazing skate parks.

Yes I love this place

No. I would prefer a nature park, such as a Japanese garden, with sculptures and beautiful trees, as well as places to sit and socialize or spend time in solace.
Absolutely! I have the most amazing memory of going here on a field trip when I was a child, but sadly cannot remember anything more than arriving there. I have dreamed of taking my children there.

No
Yes, this was a regular activity for me and my family. It is sad to see it not open.
Yes!!
Yes. The last thing the city needs is more apartments or condos.
This water park was absolutely beloved. And it would be wonderful to have a new waterpark to make memories in.
Yes
No. I think there are adequate current water parks in other cities like Farmington (Lagoon), Draper (Cowabunga), and Provo (Splash Summit).
Yes I grew up at this park
I think it would be fun to have a Waterpark nearby but the cost might be to much.
No
Absolutely we need to keep this historic place, fix it make it better.
No
"Where not an issue"? But, yes.
No, make more open nature space
No. I think the land is better used for a pollinator-friendly park with native plants and/or a community garden.
Yes
No, I think it would better serve as a natural park or farm. Something that would help to nourish the land.
Yes, rebuild the water park.
No
Yes, I loved having a waterpark so close to us!
Probably yes, but it would depend on the other available options.
Yes! Bring back raging waters!

Yes. It's important to show the community you aren't giving up on them
Probably. There are no water parks nearby that would compare.
No
No I’d like it to be used for something else. Something that can help the community. Like a homeless shelter. With the pandemic there has been a lot more homelessness in our city, and the people affected by it are putting into our neighborhood of Rose Park and Glendale. I’d love for there to be a homeless shelter/homeless resource to center there to keep them safe, fed, and given so the other resources that need like education and public aid.
Absolutely. This is historic and should be redone for future generations
Yes
Yes. It was a beautiful and fun water park filled with memories. I’m sure if we could fix it up we’d be able to make it into a water park again
I think you should make it into a renovated skate park and pavilion, it could welcome in residents of the area to have somewhere safe to gather and make good use of the pool bowls and many of the other features, you could remove the water equipment and modify some of the bowls to be better suited for skating, while at the same time re-using some of the already existing walkways and blank pavilions which could be used for activities such as art shows, movie presentations/festivals as well as outdoor conventions we could better utilize this park as a safe place for the younger of Utahns and create something that many generations of different interests would be able to utilize for great outdoor activities!
Yes

No, I think that time has passed.
Yes definitely. It’s great for the surrounding community

Yes
No. We don’t have much water as it is.
If we could create something like lava hot springs, I think that would be popular enough to cover the cost of the business owner.

No
No

No, a water park needs to be a private company, not a gov't agency. A simple swimming pool and open space would be a good idea for this land. Or even a simple splash pad, open space.

I feel a water park and pool is a great source of employment for young people. But the land could be used as a city park for future generations which is something everyone enjoys.

Yes. There is a park in Provo and a park in Farmington but nothing in salt lake city. Residents are used to traveling these distances to get to an entertainment park, but it would be nice to have a local one that were revamped and safe for residents to enjoy. It may help clean up the reputation and image people typically have of Glendale city of being 'the hood'.

Yes!

Yes with a beach, lazy river, live shows and concert areas. The parking has to be addressed as cars get vandalized too often.

Incorporate some daily show highlighting the diverse cultures in Utah

I don’t think so. It’s time to move on.

No. I think a mountain bike park should be built there

It’d be cool to have a 20 million dollar waterslide park. Being a cold weather state hot tubs saunas and steam rooms all year would be better.

no
Yes

The water park is in a terrible location. The surrounding neighborhoods are responsible for its demise. The city should not waste funds on rebuilding anything here. Level the park and prepare the property for private commercial use.

No, at least not one as large as that. I think there are better uses that could benefit the Glendale community more.

I think you could build a nice regional park with an area for food trucks, a skatepark, splash pad, trails, etc. a place for people to gather.

Yes
Yes

No, it should not be used as a water park.

Yes, Utah does not have many fun water parks

No, I dont think this location is suitable for a new water park. Glendale and surrounding areas are not home to very many children. And is very run down and poor area with lots of crime and homelessness along the Jordan river trail. I think a water park would be better constructed elsewhere.

No. I would prefer a park similar to Liberty park, but with a skating park, perhaps climbing and other activities. A lazy river, water fall or other thing, tapping into natural hotsprings if possible

Yes
Yes

No. The water park was always looking run down and in an unattractive area. I would prefer a dog park.

I would want it to be a water park

Yes
No

yes

I would. I would love to build a new “Raging Waters”. It would be amazing to have a completely new watermark that has nods to the old park.

No

Yes!

Unsure but open to suggestions.

No, other nice things could be put in its place.

Yes, need more parks for kids

Yes

No

Not necessarily. If people want it, but that’s a pretty big space that could be used for actual affordable housing. Not luxury apartments. Just simple four walls and a ceiling. There really aren’t a lot of actual affordable housing units available, and building some would benefit the community more than another water park.

Yes absolutely!! Raging waters was the source of countless great memories for me and all my friends as kids. I believe we should rebuild and bring the park up to code! The kids these days need some outdoor fun and the water park days were always amazing!!

Yes
YES! Utah is a close knit community many members of Utah have made memories at this water park. Don’t divide the community! We need our recreation areas. Social environments are becoming few and far between. We need this community to stay united! It is an amazing place to have fun and let loose and just keep our childhood alive!

I am indifferent to water parks, and would honestly prefer something less rambunctious and noisy. I would prefer that the site be made home to more nature.

<td>Yes, the water park is a historical place in the city. My family and I were very sad to hear it closed down and hasn’t reopened. The water park is in it’s current shape due to a lack of upkeep. If it was well maintained over the years, the current repair costs would not be as high. The city should have annual inspections of the water park prior to it opening for the season to ensure major repairs are not being neglected. The water park has potential. It needs several updates and repairs but if it is properly maintained and well taken care of, it should continue to last for decades as it has in the past since the 1970s. This was a great family friendly destination for our community. It was even a major pioneer back in the day! We should not give up on the water park. It would be really nice if it could be used for that. I didn’t care for the slides. I was happy when it was just a wave pool. Maybe you can incorporate it into the Sorenson’s Pool :D They did talk about making a recreation pool at one time in the parking lot at the Sorenson Center and move the parking across 800 West where the defunct garden is. A walking track would be nice over the top of it for winter use.
At a community council when Billy Palmer was in, he said it would be good to have a high school on the west side. Lynn Robertson said Anthony Sudweeks is the principal that is looking to get a building for a charter high school. Maybe this can work for it.
Yes
Yes I would rather have a water park than homes or a another Maverik getting built like always year we need somewhere to cool off. Thanks

I would prefer a water park.

There is community value to having a water park and this type of active recreation in this area of the city is lacking. I would support an updated water park that was accessible to all city residents. Keep in mind that return visits during a summer season might be financially hard for many residents in the surrounding neighborhood and price admission accordingly.
yes! I grew up going to this water park as my kids got a chance for the last few years to experience the same.. I would love to see that it remain a water park if possible..
Yes for sure. Salt Lake City needs a water park still.
Yes, even though my kids are too big for a water park these days. However, in the old days we used to drive to Cottonwood Heights to find a nice outdoor pool. Seems like all the pools in SLC are indoors and/or built for laps, not kids.
Turn it into a haunted attraction.

Yes, it would be nice to have another water park attraction here in Utah.
Yes, it would be great to have a safe, nice, water park within Salt Lake area for families to enjoy.
Yes, but only if there was something new and interesting about it. Rebuilding another giant toilet with screaming kids wouldn’t be cool.
Yes. I loved raging waters growing up and went with my children to seven peaks for years until it also closed. Would love to see what this water park could be.
Yes
Yes a new water park!
Absolutely.

Make this a cable park dude!!!
I love the idea of making this a wake-board cable park or a flow-rider for water-sports people who want something to do without having a boat or if you guys make it indoor, it can be a year round attraction that will also bring in year round revenue
Yes. My family would prefer a water park.
No
Is this some kind of a joke survey? Yes please leave hazards alone and add some new hazards. Whatever.
Yes, if taxes were not used to build it. It should be a private company.
No
No, I would prefer the land be used for a bike park. The current land and layout would be a fantastic place for a park like Trailside bike park in Park City.
Yes. We don’t have an outdoor water park in our area. We have to drive to west valley or Kearns or Bountiful to enjoy the outdoors pools. We need something our children can go to without having to make a far drive out of town.
Yes
Skate park!! Use what you can and save money. Add a splash pad and a few other water features to pay homage.
No.
No make it into something more useful for the community. Build Glendale High School there instead
yes. renovating what it was would be perfect and people would love to be able to go back to the water park we grew up with. The fun it was not taken away.
A new High School and park for the people in the community, I grew up across from Raging Waters and went to East High. It was extremely tough making it to school. If you missed the bus home, you’d have to walk. The area is growing and kids are getting busses to schools 10+ miles away.

No
No. Put a public pool and a regular park with soccer fields and basketball courts. Minor note: “where” should be “were” in the phrasing of this question.
Yes
Yes- if the space is not able to become a water park or public pool. I think it would be a good idea to become a green space (Salt Lake City peace garden) (liberty park) with trees ponds - stream? Fountains? Etc
No - as much fun as a water park is, it is not a sustainable use of the area. I would rather the park be transformed into a green space that is more environmentally sound and safe and accessible for everyone to enjoy.
If the need is there, it seems that type of entertainment has gone out of favor
I think it’d be better use as a splash pad or park, with basketball courts, pickleball courts and play grounds. The small park across the street Glendale park is a joke of park with one playground set, no pavilions, no basketball courts.
No
Yes! One with less admissions and parking prices.
Yes or an amusement park.
ABSOLUTELY
Yes
Yes
Yes, it upgraded our community for so many years taking it dow and adding housing would be a disaster for our Glendale neighborhood, espically apartments.
No I would prefer it be turned into a multi sport complex with turf soccer fields where a lot of the kids in this area don’t have access to a good soccer field
Yes, growing up I have so many memories of that park, the best way to bring back those memories, would to please redo it. I am so sad at how many people have come to ruin something that was once a childhood dream. I loved going there with my whole family, and I loved the location, being so close but yet so secluded in the back going down 1700. I hope someone reads this and hears the disparity in my voice, I would really love to see it back up for my next generation of kids at least.
Yes! I think a state-of-the-art water park seven blocks from my house would be a huge asset! I never visited the park before it closed, partly because it was widely considered to be in a state of disrepair. I think it is also important to have quality recreation on the west side, especially considering this is where a majority of Salt Lake City’s youth live.
Yes. The community needs an outdoor outlet for children and families.
Yes in the long run it would pay for itself being the only attraction of its kind in the area also provide jobs
Yes
I think if money wasn’t an issue turning the site back into a water park would be incredibly neat it’s been like that for years and tons of memories have been made there
Yes
Yes, it’s important for kids and adults to have a fun and safe summer activity.

Yes
Probably.
Absolutely not. Water is scarce and valuable.

It should be used to cultivate local trees, flora, and fauna.

Think Liberty Park, Sugarhouse Park.

How about turning the place into a giant community garden? It's in the middle of the city, and all people from all areas would have easy access.

Not to mention the proximity to the river.

No

yes, or another theme park in general.

That would be great for the community. The old one was enjoyed by so many, and nothing like it is available anywhere near. Couldn't some of the materials be recycled and used?

No.

Yes

Yes, I would like a water park to be there

Yes

No. Build a bike park, pump track, etc.

Yes, the site is big enough and upgrading it with modern equipment, pumps, slides, and pools would be beneficial in my opinion

Yes!

I'd prefer it be used as a public water playground-type of water park. i.e., keep it free but incorporate water play, like a splash pad!

Yes

Yes- a clean and safe one

Yes, and maybe a park that can be used year round by the residents. A year round option like the Utah Olympic oval has with the pool, park and indoor ice skating and meeting rooms for special smaller events. This is the only way I can see that the property gets used year round instead of just the summer months. I'm a long term resident of Glendale and have been a season pass holder from the beginning when he property was Called he “The Wave Pool.” We took our 3 young boys almost every day or night we could go to swim and ride the waves as a family. What great memories! We bought our first home in Glendale partly because the water park was so close to our home. Also, that we could walk to the wave pool in 5 minutes. We are still in the same house we bought 40 years ago in Glendale. We have enjoyed the water park immensely over the years. We always held our summer parties at the “Rage” with extended family and friends over the years and have missed the opportunity.

Yes

outdoor splash pad in summer and mini ice rinks in winter.

I think that whatever is done with the park, there are three things to consider: 1) sustainability 2) how it benefits the economy 3) how it benefits the people. I'm not sure what the budget looks like, but if the funding is there I think that a sustainable park (i.e. planting responsibly, limited water usage, etc.) with a garden that is open to the public could be hugely beneficial. While Utah doesn't have as big of a homelessness issue as say CA or NY, many families still suffer from food insecurity. If there was a public garden where people could pick fruits and veggies (maybe in a regulated way to make sure no hoarding happens) then that would definitely help lessen the burden of food insecurity in our area. Maybe the park could have two focuses: providing organic food to those in need and educating the public on nature/climate change/sustainability. Signage could be around the park that helps inform visitors of Utah's ecosystems and tips to help preserve them.

As long as the 20 million dollars isn't from tax payers I don't see a problem with a new water park. Use it to help the less fortunate

Yes

Definitely

Not really. I'd prefer that the old site at the hot springs near Beck St. be renovated. Post COVID19!

Yes.

Yes. This park is in a neighborhood that needs somewhere for kids to go and have good safe fun. Lagoon costs too much money for many of the residents of this state and especially Salt Lake County and even more specifically the west side neighborhoods. I grew up playing there and my children have missed it so much.

Doesn't matter, right?

no

Yes, but a free splash pad for kids

Yes! I was a lifeguard there, and I hold the place dear to me.

100% Yes!!

I do not want to see apartments going up there. This property needs to be used for some recreation facilities for the residents in this area.
Yes, I spent many summers at this water park and lived every minute. I would love to see it retired to its former glory.

Yes. Anything less than restoring the water park will be a disappointment to many people. More effort should be put into finding a private partner to work with, or the city should consider a bond to finance restoration and let the people own the park, or perhaps some combination.

Though I gave fond memories of the water park as a kid, I don’t think a water park is the best use of the land (or water). I think a small water feature at a park (like Liberty Park) where people could cool off would be just as beneficial.

Park space with restored habitats and river access.

Yes, a large, well done water park is an incredible thing to have when you live in the desert in the summer.

Not particularly, although if other residents felt strongly that they would like a water park, I wouldn’t oppose.

No
No more water park
I would prefer it be used to celebrate Salt Lake’s incredible and creative arts industry!

No.

It depends. Salt Lake City doesn’t really have any good public pool options, so it would be nice to have a water park. That being said, this area is right next to the Jordan river trail, a hidden gem. It would be cool to incorporate the Jordan river and create a natural recreation area that supports a healthy Jordan river. It would be cool to have a beachy, swimmable body of water that complements the Jordan river.

I think it needs to be something like that. Some place for kids and families to go and have fun and spend time together

Not necessarily, a huge outdoor park with a splash pad would also be great. A water park would be as well.

Yes. I think a water park would be a good investment. The previous water park was old and un taken care of. Keep in mind it lasted almost 40 years.

A water park in this location is easily accessible for families living in the areas. It would be a close, easy accessible, fun thing for families in the area to do, and for families out of the area.

No. A water park is unsustainable long-term. Build a giant outdoor roller rink instead.

Yes, but cost is an issue so that’s not practical.

Yes on the water park as long as it’s safe and admission fees are reasonable.

Yes! I believe there should be more options of family entertainment on the west of the community. I feel if done correctly this can be a centerpiece of the community similar to Lagoon for Farmington.
Yes, or an attraction with water, like the Blackridge Reservoir in Herriman. https://www.herriman.org/city-departments/parks/blackridge-reservoir/

Yes, a nice water park in Salt Lake would be great!

No.

If it was built as maybe a county recreation pool or water park yes

This was a greatly used water park and I believe the residents of SLC deserve a new water park.

No, there is a idea floating around the facebook post of turning it into a bird sanctuary of some kind. Would a Tracy Aviary Extension be an outdoor pastime?

How about a mixed use outdoor recreation park? Maybe one that I incorporates whitewater kayak and paddleboarding into it as well. Bring together the the outdoorsy types with the city dwelling types. Pools that can be used for diving and swim meets as well?

I have lots of childhood memories there and be a shame for it to be torn down and not have a water park put back salt lake City needs a water park

Yes. Our city needs this for both economy and morale.

Yes, our youth have been through so much this year. Something new and exciting could be just what we need to keep morale by having more activities to do. As well as a place for SLC youth to learn how to swim.

Yes

Water park is great!

Absolutely this should be either restored or something new should be built! Raging waters was my birthday spot for 10 years. Such great childhood memories, and it’s a shame to let such a fun place in SLC wither away!!

No, I believe the space available can provide the city with another great park.

No.

Yes

No, water parks are super unsanitary. I live right down the road from here and wouldn’t want to deal with more cars on this road and people trying to park

Yes, the water park was an integral part of the Glendale community and is a historic monument to many people.

Yes

YES! Sell it to COWABUNGA Bay company. They have a great one in Las Vegas. Win all the children and families here we need more places to recreate. Lagoon is almost as expensive as Disney per day and I think getting out in the summer is worth it. We travel to Cherry Hill inDavis County or South to Attraction in Utah County for fun. Salt Lake County and City has become a lame duck. The closed Hollywood Connection years back. We need more bowling allies, roller and ice skating rinks, paint balling, laser tags, miniature golf, etc. sports parks and physical things to do with children and kids. No more splash pads.

Yes- but also a regular park

No, but I am not strongly opposed either. I think there are better recreational activities for an urban area.

No water! Gross, expensive and unnecessary. Skate park, bike paths, roller skate rink, ice skate rink, food truck area w public seating.

No, there are plenty of Waterpark around the area.

No I think we already have plenty of water parks.

No, I think it would be fun if the land could be utilized to allow players of both paintball and airsoft use the grounds and equipment as is to have a place to come and play team sports and come together as a community.

No, I would prefer that structures be left largely as is, and the park be used for a paintball/airsoft arena, that could also double as a police training facility. The unusual urban landscape would lend itself very well to this use, and many people would be willing to pay to use those facilities.

No

I would love to have a new water park but who's to say that the same thing won't happen?

I would not like it to be used as a water park.

No water park but airsoft field

Nope

Yes

No

Yes

No, I do not. The current climate will not go away anytime soon and the property should be used for something more efficient and resourceful to the community.

No

Yes I love the idea of keeping this land as a water park! It reminds me of my childhood. Good times

No. I would prefer it to be green space, usable by and for the public at large.

Yes! Yes. Salt Lake City is a great western city. Why should we not have a water park? Changing this area to something different would likely turn into the other city-managed open spaces along the Jordan River, which are neglected and regularly vandalized. The water park was one of the few good community places that the west side had for the summer. INVEST in the west side. If you don't, that land will turn into camping grounds for the homeless and a playground for drug users and truckers seeking a good time. Why not leverage community development funds for such a special place. To me, your wording is saying, "those on the west side are only worth $500 to $600,000". I can tell by the state of our open spaces that this is true.

Yes, the water park was wildly popular when it was in operation. People on the west side need something to do within walking distance, especially the kids.

No, I'm a part of the Utah Airsoft Facebook group and we think it would be better used as a field.

I don't care as long as it's a safe place for the public good.

The second question below makes me think this question is a waste of my private time answering this question. Which is it? It doesn't sound like the city is interested in maintaining, or creating an outdoor park if the funds used to acquire it restrict outdoor use of the property...so it's a land grab plain and simple. What you do with it is on your dime. The waterpark was a lot of fun to go to, we had family season passes for 3 years till it started getting neglected, when it closed we bought lagoon-a-beach passes. It really needs a complete renovation to remain as a waterpark. It was already in bad disrepair for almost a decade, many of the neighborhood kids worked there as their first low paying jobs. Well there goes Glendale's waterpark, the city bought it with funds that restricted outdoor use, how convenient for the developer that comes in and saves the city from its ineptitude.

No

I would like a water park or some other type of park or community space

A partial water park would be fine, but ideally something that could be used in Fall and Winter like a mix of a traditional park/water park.

I am open to a new water park. They are a blast!

No it should be turned into a airsoft and paintball arena you would see a lot of people going there from all states

Yes, slides are not needed. Just the pools and updates the landscaping.

No, it should be used for an airsoft -and paintball field

No.
YES! This was such a great place for families. The salt lake valley does. Not have enough of these Cowabunga is small splash summit is fantastic but far. The slides and options at this park were the best. Needed to be managed and maintained better. We already have enough apartments and vacant office buildings. No. It would not be cost effective. Build a mini-golf course there. With its proximity to Glendale Golf Course it would be a positive addition to the neighborhood.

Yes

Draper has a skate park, dog park and splash pad all within walking distance of one another. Their splash pad is kind of small. You could have a playground too.

I would like a water park, but not neccesarly the large water slides. I think having a swimming pool/hotspring splash pad and other water features would be great, even the lazy river would be lovely. I don't care for the large slides from a liability standpoint and cost of maintenance and such, but the area and neighborhood needs somewhere for kids and adults to enjoy.

Leave as is and open up the countries greatest Airsoft/paintball field. Would get visitors from around the country. Could also be used for military and police training when not open to the public for Airsoft and paintball.

Maybe, but think turning this into an air soft arena would be really fun and different for the community.

No I have another idea. We could use as a more central location for all airsoft hobbyists everywhere and have a new fuel to have fun on and get together.

No it could work great for industrial space

Yes it would be nice to still have a water park in Salt Lake City.

Keep the wave pool. It can be retrofitted to a surf pool. People would pay to be able to surf in the middle of a desert. Demolish the rest of the park and turn it into a whitewater park. The best whitewater park is currently in North Carolina, the US National Whitewater Center (usnwc.org). Salt Lake is 3.5 hours from any good whitewater rafting/kayaking. We could create a park just as good as the one in NC, if not better. This would create the revenue needed to operate the facility as well as create a recreation hotspot in the middle of the valley.

Not a pay-to-use park with slides, etc. ponds for kayaking, fishing, SUPing.

See Quinn’s pond in Boise for a large version or highland Glen park down in Alpine, UT for a small version.

Yes it would be nice to have more family friendly activities in the area.

Yes. I would prefer some sort of outdoor pool complex. SLC doesn't have a nice kid-centered outdoor pool. It's a gap in our parks dept, especially when compared with suburbs like Cottonwood Heights and Bountiful.

Check out the blueprintjordanriver.org to see the blueprint survey results of over 8,000 people. People’s recreation interests may be informative.

Yes. Supporting at risk youth in that neighborhood is a good idea

Yes! Raging Waters needs to come back!
No. A water park is not as inclusive as a larger park with a water feature like a lake with smaller playgrounds for slides, splash pads, skating in the winter, etc. Look at what they've created in Daybreak and intend to create via the Daybreak water course. A larger water feature like a lake would be more inclusive and usable year round than a water park.

Absolutely not. If water parks were a thing, it wouldn't have gone down hill. There are few, if any, local examples of thriving water parks.

Yes, if they could make it affordable to go to it would be even nicer.

By the way, you have a typo in this question. I believe you mean "were" in the place of "where".

Yes, but could also have a large splash pad/water feature.

Yes!!!!

No

A park with a lack with paddle boats, lots of trees and picnic areas, a stage for performances where people could bring their own chairs, maybe a water fountain area for the kids to run through and cool down.

Half as water park with a wave pool, the rest as park area with pavilions and picnic area. For the winter switch wave pool over to ice skating and/or outdoor market.

Possibly. It could also have walking trails, a pond, climbing walls, skate board pits, an indoor pool like at Fairmont Park....
Yes, I love water parks and have fond memories of them as a child.

Yes.

A combined water park and amusement center would allow for year round operation, rather than a seasonal one. It would also provide a chance to innovate with the latest rides and water attractions. The only way to move forward on a new park is to embrace a multi-faceted approach.

We should build a premier bike park, similar to the recently built Snake Hollow Bike Park in St. George (https://www.sgcity.org/snakehollow/). Mountain biking is the fastest growing high school sport in Utah, and we need more places for kids on the west side to get together with friend and safely ride their bikes. The venue is also large enough to build some race tracks for events, parties, etc.

No -- I would much prefer a nature park, which would be more ecologically friendly and provide green space for all residents to enjoy.

Yes.

No. Could be a mix of skate park, bike pump track, swimming pool and traditional park space. It would be a more versatile space with year round use possible.

Yes

No. Utah is the second driest state in the nation, and droughts occur far too often to be using water to the degree a waterpark demands.

Yes, depending on design and amenities offered.

Yes.

I think that the site should be turned into a food truck park similar to those in Austin, Texas. It would be great to have a park, seating, restrooms and an area for food trucks to come. This would be a great addition to the neighborhood and a great community gathering place.

Yes!

Yes. It would be ideal if another water park was put in there so that families may continue to get together to create memories. Yes. However, I don't think a water park is the only potential use of the space. I would champion spending closer to $5M and make it something spectacular that would boost the community and draw folks from all over the city.

100% - Do not replace the old raging waters with something that is not a water park. Make it better and tied to Utah culture. A mechanical surfing wave would be a great place to start. http://www.kswaveco.com/ Is a company I would include in this new park for sure!

No

Yes

I would prefer it be turned into a different type of public place, maybe a park with water features like liberty park

Yes

yes

It is time for something new, but I would like to suggest keeping the memories of the old park (Raging Waters) alive. How about an 18 hole miniature golf course with a water park park theme. A grill and or a restaurant with a Raging Waters museum might attract people from all over the valley. Variations on this idea are limitless and could be very profitable if done right. This would keep the Glendale flavour and history alive. It would also tie in nicely with the Glendale golf course connected on the south and west side of the water park.

No. Other options allow for greater community use and enjoyment.

Yes. But a brand new water park that everyone could enjoy.

Yes.

I would LOVE to see a new wave pool and water slides at this location. If the water slides aren’t an option, a great wave pool, splash pad and community water area would be welcome and wonderful, perhaps something similar to Lagoon-A-Beach size and scope. There aren’t any water parks in the SLC area and I think we desperately need something to cool the summer heat. I grew up at Wild Wave and love it!

No

I would like to see it be more of an action sports water park, and not a wave pool and slides type of place.

No. We have serious water shortages in this state, and I don't support wasting it for this type of recreation.
No. With the proximity to the Jordan River Parkway, and the plans for that potentially becoming a trendy destination where community and tourists want to visit, the land should be a space that promotes activity and compliments the Parkway trail. I believe that a combination skatepark/bike pump track/outdoor workout zone would be the most cost-efficient use of the space while also being the most compatible with the area around it. Costs could be saved by re-using parts of the existing waterpark landscape, and if zoning allows, small cafes and shops could share the space to generate revenue. The area could keep the waterpark theme as an homage to its history, think waves at the skatepark, river runs for the bikes, Muscle Beach for the workout zone, etc.

I know this wasn’t the right place to share this comment but I missed the deadline for the reimagine nature survey. I hope that it can reach the right eyes.

Yes

Yes. There are no other water parks in the area. Maybe a different model that included some year round use including space for a food truck park or other food option.

No.

Yes, a new waterpark.

I would prefer a new water park replace the old one. If the property remained in public hands. I would also like the idea of selling the land to a private party, in order to construct a golf course or other large venue.

Yes, 100% support for the land being used as a water park.

Yes

I’d rather see it turned into something more accessible that won’t require large amounts of money to continually maintain.

Yes

No

No.

Yes. I would like to see the water park replaced with another water park. water park that includes more than just slides and a wave pool-ie., skate park, climbing wall, etc. Incorporate the structure as part of the Jordan River. By this I mean learning opportunities for the community as to what a great resource the Jordan River could be with the support of the State gov. and local leaders.

No. Our country needs to focus on physical fitness and healthy living. We are obese.

Yes

A different kind perhaps. Less of the thrill factor. More capacity to be in and next to the water, including natural water like streams and ponds.

Yes.

Also, it’s /were/ not /where/. This is important for a government survey. I’ve been working on the /wh/ sound with my kindergartener. That would be acceptable, but I’d rather see a mountain bike park. Like trailside outside Park City.

Please refurbish existing or build a new water park even better than the old one! An estimate of up to $600k sounds like a deal to me.

Yes, or some kind of water feature. Of course, any new development needs to be taken in context of covid.

Yes

Yes, build the wave pool bigger and the water park bigger! We have more people living here and it needs to be more grandeur and fancier then what it used to be.

No - something that benefits people of all ages: green space with nature trails, bike trails, palyground

No

I would prefer part of it to be a water park but also have the land include other recreation opportunities such as a place to roller skate, bike ride, skate, etc.

No, water will become more and more scarce and we need to find ways to manage the park for the future, conserving water, instead of looking to the past. With its proximity to the Jordan River the future plans for this park need to be in coordination with the River planning commission to rehabilitate the waterway and increase natural areas in the city.

A water park. See Volcano Bay, Typhoon Lagoon and Blizzard Beach in Orlando.

no

No.

No

I think another water park would be good for the community in that area it was a cultural part of the community and a good part of the history. I also think that another attraction could be very interesting. A large miniature golf course along with other attractions like go-carting and a community pool would all be fun attractions that would promote outdoor activities with family and friends. It seems like a great area as well for farmers markets, cornhole/horseshoe and food trucks that would promote local business.

I worked there in the early 90's. Any use should however should include increased video surveillance. The current state of things evidence of why that is needed.

Thinking in 3 dimensions I would love to see a secured, year round usable, underground kind of water park... maybe themed like the movie Goonies... with the open, above ground space like any other public access city park- maybe a single direction bike riding track with hills, dips, twists and turns making it's way over the top of the underground parking lot. The more grass and foliage we point to the sun, with our asphalt hidden, the better for our valley microclimate and climate warming problems.
No. Maybe a splash pad feature but not a water park.
No
Another water park yes.
I would be in favor of it being renovated to a new water park again. I would put a cap on how many people can enter the park so lines aren't so long and the wave pool doesn't feel like the Titanic just went down. I have great memories of raging waters as a kid and even with my wife about ten years ago, and I'd like to share those memories with my kids now. Hopefully Covid is gone by the time a new park would be built!
Yes, a new and better water park would be awesome.
No
No turn it into the coolest skatepark I'm the world is such an easy solution. Talk to the woodward guys. You can make it so old slides can stay as features, obviously you would have to retro fit them but it wouldn't be too hard. Plus there is an inherent liability assumed from skateboarding so legally speaking you're probably better off to call it a skate park.

Yes
No. I believe a water park is not environmentally sustainable and useful for the community, especially when we experience weather not conducive towards swimming for nearly the majority of the year (Sept-May). Attendance to a water park is also costly, which is not inclusive and may exclude many of the residents who live in the nearby community/neighborhood. Parking for this area is also atrocious. When Ragin' Waters/Seven Peaks was in operation, a lot of overflow parking went into the community and congested the streets. It is not an equitable investment for the city, especially in light of the land needing to be "public."
A water park would be great (if costs were not an issue), especially if priced affordably for nearby residents.
Yes. One that is safe and accessible to all.

No because it would bring more tourists and up the revenue of certain properties making it less affordable for our lower income community that resides there.

No, I would prefer the land be converted to green space for the enjoyment of the entire community.

No, because that is still not realistic given the costs and the higher value of that land currently.

No I would love to see an Equestrian Park!

No I would not prefer a water park

no

No- a regular park would be preferable

Yes, let's build something that rocks!

It would be nice to see an INDOORS Water park like those found in Wisconsin. This would make the park more useful and more family year round fun

No, we do not need a water park. Instead the city would benefit from a green space, dog park, playground, community garden, or other city space.

Not necessarily. I think the location makes it an ideal place to create a Jordan River Service Center for recreation boating on the Jordan River. The water trail through Salt Lake is especially scenic and the concrete ramp by the water park is the best river access point on the river. In addition to a service center/c-store for trail users I value the property as open space.

Take advantage of what you have and add to it. The one thing that people in salt lake love to do is drive to southern Utah and I joy the red rock desert and all things that come with it like waterfalls, lakes, rivers, cliffs, and the flora. Build a desert oasis with Joshua trees, soap trees, Texas yuccas, desert willows all of which will grow here. I know this because I've been growing them in my yard for 20 years. Bring St George to salt lake. Bring in food courts. Use the Jordan River to float thru the desert oasis. So many amazing things could be done.

no, but the site should benefit the nearby community

Not really - I think it would be more beneficial to the community to turn it into outdoor space conducive to groups getting together 6' apart (and closer for the future). A new water park seems likely to only appeal to a small portion of people.

Yes. A water park will attract people from all over the region, and that may be a boost to the economic vitality of the neighborhood.

I think it should be something new

Yes

No. Not unless it was a water park for human enjoyment (such as swimming) that also created riparian habitat, promoted water infiltration into the area, etc.

No

Yes. I grew up going to that water park and I'd love to be able to take my kids there in the future as well.

No

It would be fun if this area could be used as an adult water park with some type of luxury pool bar. OR if for family use, a surfing pool with waves would be really fun kind of like the surf business in Provo.

No

I loved the water park - and feel like was a resource that would continue to be used if the funds were available. I personally never want to spend the money to go to Lagoon, and missed it the past few years. I would however be very excited to see the space developed into a mixed-use gathering area. The idea of using part of this space for a new bike park has me very excited.

I would like it to repurposed as community space. Not developed by a corporation.

Yes. A water park was unique and uncommon in that part of the valley. Properly done, it could really be used as a positive catalyst for the Glendale area.

However, a sized down version of a water-type recreation would be interesting (like a innovative splash pad park) alongside a skatepark and maybe even a BMX park or an adventure park of some sort that would allow for healthy recreation, community gathering, and team/social building amongst children and adults alike.</td>

Federal funds used to acquire the park restrict the use to outdoor recreation. In one or two words, please tell us your favorite outdoor pastime.

- Mountain biking
- Swimming
- Pickle ball, Tennis, Bocce, Horseshoes

I think the city should partner with the Salt Lake City School District to envision how they might build a high school on this property that serves the Glendale and Poplar Grove communities, utilizing much of the space for athletics, outdoor recreation programming and a school-community garden. Much could be done to use this land to make long overdue investments in Salt Lake City’s Westside communities. Please don’t build another attraction on this property that most of our families lack the financial resources to enjoy.

I love going to that park with my family. I love taking walks and riding my bike. We also love to have family picnics and barbecues and since we do not have a yard at home, a park with barbecue grills or fire pits would be awesome!

- Camping
- Frisbee golf, pickle ball, basketball, splash pads
- hiking
- Pickleball
- The slides also the waves
- Walking
- giant slide
- Running
- Walking/Biking
- tennis courts, quality basketball courts
- Rafting and mountain biking
- Hiking, photography.
- swimming
- Right now I am teaching at an outdoor preschool and we go to local parks/canyons/outdoor rec areas to play. I think a park with some more natural playground type things would be amazing.
- Skiing and trail running.
- Birding. Biking.
- Dog park, softball/athletic fields
- Hiking
- Running, swimming, tennis and hiking
- Water skiing
- Walking, biking
- walking and cycling
- Walking, biking, hiking, tennis, gardening.
- Hiking cycling
- You can still include some form of water park, maybe a kayak park?! Mountain bike park, pump track, and/or hard and soft-surface trails for hiking, walking, biking. Maybe an outdoor climbing facility or bouldering area (a park in Columbus, Ohio has a built outdoor wall: https://www.metroparks.net/parks-and-trails/scioto-audubon/). Maybe Salt Lake Climbers Alliance can assist? It would provide west-siders an opportunity to learn how to climb without the need to access the Wasatch.
- Hiking, soccer, ultimate frisbee, playgroups
- Biking
- Baseball / softball complex
- dog walking
- Sun bathing.
- swimming
- I love good parks that are safe and provide parents easy visibility to the whole park. It is also nice when there are places for parents to sit and work while their kids play.
- Hiking, but really any green space would be nice.

Fishing, gardens, skateboarding, frisbee-golf, tennis.

Watching Nature thrive in its natural habitat without risk from humans.

Bike Ride

Regular swimming pool
Swimming
Roller blading
Climbing walls and playgrounds. A place that focuses on child development and physical activity while promoting ecology

Swimming, hiking, and camping.
Skateboarding and team sports
Bicycling
Walking the dogs around a park.
BMX and Frisbee golf

Water Park is the best option. And not a lame one like Cowabunga Bay. Raging Waters was a childhood favorite, and it’s heartbreaking to see what has happened to it.
Running.

Fields, hiking, walking loop and trails

If outdoor recreation is not a viable or best use then go back to the Federal Funding Agency, explain the change of circumstances and ask for reduced restrictions. Retain a land planner for advice, the best use and a rough site plan. Otherwise, you are in a difficult position because it’s hard to make money from urban outdoor recreation.

RV Camping

I would rather it use for a swimming pool Tennis courts basketball courts running track

Golf

Tennis

The space needs to kept open - no developments like high rise apartments. However the space cannot become another Pioneer Park. Perhaps put a fence around it and charge a very very small fee ($1) to keep our nefarious people but low enough that lower SES families can access the park. Use the fee to staff a guard at the entrance gate to watch who comes and goes.

Hiking, baseball.

Going to park with water features (Liberty, Sugarhouse)

Birding

Nature walks

bike riding

Baseball

Water parks

I think a large park with soccer or fields of some sort. I love baseball/softball.

Target shooting

Walking hiking swimming biking

Running

Walking/running, sitting.

Fly Fishing

Lazing around

Dogs, bikes!

hiking

Turn it into a natural resource.

Rock climbing

Running but the park is too small for that. I’d love a place my daughter could roller skate (lots of flat paved areas) or where kids could learn how to ride their bikes (again, flat and smooth)

Rollercoasters!!!

Mountain biking

Swimming

Swimming, walking

corn mazes in the fall, farmers markets, fishing, playing at the park, petting zoo.

Gardens and dog walks

Skiing & Fishing but that is not what I want to see there. It is a perfect place for a BMX pump track and/or a huge skate park.

I’m a 55 year old guy who doesn’t do either of them but please do it for the kids.

Or, go big with a velodrome

walking, volleyball

Shady walks

My favorite outdoor pastime in this setting would be an inviting space to walk around, hang out and study, possible skateboard or bike, a friendly space for dogs especially an off leash area. Considering the pandemic, it would be extremely beneficial to have more outdoor community spaces. I would be curious what a outdoor/more pandemic friendly community space might look like including food, recreation, and social areas.

I very much enjoyed the park when it was known as raging waters. The wave pool was fun as a group or to try touching the bottom. Then the dark enclosed slide was like disappearing into a pit to re-emerge into a pool and the really tall slides wherein you felt gravity practically cease as you slightly free fell only to experience some g-forces as the slide leveled out and shot you skipping like a stone across the landing zone.
Frisbee golf or walking.
Golf, cycling, and walking
Bike park

Something multi-seasonal Hiking, Canoeing, Fishing.
Water parks and amusement parks
pickleball, tennis, biking
I would love to see the stretch of the Jordan River from 1700 S to the Fairpark cleaned and maintained for kayaking. I enjoy putting in at the boat entry in the parking lot of the old waterpark, but the water quality and state of the embankments is frequently poor.
With the waterpark area itself, it would be amazing to do a dam-and-divert plan for the river to create a whitewater park for paddling in the area (like what was created on the river in Columbus, Georgia).
Swimming
Safe Activities
Bicycling, but that doesn't have anything to do with this other than being visible from the Jordan River Parkway.
Botanical garden walk

Lounging.

current use
Kayaking, Surfing.
Hiking

Walking

I would make this into a park with basketball courts, a skate park and lots of green space and maybe a pond. Salt Lake City needs more options for INDOOR recreation in the long winter months when there is poor air quality. I would love to have access to an indoor recreation complex with running track. Indoor cycling/biking/skating tracks would be fantastic. An indoor water park would be great. Make the roof retractable so it can be considered “outdoor” to satisfy the restriction. SLC also needs more indoor fields for soccer/lacrosse, etc. Other idea: SLC needs more tennis/pickleball/ racquetball/futsal courts. Could make it a park with a variety of outdoor recreation options.

Running
Walking in an outdoor area like Liberty Park. Make sure that maintenance is in the budget.
Skate park or bike park with picnic space.
Water park

Hiking in the mountains
Swimming! Lots of people from the neighborhood, from young moms to old women and men from the neighborhood used to go meet and swim together in the wave pool and it was a great way to come together. I took my son after work/daycare many days all summer when he was in elementary and middle school and it was a great family connection place. Maybe we can build a state of the art indoor/outdoor swimming and health center and tie it into the canoe launch for the river as well? I'm so mad the city let the water park go to the group from Provo that had it closed on Sundays (one of the busiest/most profitable days) and let the park go. It was a great asset in the neighborhood until that point, and now it’s obviously a huge problem. It would be painful to see it turn into just another park (I love parks! But really. Raging Waters was special.) Also, many of us from Glendale now drive up to the pool at Steiner near the U or Cottonwood Heights to swim outside.

BMX biking
Fire pits, splash pads, hiking trail with land marks, or a nice park.

I was actually hoping the land could be used for a grocery store and some retail shops. I live down the street from this eyesore. We have no decent grocery store in the area. I am not really into propping up corporate America but other than hook and ladder, we have nowhere to grocery shop or dine in this neighborhood. This is sorely needed. If not on 17th, then please find us a place for a decent grocery store.

Mixed use park like riverside.
Gentle hikes and on-leash dog walking. Canoeing/kayaking. Outdoor dining. Meeting friends. Picnics. People watching. Picking up trash and needles left by homeless people. A small seasonal petting zoo would be kind of neat—a few goats, bunnies, sheep, small pigs. Maybe a seasonal small train just for kids. Or even a G-scale model railroad. These things worked very well for a public park in Englewood, Colorado. Make it family friendly—and I have no kids and I want that! Would be good to have a stream or creek. No dog park, please. Most SLC dog parks are awful except the one near 300 N Redwood Road.

Nature
Riding my horse
I don’t have outdoor pastime issues, but it seems that something with trees and pavilions would be a better use, given the need for outdoor gathering spaces for families. In my opinion, it would also be a good idea to have a community fireworks area rather than having fireworks in neighborhoods.
Walking and birdwatching
Riding bikes!
Swimming and biking
Hiking, skiing, and mountain biking.
Mountain Sports

Turn it into a park pool community center.
I personally love to walk and bike ride. But there are many for whom this park was a joyful outing and a fun place to play and have fun with friends and family.
1) Eminent domain the land, locate and charge the former owner for all demolition, restoration costs, and back-due taxes, and restore the land to its original riparian state. Or,

2) Refuse federal funds and sell the land to a developer for low- and moderate cost housing, a homeless service center including a medical/mental health facility, and shopping center with a grocery store. Require the developer to forfeit the land and improvements if the property is not maintained to current standards and require the developer to pay sufficient tax surcharge to compensate for the impact on City services.

Soccer
hiking in nature trails
Indoor or outdoor climbing.
Mountain bike course.
Playgrounds and splash pads for the kids
walking
Stupid question. Really, one or two words? Also my favorite outdoor recreation may not make sense for the space we’re talking about (hiking and camping).
Playing with my dog, swimming. Ice skating
Fishing and camping

Make it into a wetland habitat area, with a boardwalk for birdwatching.
I swim, bike and run. I walk my dog, too.
Not that I want this above other popular options, but why not have a running trail around the perimeter and an Olympic lap pool (that can be for playing, too) and a velodrome on the inside? It could be a perfect place for triathletes to practice!

Or something like the Draper Cycle Park, where there are hills to jump bikes off of? It would be so nice to have something like that on the west side. The 1700 South location is easily accessible from the east side of Salt lake, and a perfect location for something like that. I think it would be well used. I have family in the corner canyon area that are on the mountain biking team (high school), and wouldn’t it be so nice if the west side had a legit place to practice so they could have their own team? Draper park cost = $10 million.

In the meantime, after it was cleaned up maybe it could be a huge off leash dog park - parts of it could be fenced off until the full development was done.
mountain biking, rock climbing, hiking, soccer

Hiking
Cycling is at the top of our list....and with this land in such close proximity to the Jordan River Trail, it would be amazing to have another park at which to stop, picnic and enjoy the mountain views. We golf frequently at Glendale, and quite frankly, the view of that water park from the golf course is horrifying.
Swimming
Hiking, playing
Swimming pools
Biking
Sports
Relaxing
Hiking and walking, bike riding.
Birding
I think a park would be nice. Plenty of trees, playground, dog park, soccer field, basketball court, pickleball and a community garden would be something that I think would add to the neighborhood. Maybe a nice cafe or coffee shop with a patio.

General open space with multi-use sports fields.

Parks, sports, recreation. All of the outdoor swimming opportunities have now been eliminated from the Glendale neighborhood by the city. There are many other parks that offer a variety of recreational opportunities. This should be a regional outdoor recreation area.

Cycling/Tennis

Hiking

Skateboarding

Snowboarding and mountain biking. We need more dog parks also cycling
Biking Hiking make another Liberty Park for Glendale!

Walking it
Canoeing and kayaking the Jordan River, and the boat ramp at the former water park was a great place to launch, disembark, and simply enjoy the vibrancy of the park.
Biking, skateboarding
Make it a kayak adventure park like in rgreen river whyoming and a huge splash pad

Camping
Water parks
Water fights

Swimming or tennis
Make a well-lit, surveilled, ability-inclusive playground/sports complex with:
splash pads cognitive/sensory development play ability-inclusive playground soccer field (Real Salt Lake partnership) rubberized track (U of U partnership) basketball courts (Utah Jazz partnership) curfewed picnic amenities
skatepark
and purified/spring water filling stations

Include partnerships from local teams, corporations or businesses to bring the same state-of-the-art amenities to all ages, incomes, races and neighborhoods in Salt Lake City.

Partner with power companies to fully light and power the park, with renewable energies.

Skiing, hiking, walking dogs.
Hiking and bicycling

Kayaking, hiking, biking

How about another red butte garden?

Skateboarding
Nature parks, hiking, conservation, or simply a large city pool.
camping, hiking
Having a park area with water features and running track would be ideal for people that don't play sports.
Hiking, walking park paths
Walking
Bicycling
Nature walk and photography with lots of flowers plants and trees, trails water features, seating and educational opportunities. With space for some local food trucks as well.
Walking
It used to be a place for baseball and there are tennis courts down the road. Why not make it a sports field to be used for football, basketball, baseball etc.

roller skating
hiking
Swimming
Biking, snowboarding, hiking, swimming.

kayaking on the Jordan river, or biking along the Jordan Park Trailways!
The location near the river and the trail provide an excellent opportunity for river and trail-related uses.

As above. Pool and park.
Walking spending time with dogs and family
Walking in shade
Outdoor music concerts, roller skating, bmx biking.

Walking, hiking
Hiking/walking/strolling Exploring
Kayaking. And there just happens to be the perfect boat launch in the eastern-most part of the water park’s territory. Whatever you do this boat launch MUST remain accessible and usable.

Swimming, running
Hiking
Walking

Hiking swimming
Swimming. I love swimming and wish there was access to water here other than a few lakes. I also love hiking.

Swimming
Walking the dog
Mountain biking
Just to kick back.
Snowboarding & water parks
Mountain biking
Swimming or skate park
Dog walking.
Boating on the Jordan River and Hiking.

I think a connection the the existing Jordan river would be a benefit. Installing another boat launch on the property would be amazing. The existing parking lot would be ideal for the parking needs. And a bridge to the other side of the river would connect the current Jordan river trail to a new park and recreation space. Shade and lawn areas are limited in this area, and adding a park here would increase the recreation choices.

An Indoor Pickleball Complex. Example: https://docs.google.com/presentation/d/e/2PACX-1vQEyxuE3I4oy10XV3h4JUTR9xrGAMpUun7oAkvwXlxQ2J1avhkAtNn3IkXV5A5K7ob56eC0xnddB6G-d/pub?start=false&loop=false&delayms=3000&slide=id.g346266d5db_0_13

Walking trails, parks
Golf and Tennis
Pickleball, tennis
Adult Soccer
Basketball
Outdoor movie theater
golf
Create a big splash pad for children with smaller water slides if a water park is not appropriate Hiking and wandering
Cycling.
Gardening.
Walking paths and picnic areas.
Skatepark, basketball court, and playground
Reading
Chilling
Walking & biking.
Hiking
Mini golf!
Being outside.
Tree Walk
Golf. You can have a glow in the dark night golf as a par 3 course, maybe even a normal 9 hole course so that during the day it could operate as a normal 9 hole course with a driving range. Just look at the popularity of top golf and golf in general right now.

Visiting outdoor gardens, arboretums & parks. Check out “Grounds for Sculpture” in NJ.
The wave pool could be replaced by an amphitheater for concerts, plays, ceremonies etc.

It would help relieve the pressure that currently falls on Tanner/Parley’s Nature Park. It needs to be big enough that people can walk around in an open area while the dogs romp and play. Keep the grass green and the rose bushes trimmed and people will come. With little competition in a tight-niche market and a big summer attraction for the city this would be a big win for Salt Lake. Baseball

Water Park, mini golf, indoor sports

Splash pad

Connect with the Jordan River!

Keep it as a water park. That are is commercial and industrial no one will go out there for anything else.

Let’s overturn the regulation and let’s make it an outdoor recreational space since it borders on to Glendale Golf Course you could make it a softball and or baseball complex type of set up akin to 4500 S. and 1300 E.

Hiking, kayaking

Nature/water.

Ragging Waters!!!!!!

not sure. another ‘indoor pool’ facility (one with lap swimming and another pool for playing or whatever) or how about a ‘night sky’ park? (it’s not dark enough in that area but something similar to sugarhouse park? liberty park?-bike paths, jogging paths etc

I loved it when it was wild wave. It was a great huge community pool. They sold family passes that were a reasonable price. I miss the community pools that were out there in the parks. The pool at Jordan Park was so fun. It was a place of gathering with all my friends and family.

Airsoft

Poolside lounging

Garden walks, picnic areas, playgrounds . Something like liberty or sugarhouse park would be nice in our area.

Water!!! It’s a great family activity!!

I think the federal funds should be paid back and the land be redeveloped, maybe a parks department pool with a neighborhood around it.

DISC GOLF! It's growing in popularity extremely quickly and courses can be compact, as well as very inexpensive to build and maintain.

Fly fishing
Boating and waterparks
Floating rivers

I started playing disc golf 11 years ago and it's a wonderful way for families to get out and exercise. Disc golf courses are fairly inexpensive to build and our community is always there to step up and help build and also maintain courses. I have seen the sport explode with new players in the last 3 years and SLC could definitely use more courses to accommodate the rapidly growing number of new players!

Great water parks that Utah lacks. Travel to any other state and they probably have an amazing water park. The prior owners of this park never invested back in the park. SLC needs an amazing water park that can not only attract locals but people from surrounding states. Just as Lagoon draws people in.

Gardening. A community garden would be great considering the rise in multi family structures like Townhomes and Condos where there is not a place to grow a garden.

A part of the park, could be several pavilions, picnic tables, etc. Also, an area for twice a month, food truck court. Like a food court, in the mall, but all the different food trucks, could buy a spot, and we the public, could sample a wide variety of foods, and cooking talents here in our state. It might help save, or bring back some restaurants that struggled this year.

It’s a huge success in other places.
It is something we use to look forward to in Hawaii, twice a month.
The rule was, as it got bigger and more popular, that a food truck owner, could only buy a spot once a month. Which made room for so many more on the bi week. The park gets utilized, and gets money. It would be the only one in the state!

Gardening, nature paths, FREE activities for the community
Water park, big jungle gym for all ages.

I'm not located near the city so, my outdoor past time wouldn't be relevant for this situation. However, I would want to encourage the land use to be used in the most beneficial way to what kind of people they are trying to attract and the use as something unique. If not divided and made into something the population needs or wants. I also encourage more research done to those who live near this park.

As mentioned in my previous comment, I'm a big fan of pickleball. I also like basketball and mountain biking. Aside from pickleball courts, basketball courts would be fun, and I also think that if you created a mountain bike race track that could be a lot of fun for members of the community, and a bike race track would definitely be something unique and attractive.

I would like to see the whole place become a more natural sanctuary. Some of the former park features could be incorporated rather than torn down. I think that most of the former pools should be filled with gardens. I really like Red Butte Garden and I would like to see something like that put in. Maybe I would restore the lazy river.
I would also like to see a performance venue incorporated where there would be free concerts and cultural events.

Going to an awesome playground. The problem is that no matter what you will have it vandalism because of where it is and how many homeless are in that area. I

I like Miniature Golf. Utah has a lot of golf courses and several water park options but very few miniature golf courses that cater to families and kids/teenagers who only want to play miniature golf. It would be wonderful to have somewhere that could have several different course options for people to go through. I feel a miniature golf course could be used a lot more of the year than a water park and would cost less overall to maintain and keep safe and up to date.

Maybe some of the parts from the water park could be salvage, used, repurposed and recycled to make parts of the golf course or water features as a tribute to the water park. It would be nice to see the city or county recycle, reuse, or repurpose some of the stuff. You could also add in a pavilion with tables where families could enjoy meals if they wanted.

Secure the funding to fix the water park and fix it. The city can do that by closing at least two golf courses, and taking the $1.2 million in golf subsidies to pay of bonds to fix the water park. Golf course land can be reimagined as space that gets far greater public use than golf.

As my previous answer suggested, I love golf and I'm still saddened by the loss of Wingpointe. We don't need another golf course there obviously, except maybe a small par 3 course for kids, but it could be a tremendous practice and training center with investment in rentable launch monitors, high quality putting areas, and areas to practice wedge play, etc. These things are being done with low maintenance materials (alternatives to grass) around the country. Check out the explosion in usage Golf in the Round has enjoyed since simply investing in launch monitors...there's no doubt this could be made to be a revenue generator if done correctly, ESPECIALLY if geared toward growing the game through families and children.

Walking. Baseball
Offleash dog park with attractive paths. Please not just a ball throwing area but actual trails/walking paths. If there's enough space for offleash walking trails, this would benefit the health of people and dogs.

Skate(board)/BMX park. I'm in my 50s and skated at parks in my 40s. The skatepark community keeps youth out of trouble and is easy to maintain. That said, either the park would need to be locked up or patrolled off hours. I'm thinking how badly Fairmont gets visited by partyers with a lot of underage drinkers.

Large meditation walking maze. I know there's another off of the river but this could be connected to other spaces and we need more meditative spaces.

I don’t normally do outdoor activities but waterparks and amusement parks can get me outdoors easily.
Gardening is an outdoor recreation, therefore it should be made into a lush living garden forest for the sake of preparing for the coming disasters. Garden forests because these reseed themselves and do not require much water or up keep and they provide food.

I worked at Raging Waters and grew up in Glendale. I loved Raging Waters as a kid, and there isn’t anything else like it in the area.

Background on paintball - it’s rise was in the 90s and early 2000s featured on ESPN and serious money to be won in the tournament scene. Once the recession hit many fields closed as it was an expensive hobby. Although it’s completely returned and thrived on today’s economy COVID has presented a new hurdle and in many ways one of the best socially distanced sport. You already require to wear a mask and typically don’t get within 5 yds of another player. It would be a matter of keeping people spaced out during staging - which this location is perfect. Many fields run a haunted attraction in the October months which would keep it diverse. I'd personally would be very interested in further conversations. [Name, phone, email redacted] (Paintball sounds messy but I promise you it’s much cleaner than you think. Also the netting required isn’t like a landmark fixture similar to top golf it’s much less invasive)

Swimming

Swimming at the lake. This should be turned into a man made lake with some sand.

Raging waters was an absolute blast to go to as a kid. It was usually a reward for good behavior, or excelling grades in school. It also was a great option in the summer to cool off, and have fun with friends at the water park.

I enjoy taking pictures outside or going for a picnic. I would like to add the stuff george has a cool playground graded for adults called thunder junction, and idea like that would be fun.

Picnic in the park
Out door park. Please consider creating a section for the elderly as well as disabled children including playground equipment that can accommodate special needs.
Coming every other day to the park with friends and family to cool down at the park, got a season pass every year for birthdays
Something we can maybe enjoy year round if possible

Data taken for the Madison and Salt Lake City show that most families have dogs so I think a dog park would be a good idea. Many people like the Jordan Parkway so something like that I think would be fantastic idea or an urban forest would be a very good in the public domain since the air quality can be bad and greenery always looks better than buildings.

Camping and campfires. Fishing is cool, too.

Swimming and swimming

I remember going to seven peaks when it was open. My family and I used go everyday all day in the summer. That was my favorite outdoor thing back then.

Swimming

Playing rugby outside.

We have a pro team in Utah the Utah Warriors and they are looking for a stadium. The property should be converted to a pro rugby stadium that can also be used for high school events like state championships for football and soccer. It is on the outskirts of the capital city and is easy to get to. Could be a great place to host competitions locally and also marque events or concerts. Could be a really cool venue with lots of different uses.

Bike riding, paddle boarding, picnicking, walking

Playing sports

Swimming, quality time with family

One of my favorite outdoor Past time was Ranging Water during the Summer we would always walk to The park and pay to get wet something my dad and My lil brother would always do we would always get Season pass

My favorite was Raging Waters. When it changed to Seven Peaks, it became too expensive. Not allowing outside food was horrible. When it was Raging Waters, I had a season pass. When it changed, I went once and was highly disappointed.

Water parks are the pinnacle of amusement parks. If not a water park, build rollercoasters or an indoor snowpark!

Picnicking and exploring gardens, etc. the area is missing something reminiscent of Forest Park in St. Louis Missouri.

I got a pass to raging waters every summer as a teen and took every Tuesday off to go with friends. There isn't another water park in the area so I think a new one should be built.

I have fond summer memories of the water park. My second vote, much, much, lower than the water park would be an amazing park with splash pads.

I think we have enough outdoor recreation. Please use the funds to provide shelter for unhoused individuals and families.

Regardless of my favorite outdoor pastime, I feel that the community needs additional places (free or very affordable) & things for youth to hang out & play.
Splash pad
Tennis court
Biking, some dirt bike paths would be cool.
I like viewing nature, birds and butterflies primarily, and it would be great to have spaces that would attract them
Walking, running
I am a member of the Utah Airsoft Group and find that my favorite outdoor pastime at present would be airsofting. As a member of the community I can say for lot’s of others that allowing for this to be used to play games for a time would be something people would greatly enjoy as it is difficult to find urban places to play. So if this could be opened up to the airsofting community for a short time a lot of people would be extremely happy.

Water park could be fun. I also enjoy outdoor sports. Maybe it could be used to set up some new batting cages! There are some in south Jordan but that is really far to travel just to practice for a few minutes. Maybe a similar structure to what Mulligans has could be fun. Batting cages, mini golf, golf (top golf style?). Softball fields?
walking and biking paths
Coachella

If I can only use two words it would be Concerts and festivals.

However, I choose to tell you more. This area could be used for mass gatherings like farmers market, festivals etc. It could be designed with bike trails coming off of the Jordan River parkway so it could be green space for this community to gather. There is a library close by that could be incorporated in the trail system. There could be food trucks on a schedule and people could get food and stay to eat. Maybe even a splash pad in the summer, If done properly this area can generate tax revenue instead of attracting homeless and hooligans.

Water park

Waterparks
I enjoy running and swimming. But, maybe make it Utah's biggest and best splash pad or Utah's biggest destination park similar to Lodestone Park or Wardle Fields Regional Park but bigger and better

I like biking most. The valley has ample resources for road, gravel, and mountain biking. one thing we DON'T have that I think would be AMAZING for the area is a velodrome. There were talks of building one down in a Draper a while back if I recall correctly. I think the Salt Lake biking community would be much more likely to use such a structure, and it would certainly be appropriate for it to be located on the Valley's most famous bike path. build a skating/ice skating rink in the middle and/or bike polo courts. Allow food trucks and, in a perfect world, a bar, and you've created a social space unlike anything on the JRP. The closest Velodrome is in Colorado Springs. Salt Lake is cooler and better than Colorado Springs and it would be easy to book events. Once installed it would be a potential revenue generator.
Splash pads and shade and playgrounds
Hiking and paddle boarding

In the summer time it would be swimming and concerts (we have enough concert halls in this city)

Dog park with a pond for the dogs to swim
Rock climbing
Peaceful walks
Holiday activities and time with family outdoors.
Airsofting
open park jogging
I think an outdoor activity park should be built with a recreation center, an onsite youth center staffed with counselors and perhaps a substation for SLPD with outreach program. The outdoor features should have skateboarding bowls, bicycle trails (on and off road), climbing wall, soccer area, basketball area.

My favorite outdoor activities I’ve always enjoyed and still do is play pickle ball, as well as volleyball.

I love parks with a variety of playgrounds. Pickleball is so fun and a great way to be active. Playgrounds for adults and kids. Maybe you can create a splash pad area and have one or two water slides - as part of memory of what the park used to be.

Rock climbing
mountain biking

This water park was my favorite past time growing up and continued for my own kids

I definitely think we need more activities for families and kids. We loved the pool and prefer it be a pool or splash pad of some sort.

Swimming, hiking anything outdoors

Whatever you do with it, make sure that there's a water element to it (like a splash pad area?)

I think it's important to have a waterpark component - especially in this low income area. This allows fun outdoor children focused activities closer to minority and low income youth.

Don’t tear down the slides and pools until you have a real plan of what it will become.
hiking, biking

Could Salt Lake City use centrally located soccer, rugby, baseball, etc fields?

If properly designed with tree-shaded alleyways, it could be relatively waterwise as well, and used as a Park as well as for sports.

Also space for a Community garden for Glendale?

Cycling, hiking

Swimming! Even if it’s just in a pool.

I think turning it into a skating rink where they could also do ice skating in the winter with skate rentals would be awesome!

For decades, I have researched all of the various entertainment recreational activities in Utah back to the beginning. While not as popular as they once were, water parks are staying fairly steady in popularity in Utah. Not quite as popular as bowling, but more popular than many other summer outdoor attractions. Miniature golf remains among the more popular activities, in Utah, and has among the lowest maintenance costs. Ice Skating is quite popular, as well, but only for 2-3 months, peaking in December, but could provide a winter use for the park. Thus, a recommendation would be to keep and redesign part of the water park so that it flows better and add miniature golf, go-karts, bumper boats, and hot tubs. Make the Lazy River interact between all attractions. Have ice skating in the winter with the hot tubs. If the miniature golf is designed correctly, then it could also be used in the winter.

Farmer’s markets, food trucks, outdoor concerts, seasonal events.

This space would make for an awesome bike park. With the way high school mountain bike has taken off in Utah, this space could get incredible use of a bike park encouraging more people to explore and hone hobbies outdoors and help alleviate trail systems.

Bike park, skate park
Cycling, mountain biking, criterium racing, pump tracks.

Biking

This would make an incredible bike park and could provide affordable recreation for thousands in the valley.

A bike park would be awesome
Cycling is a fantastic outdoor activity that provides cardiovascular exercise as well as social interactions. My favorite outdoor pastime is cycling and this land would be an ideal location for a mountain bike themed trails and skills park for all ages.

Disc golf, mountain biking. I think you should consider what the town of Frisco Colorado has done and create an "Adventure Park". https://www.townoffrisco.com/play/frisco-adventure-park-summer/general-info/
This park has facilities for a lot of up-and-coming sports that don't typically get featured in standard city parks.

Absolutely this would be an incredible mixed park for mountain bikes, BMX, and skateboarding. You could use the hill to build a park similar to what Boise Idaho has and/or snake hollow bike park in St George. The lazy River could be repurposed to a really cool asphalt pump track, the swimming pools could be repurposed to skate parks

Biking

Back to the core of the question...

Please make a public, city ran, bike park. There is a bike park in Boise, Idaho that is amazing. I understand there are a few bike parks around, like Draper and 9 Line.

Make a bike park that has asphalted pump tracks, jump lines from beginner to professional. Include a sprinkler system, drinking fountains, bike tool area, picnic tables, shade, etc....

I think a playground would be fun, especially if it had exercise equipment or adult sized swings so everyone could enjoy it

Nature strolls, hikes, wading, fishing. Too many parks in SL valley are grass and used for sports. More natural uses are needed in the valley.

Walking, running and taking my kids to an outdoor space to get their wiggles out.

Make it an outdoor concert venue perhaps with year-round park.

Make the place into a huge bike park

My family and I enjoy outdoor activities such as mini golf and water parks.

Please make a public, city ran, bike park. There is a bike park in Boise, Idaho that is amazing. I understand there are a few bike parks around, like Draper and 9 Line.

Make a bike park that has asphalted pump tracks, jump lines from beginner to professional. Include a sprinkler system, drinking fountains, bike tool area, picnic tables, shade, etc....

I think a playground would be fun, especially if it had exercise equipment or adult sized swings so everyone could enjoy it

Nature strolls, hikes, wading, fishing. Too many parks in SL valley are grass and used for sports. More natural uses are needed in the valley.

Walking, running and taking my kids to an outdoor space to get their wiggles out.

I think it should be a park that families don't have to pay to access for a game of family football or soccer. We were only able to go the seven peaks once because of the cost and while we had a good time if it were a park that has a pool along with ball parks or soccer fields in addition to other activities such as Redwood center so it can be used all year not just summer.

- Family fun
- Hiking.
- Frisbee golf
- walking
- Backpacking

Would love another park or garden. Maybe a public pool would be interesting. I really like hiking and biking and we kind of have that covered with the trail nearby. Maybe an outdoor rollarskating rink. Also could be a good spot for a community garden or greenhouse.

- Swimming
- Love the water park
- Biking and rollerblading
- Spending time around lakes of streams
- Lazy river
- Fishing, hiking, skiing, ice skating

Something watery... pools... maybe more natural and rocks... like at liberty park. It would be nice to have more swimming areas in SLC.

- Maybe a drive in out door theatre? Picnic areas.

I was a lifeguard there for two years and have many fond memories of that place. I have an old Raging Waters yearbook I'll look for to submit photos.

- Swimming
- Water park
- I think swimming and water are great. Also perhaps an outdoor concert venue could be cool
- Theme parks, bike riding, snow skiing, water skiing

- Rock climbing
- Playgrounds, sports, picnics

First of all: GOOD!!!! We are enough concrete jungle already.
I’ll just give my ideas as my hobbies aren’t in the city but any water park or big pool park with lots of grass to lay out on woud be a hit. Also a dog pool. Gated part of it.
Or an obstacle outdoor course. Fun fitness is the best.
Everything at own risk of course.

Hiking

Reading, people watching, giving back to the community

To be honest, this would be a perfect location for the city to develop a second USA BMX sanctioned race track in Salt Lake County. Would be wonderful place to work together with Rad Canyon BMX. Santa Clara Utah has just finished a new USA BMX sanctioned race track and it's a site to behold. Utah's race tracks are far and few between and make it extremely difficult for Utah's kids to compete with the rest of the countries kids and to also Perdue their dreams of becoming an Olympian in this sport.

Please consider the idea. It would change allot of youths lives to say the least. And would be an amazing attraction in the Salt Lake County!!

Watching my kids play in nature.

Swimming, canoeing/kayaking, wading/splash pad, picnicking, ice skating

Basketball

Anything with water!!

Please don't tear down Raging Waters. So many Utahns have such great memories swimming there. Memories that I'd like to continue with my kids and take them there, take them to the greatest water park ever, Raging Waters!!

SAVE RAGING WATERS!! SAVE THE WATER PARK!! PLS FIND AWAY TO KEEP AND GET IT UP AND RUNNING AGAIN.

Swimming and hiking

I don't really do outside, I do enjoy swimming and such so a small artificial lake wouldn't be a miss.

Skateboard

Park or a small forest with trail for running or biking to be green

Sleeping

The wave pool was awesome. I worked here under the seven peaks staff. Our food was always hot. The slides the lazy river. It's a blast to spend a day here.

Riding UTV

Water parks. I used to live in Phoenix and they have three giant water parks in the Phoenix valley that are a blast. SLC does not have even one anymore but they should focus on reestablishing one.

Water Parks

swimming

Savoring the energy of nature in a pristine permaculture environment which demonstrates a symbiotic interaction between livestock, fish, and plant growth which produces healthy, economic food production ripe for picking and petting.

Visiting self-pick or self-harvest organic food production theme parks run by previously homeless and/or mentally handicapped individuals within a family-safe setting.

Water play

Mountain biking

Pickleball

I love parks with lots of grass for playing games like frisbee. A sand pit for volleyball would be awesome. Paved asphalt walking path around the perimeter, maybe a combined biking path as well.

Hiking, camping, outdoor shooting.

Paddle boating

Swimming, bike, paintball

Swimming

walking on mountain trails

Gardening......many people want to grow their own food but don't have space. Create a grid of plots with path and trails....and lease the tiny plots (20 ft x 20 ft) to those that want to garden?

Run piping for water. Extra food could go to food banks.

Roller skating

Reading

Dog walking

Walking in nature- that is a big site and could have some very nice trails, perhaps with a lake or pond and lots of trees and flowers.

A really nice, general park.

I love mountain biking. The hill at the park would be great for bike parks.
Salt Lake City in general needs an additional fun spot aside from outdoor parks and Lagoon, so anything that isn’t an outdoor park that kids & adults can have fun in would be something to look into.
Swimming
I enjoy walking as well as going to the pool or lake. I think something similar to Liberty Park would be awesome!

These new splash pads are really epic for kids, they are usually in higher priced areas for sure. Me personally, I love watching my kids play and enjoy themselves, I also like zoos and aviaries. I miss the little carnival at Liberty Park with the Ferris wheel.
Hiking, dog parks, picnics, etc.
Walking or hiking with kids and our dogs
New water park!!
Roller skating
Playgrounds, picnics, bike rides
Mountain biking
Hiking/strolling through natural Utah landscape. I think restoring it to a natural landscape would be great
Swimming
It should include a splash pad with greenspace and updated pickle ball and tennis courts, bocce ball pits, and fields for kickball and softball. We need more options for these things than just the 11th Ave Park or Liberty Park.
Swimming
Biking, hiking
Water Slide
Wave pool
Skateboarding/scooter
Dirt biking, camping, rafting, mountain biking, hiking, pickleball, tennis, picnicking with family.

Summer activities
Swimming in a wave pool.
Swimming
Walking with my family and enjoying the outdoors.
Water park
Hiking, ultimate frisbee, biking
Fishing and foraging for wild edible plants and fungi are about even.
I camp and four wheel. But that has nothing to do with building a better water park.
Skate park, just another public park with a running trail or something.
Keep it a water park
Rafting. Salt lake could really stand out and draw in a crowd if the water park reflected some of the natural aspects of Utah. Add a whitewater park with a kayaking river and play waves. Being right on the Jordan River, it could encorporate some of the natural features and things that attract people to Utah, the great rivers and rafting opportunities.

Per my last comment, I believe that, with some wrangling, something could be done to allow for mixed-use development here, with the principal and prevailing use being recreational. The SLC RDA should get involved to build a plan for a development that contemplates which resources provide the greatest opportunities to draw the public into this space. (RDA and DJ Baxter spent a significant amount of time about a decade ago working through how to best activate Gallivan Plaza. I think it had to do with a "Rule of Tens" principal. Brianne McConkie headed the effort on the RDA staff.)

To answer the question, our outdoor passion is river running, and the Jordan River needs to be put to use!

Once the recreational opportunities are explored and fleshed-out, then an effort can be made to thoughtfully fold in mixed-use residential, retail, programming, and perhaps institutional uses to ensure that the city-owned asset remains an active space and doesn’t fall victim to vandalism and crime.

Softball/swim
Public parks
Zip lining, rock climbing, swimming

I really like Parkway Park. It has a playground, basketball courts, tennis courts, and a soccer field. If Glendale had a park like that they would really enjoy it.
Community renovated Water park is the best solution for that space.
taking the grandkids to play in the water i took my kids for years. Riding motorcycle s and side by sides.
Camping and bonfires
swimming
Bike and skate park
Pickleball is my top suggestion. As it grows in popularity in SLC, it is becoming harder and harder to find available courts to play. A community garden could also be cool.
Parks with nature like hikes. I imagine a park where it embodies all of the canyons out city is surrounded by A public park similar to Liberty Park would be an incredible option. NO MORE DEVELOPMENT

Ideas:
- Frisbee golf course
- Public running track
- Skate Park
- Mountain bike park with jumps
- Splash pad
- Road bike course
- Drive in movies
- Outdoor kitchens
- Fishing pond
- Amphitheater
- Giant kids playground
- Sports complex
- Reptile house/bird sanctuary

There’s lots of things you can do with a few acres of land down there.

WAKEBOARDING! Surfing. Swimming. All of the above should be involved in this.
Water parks

Sitting in the lazy river and wave pool with my mom soaking in the sun and hurrying back to our cooler to get some sandwiches and cool off in the shade
Going to concerts, mini golf, and reading in the sun. I’m not much of a sports person…

Boating
Turn it into a garden with trees kind of like Chicago’s conservatory.
Building trails for biking would be awesome. Bike Park features

- Parks with my kids
- Walking, picnicking, and biking
- Gardening, my kids skateboard and ride BMX bikes
- Amusement parks
- Swimming
- Mountain biking, snowboarding, sledding

None. Make it into a goddamn homeless shelter. You’re not taking care of the people in your city and regardless of whether you see them as humans with value or not. They deserve to have a place to sleep and eat. There’s so much space. Build a homeless shelter.

- Hiking
- Lagoon!
- Water
- Hanging out with family at wholesome family outdoor entertainment spot.
- Trail walking.
- Wild nature.
- Water park
- Cycling and jogging. Floating the river would be a nice addition.

amusement park
- Swimming, riding bikes.
- The sun is hitting and the pool is outside there’s more space and way better than being inside
- Swimming, walking
- Seven peaks
- Hiking, running defensive Gun range shooting and training facility. Reference front sight in Nevada.
- Wakeboarding, surfing
- We loved it when it was safe and popular. I hasn’t been used forever and it’s way out there for Salt Lake City. It’s in an unsafe area. Time for a change make it different kind of park, smaller playground area. Sale some of the land off for homes.
- Playgrounds, volleyball, running
- WAKEBOARDING, ANY WATER SPORTS
- WAKEBOARDING!
- Watersports.
- Wakeboarding, snowboarding, surfing
- Water sports, soccer, hockey
- Watersports, Basketball

WAKEBOARDING!
Walking, and playing disc golf. If I may add additional input: a park similar to New York’s Highline would be amazing in Salt Lake City. But, because there aren’t skyscrapers around, the park itself would then surround a small outdoor concert venue turned skating rink in the winter. Something along those lines would be incredible for Salt Lake.

Being separated from automobiles, dirt and pollution. That’s all anybody going to a park really wants. Make a peaceful, green space. Adding amenities for specific individuals’ enjoyment is icing on the cake but if you can’t carve out the green space from the urban setting, it’s not a very good park.

- Softball
- Family gatherings
- going to a water park
- Swimming
- Running
- Going to the park
- ??
- Scenic walks or cooking food outside with friends.
- Water slides
- Swimming

I would like more availability of recreational pools/water theme parks. Lagoon is the only place I can think of that passes for adults to enjoy.

Not sure.

- Water park
- Riding my bike at skateparks, pump tracks and dirt made bike parks!
- Rock climbing
- Skate board
- Skating
- Rock climbing
- Going to the water park
- Disc golf, outdoor park

Hiking (probably not useful here)

Honestly it would be a Waterpark! Maybe next would be a beautiful city park with tennis and pickleball courts, basketball courts, soccer fields and playgrounds.

Football.
Divide the park by age groups and species. Have a nice quiet park for seniors, have a skate park for teenagers, have an adventure park for kids. In this adventure park, you can have a pond with fish and frogs for kids to look and explore, also have like a ninja course for big kids to do and a huge tree house to explore. Have a doggie park. A huge bike trail around the park. You can also built little houses like the House of Nations in Balboa Park, in San Diego California. Each house represents a country. Balboa Park is a great example of a park, it has a beautiful pond, it has vivarium where you can learn about plants, it has museums where you can learn, it has a trolley, and it also has a stadium where musicians give concerts during the week. You can get teenager volunteers to help design and build the skate park. Dog lovers to help built the doggie park. The more you get the community involved in turning this place around, the more sense of ownership you will get from the community.

I think creating a water park and outdoor recreation area that can be used for family entertainment and picnics would be great. A safe environment that provides a place for other outdoor activities like climbing walls, basketball, tennis, skating, and a splash pad would be great as well. Consider even a dual use for summer and winter. Water park in the summer and ice skating and other winter activities when it’s cold. That could provide year-round activities and employment. Water park. Or outdoor water focused park.

Drive in Movie Theater or Water Park. Or a nice large park for fishing, splash pads, basketball & soccer areas, running track & all abilities playground.
The Wasatch Front area is missing a large multi-use outdoor sports complex namely for football, soccer and pickleball. This could potentially bring big tournaments to the city and state and result in tourism revenue. I am biased towards pickleball. The big tournaments are mostly held in Brigham City or St. George and we need a central located site for the state. An indoor facility, if allowed, would bring revenue year round for a variety of sports tournaments i.e. pickleball, basketball, volleyball, etc. Regardless of your decision, the land should be used where it provide benefit to the community as well as potentially bring in revenue to help offset maintenance cost of whatever it is decided to build on the property.

community garden space for urban agriculture & community building. As we move into an increasingly unstable future, maximizing places for community to convene & grow together (literally and metaphorically) is essential to our 'resilience' through changes. urban agriculture is a GREAT way to create a shared project in these public spaces.

Could park of the area be set aside for an adventure park? A park that allows for kids to take small risks. Similar to those seem in California and the UK. With Utah free range parenting law there needs to be places that help support families and kids wanting to raise their kids this way. To help kids build independence.

We need to at least try get a change in the federal funding agreement so that the property can be used year round and also have indoor options during the winter month to be able to make this park profitable. We all know what the history has been with the different owner ships over the last few decades. They all went bust trying to make a Water Park profitable in the 90 to 100 days of operation it had to work with. This needs to be a 365 days of operation park to have a chance to make this a viable option. If this can't be done then funding need to come from a bond option or some other source and the city take over the operation of the park and make his a indoor out door year round operation. Thanks, John Lake

I have had the best memories at this water-park as a kid! This would be amazing to have it rebuilt! Utah deserves to have a water-park rebuilt

Must be able to be used all year long. Skate park or ice rinks or both

Baseball, golf and disc golf are good options. Could just be used for exercise stations, use the existing pools for a skate park, etc.

Fitness and exercise.

Putting up a hammock between non-evergreen tree trunks (evergreen bark is too sticky with sap) and then reading or knitting in the sunshine. I know Frisbee golf is something my husband enjoys outdoors. And this neighborhood could really use a fenced outdoor dog park, and/or an all-abilities children playground (like the new one in Spanish Fork).

I think a pump track, outdoor skating rink, children’s splash pad

Walking in a park

Hiking

Hiking, walking my dog, looking at the wildflowers, meeting friends for coffee at the park

Hiking and walking trails.

You should consider turning it into a restoration area. Volunteers would be more than happy to help. It would fit your budget, it would help the smog, and it would help wildlife. Many Utahns would love to sit and drink coffee, have a picnic, take family photos, and walk their dogs there.

Raging waters for sure was top ten in my list for summer activities and memories. Reserving a tent, bringing in a cooler and getting a sunburn that would last the whole week. There’s not a kid I know that grew up in SLC that wouldn’t love to see this park back up and running like it was.

Skate park, bike paths, roller skate rink, ice skate rink, food truck area w public seating. Trees, gathering areas, places to sit and places to use wheel based fun things.

Airsoft is my absolute favorite. As it stands right now, there is only one arena, in Layton. Living in the SLC County along with many other enthusiasts it would be nice to have another option.

Airsoft

I enjoy many outdoor sports including hunting, shooting, camping, and playing airsoft with friends

airsoft

Airsoft and paintball

I love playing airsoft and competing in events that involve airsoft. The biggest problem with that is there’s is very few places to play unless you go out of town into the middle of nowhere. So if it could be turned into an airsoft arena I believe it would give a great amount of people somewhere to play, also I believe it would bring newcomers to learn how to play safely with the right equipment.

Picnic, walking, hiking
So you acquired an outdoor waterpark with money that restricts outdoor recreation? To what? Outdoor humming? Mumbling to pigeons only? What does that even mean...so the waterpark was dead the moment someone signed the deed. Who’s oversight was this and who is responsible to the community for such irresponsible federal funding? Is that correct from reading this question? So from the beginning of your acquiring the park, there was no intention of reopening it as an outdoor water based rec-area, why talk about the burned down buildings and leaky pools then, just plow through it and build something new. I feel severely let down by a city that acquired the property with funds that prohibit outdoor use of an outdoor property, what carelessness, so much for a community use property...I guess you can make a new police precinct to help accidentally shoot more unfortunate dark skinned kids in our neighborhood who have nothing better to do in the summer, that will be your legacy I suppose.

I'd suggest a fully accessible playground for children of all abilities. There is one in St. George and one in Springville to use as examples.
I think a splashpad would be very welcome in the neighborhood.
Walking paths are very nice, but we definitely want to keep them safe.
Situated along the Jordan river and accessible from the Jordan river parkway, this area has potential to be a recreational hub for Salt Lake County. Like the Olympic Oval, there is also an opportunity bring something unique to an economically disadvantaged area that will attract residents from across the state. With this in mind, three things come to mind that would naturally blend with Jordan river and parkway, 1) an Olympic style kayak park and canoe area attached to the Jordan river, 2) a state of the art indoor or outdoor velodrome promoting track cycling, 3) an outdoor bike park that includes a world class European style cyclocross course. Similar to the Olympic Oval, any of these facilities could bring something to Salt Lake that is currently nonexistent in the state, and virtually the west. These facilities would create new opportunities for locals but could also attract international competition and economic opportunity.

Walking in the woods, viewing wildlife, camping. But those things are done elsewhere. Favorite outdoor PARK activity is swimming pools, hot tubs, slides, etc. But we have to drive a long way for those now that this park has closed. Well, that, and current COVID restrictions of course.

Rollerskating and bike riding. There aren't many locations specific to rollerskating close to the area other than Classic Fun Center. People have had to roller-skate on tennis courts or basketball courts. It would be nice to have a place to roller-skate outside. An adaptable space that can incorporate different activities but also have established places for certain activities would be great!
Enjoying natural areas where wildlife and humans can co-exist. Large swaths of turf are unnecessary, over-use water resources, are costly to maintain and provide no habitat benefit. A series of trails through natural areas where bird-watching is possible, education facilities, a nature preserve, and boardwalks near the river would be preferable.

Hiking, going to botanical gardens
Mountain biking. There are currently no opportunities for mountain biking in the West Valley area. The Oquirrh mountains and areas with significant elevation change near Mountain View corridor and U111 would make excellent sites for mountain bike parks similar to trail side park in Park City. Similar parks exist throughout the state (Draper, Eagle Mountain, Herriman, etc), but not in or near West Valley.
Walking & swimming
we need a park like Liberty Park but grander on this side of town. we need a food truck area to gather. a few water features a nice grass areas. board walk for the Jordan River. maybe a beer garden for local breweries to host film night or something for the younger crowd.
Mountain bike park...pump track, flow trails, features. Or an outdoor music venue.
Golfing
Community soccer fields, open space, walking path like the West Jordan Soccer Complex.
Six footsal courts. One full soccer pitch. One indoor soccer facility. Turn it into a place run by the nonprofit Utah Development Academy. Make it a training area where kids from that side of the city can go to play the game without having to pay three grand a year to get on a for profit competition travel team.
Unfortunately, a water park in the pandemic age is likely not a great idea. A fraction of the $25 million refurbishment number could build the soccer site. The UDA is a top class operation that has helped many kids play the game who otherwise could not afford it.
Hiking
Nature trails
For me, it's fishing and biking, but I believe a water park is in the best interests of our family oriented community.
We enjoy taking our dog to a well maintained, clean, fun, dog park (such as Fairmont Park). We wish that Fairmont was bigger. It would also be great to have a doggy pool (so maybe the pools at this site could be re-used). We also wish that there were options for colder weather for our furry friend to play and we weren't freezing at.
We also enjoy visiting the Murray Park Outdoor Calisthenics Park. We do not have anything like that available in Salt Lake City - an open, outdoor gym area.
So basically, it would be great if this area could be turned into an area with a large indoor/outdoor dog park with an outdoor gym area that is completely free to the public to use.

The wave pool at the old park.

I think a mountain bike pump track would be a great add for that area. Many cities (Boise, Denver) have these kind of dedicated space for bikers to practice and work on skills as well.
In the summer, paddle boarding. In the winter, sledding.
Getting high.
Roller skating/blading. With the resurgence of skating, why not a roller rink? An outdoor dining area surrounded by food trucks would also be a nice community draw.
Going to dog parks

Work to get that Federal restriction removed. The requirement is holding you hostage to use the land for something more worth while to the community. Make it part of the Jordan Parkway with trails and other less costly outdoor activities.

I would like to see a mixed use outdoor space, with biking / walking trails, trees, and possible a skate park. It would be a nice space to have picnics, outdoor concerts, events, and bring the community together. Maybe an amphitheater similar to the new one one Murray Park could be great. The nearby skate parks are extremely overcrowded and overused so it would be wonderful to have a well lit skate area for all ages (since skate parks attract much younger children these days). It is an effective way to get kids outside and exercising, so I think we should be promoting it as much as possible.

Equestrian use! We are being pushed out of the city, farther and farther away despite a huge increase in popularity in 2020. A couple large riding arenas, And stables Will pay for itself in time. We could host clinics, competitions, and board horses.

Skateboarding is most definitely my favorite past time. The community it builds is incredible and the life skills learned are immeasurable. Skateboarding teaches you how to become and stay confident, strong, committed, kind to strangers, supporting other humans in their endeavors, getting right back up when you fall, and especially trying again after you fall hard.

Teaching others to enjoy the outdoors.
